FARMING, FINANCING AND WORKING TOGETHER

Remember when being efficient was all it took to be a successful farmer? With some help from mother nature, being efficient is still the key to successful farming. And that, by itself, is a tough job.

Today's farmer has to know financing and marketing as well as production. And today, as in the past, The Ephrata National Bank is here to help.

We've been financing local farming since 1881 and plan to for years to come.

Next time you need some honest advice on financing your farming operation, see your friends at The Ephrata National Bank.

FIDDLEHEADS AND FERNS

Call it a young frond, a crozier, a fern — it's a fiddlehead, so named because its early, coiled appearance resembles the spiraled tuning end of a fiddle. It is the ostrich fern (Matteuccia struthiopteris), prized by gourmet chefs and nature lovers alike. The New Brunswick Maliseet tribe treasured them so much that they decorated their canoes and clothing with the image. Not every coiled fern head is a fiddlehead, however, so don't be deceived by nonedible look-alikes.

The ostrich fern, often found near moving water, has a brown, papery covering similar to onionskin. Outside of the Canadian and New England wilds, fiddleheads might be found frozen or pickled in gourmet shops. The taste is something between asparagus and spinach.

A snowstorm in May is worth a wagonload of hay.

Gnats galore, screen the door.

There is not a sprig of grass that shoots uninteresting to me.

—Thomas Jefferson 3rd U.S. president (1743-1826)

TIP OF THE WEEK

DIJON FIDDLEHEADS

1 pound fiddleheads, rinsed well
1/2 cup plain yogurt
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 teaspoons prepared Dijon mustard
3 tablespoons chopped scallions salt and pepper, to taste

Boil or steam the fiddleheads for 5 to 10 minutes, or until tender. Drain. Whisk together remaining ingredients and serve the fiddleheads, while still hot, topped with the sauce.

Serves 4 to 6.

OPINION

Do The Right Things Right

David White
Executive Director
Ohio Livestock Coalition (OLC)

Pretend for a moment that you are a young farmer, your wife is 8½ months pregnant, you're thinking about building two new hog (1,960 head) finishing units with a lagoon system, and the local newspaper calls to get your reaction to being named defendants in a $10 million class action lawsuit.

Quick — wake up! Is this a nightmare? No, unfortunately, it was all too real for a Darke County, Ohio, livestock farm family.

Tony and Anita Knapke were the targets of a $10 million lawsuit filed by three neighbors in 1998. The neighbors claimed the proposed operation would impact their property values, quality of life, and create a potential nuisance. A couple of years later, the judge hearing the case denied an injunction request sought by the neighbors.

In mid-March of this year, the same judge awarded the Knapkes $144,450 to compensate them for lost income and legal fees as Tony and Anita delayed the construction of the hog finishing until 2001 because of the lawsuit. Under Ohio law, plaintiffs who seek an injunction against a defendant are liable for damages if the injunction is not granted.

The Knapkes prevailed for a variety of reasons. First and foremost, their case was built upon scientific evidence and rational thought. Testimony was presented by engineers, soil scientists, odor experts, and water quality specialists. Perhaps most influential was their previous track record of managing a hog farm with no environmental problems or neighbor complaints. Their reputation and past performance did have an impact — in a very positive manner.

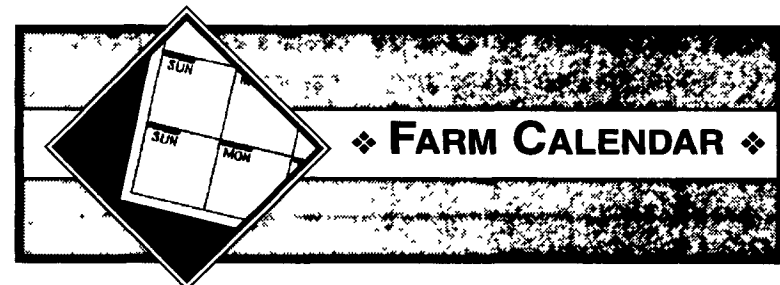

This is indeed a tremendous victory and favorable precedent-setting case for family livestock, dairy, and poultry farmers throughout the Buckeye State, maybe even the nation. When the case first began, it frightened many farmers who planned to either expand or create a new livestock, dairy or poultry farming enterprise. Such a ruling should now instill confidence in family farmers' plans to expand or develop new operations, and demonstrates that local courts are not going to tolerate lawsuits — particularly frivolous ones — that interrupt farm business unless there is a good reason.

Furthermore — and definitely more important — it sends a clear message to people who might file a lawsuit just to intimidate or stop a newly proposed or expanding livestock operation that they better have a case should it make it all the way to the courtroom.

The Ohio Livestock Coalition (OLC) was less than two years old when the Knapkes were sued. Within less than a year, other legal cases came about that the OLC viewed as precedent-setting issues for family livestock, dairy, and poultry farmers. For this very reason, the OLC formed the Family Farm Support Fund, which still exists for the very same purpose.

The ruling doesn't make livestock, dairy or poultry farmers sue-proof. It does, however, show how important it is for farmers to implement and develop best management practices, take advantage of best available technology, follow an approved manure management plan, and do "the right things right." All of these recommendations, and more, should be thought of as a very economical insurance plan.

The risk posed to the bottom line, the environment, and your very existence as a family livestock, dairy or poultry farmer is much too costly if you don't.

Arabian Farms Open Barns: (Turn to Page A21)

Editor:

By the time this editorial is published, we anticipate the U.S. Senate will have given its approval to the new Farm Bill. The Senate was scheduled to vote on the bill on Wednesday or Thursday. Almost everyone anticipates the Senate to approve the bill by a comfortable margin.

However, we are reminded of the Presidential election of 1948 when several papers, including the prestigious Chicago Tribune, declared Gov. Tom Dewey to be elected the President, only to find out the next morning that Harry Truman was still the President.

There is little question in our mind that the Senate will pass

To Protect Your Farm's Groundwater Supply When Filling Your Sprayer

Corn planting is well under way on many Pennsylvania farms. This means that a large percentage of the pesticides that will be applied this year will be used in the next two weeks as farmers apply their corn herbicides. Protecting our farms' groundwater supply from contamination is a high priority.

Research has shown that where groundwater has been found to be contaminated with pesticides, most often the source of contamination is spills from filling the sprayer near the wellhead. Following a few common-sense guidelines when using pesticides will go a long way toward preventing that problem.

First, never fill your sprayer near a well. Choose the water faucet located the farthest from the well for your water supply. If that is not practical, purchase enough hose to be able to fill your sprayer at a safe distance from your well. Avoid spills when mixing and move the location you are mixing periodically. When cleaning the sprayer, rinse it at least three times and spray the rinse water on the field where the product was used. Triple-rinse empty spray containers and add the rinse water to the spray tank.

After properly rinsing the containers, punch holes in them and dispose of them at approved disposal sites. Always read and follow label directions when using pesticides.

To Choose The Proper Time To Apply Glyphosate

John Rowehl, serving with the Capitol Region Agronomy Team, shares the following thoughts on the proper timing of glyphosate products on RoundupReady™ crops.

For soybeans, the range of application timing from the crop perspective is quite wide, from emergence to flowering. From a weed stage or crop competition standpoint, it's more complicated.

Begin with a clean field at planting time, which means that either tillage or a burndown herbicide has killed all the existing weeds. Weed competition should not begin before the crop is even up. For a single application of glyphosate, studies have demonstrated that the odds of avoiding yield loss are best if weeds are controlled by the time they are three to six inches tall.

Obviously this assumes the weeds are ones that glyphosate can control at that height. Certain weeds, such as Eastern black nightshade and annual morning glory, are hard to control if they get too big. Then, a tank mix partner may be called for. Addition of AMS can help in hard water situations.

Generally, if you began with a clean field, a spray application will probably have to be made four to five weeks after planting. With narrow-row beans, this is usually sufficient since the rows are closing up and block out light to later emerging weeds. In dry springs, sometimes the growth of the soybeans is reduced and weeds come up through the crop canopy. Wider rows increase the odds of needing a second application.

In some corn fields, where weed pressure is low, a single application of glyphosate can work. In many fields, this could be risky. Three strategies are suggested to deal with this situation.

between the Jewish Christians and the Greek Christians. Instead of a fellowship, the situation was similar to that of the "Hatfields and McCoys." Down through Christian history, there is a sad and embarrassing stream of enmity between Christians of various persuasions.

Once, while taking a group through Romania, we stopped at an Orthodox Church and watched a wedding in progress. We were followers of the same Christ, but none of us felt or exhibited any sense of family relationship. I reminded our group: "Their ways of worship are so unlike our own, but we need to remember that their Christian ritual and way of life are a lot closer to original Christianity than ours is."

Paul says: "For as many of you were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus" (3:28). Today, Paul would add that there is neither Roman Catholic nor Protestant, Fundamentalists nor Liberals. It may appear that there are many different families of Christian faith, but that is an illusion. There is only one family and there is no use denying it.

The original family started with Abraham. In his time there were no Hebrew people, no Israelite tribes. Those whom we think of as the early Hebrews came together from many different sources and cultures. Because Abraham believed in God, he became the founder of a family that later became a nation and eventually a mighty movement. It was the covenant of God that made them one people. Through Christ, this family of faith was opened to the Gentiles, the non-Jews.

As different as we may worship, live out our lives, and verbalize our beliefs, there is one thing that we all have in common: something leads each of us to recognize God as our

The first is applying an early post-emergence spray of glyphosate tank mixed with a residual herbicide. This fits in fields with primarily annual weeds. Corn is considered to be just a little less tolerant of early season weed competition than soybeans, so application timing in a total post-emergence control strategy is recommended at three to four weeks after planting rather than four to five weeks. This earlier timing increases the odds that a residual herbicide will be necessary to control later, emerging weeds.

Another strategy is to use a pre-emergence herbicide at reduced rate followed by glyphosate postemergence. This may be better if perennial weeds are a big factor in a field. Spraying glyphosate when it's the best time for annual weeds may be too early to do a good job on the perennials, depending on the species. Since we generally see more effective control as perennials get closer to bud and bloom stage, you would use a low rate (½-¾ rate) of a pre-emergence herbicide at planting to keep annual weeds down while giving time for the perennial weeds to grow to a more susceptible stage. This same strategy could be used in soybeans.

A third strategy is to use an early post application of glyphosate followed by a second post application. This provides the option of passing up the second application if it has been dry since the first, and there is little or no second flush of weeds. Weeds coming up five or six weeks after planting generally do not compete with the crop and yields are not reduced. But you can control the second flush if necessary or take another shot at perennial weeds. Size limit on corn with glyphosate is 30 inches or growth stage V8. Consider tank mixing with dicamba to discourage weed resistance.

Quote Of The Week:

"I've yet to find the man, however exalted his station, who did not do better work and put forth greater effort under a spirit of approval than under the spirit of criticism."

— Charles Schwab

Father. "... God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts crying, 'Abba, Father!'" (4:6). It is this recognition that we are his children that leads us to acknowledge that we are brothers and sisters to all of his children, not just some. Ethnic, cultural, social, economic, and gender differences do not obscure that we all have one Father.

Family Quarrels

Paul has great concern for what has happened to their Christian unity since his departure. They are quarreling over the role of Jewish law in the lives of Christians. Christ has set them free to live above and beyond the law, but many of them are slipping back into legalism. The problem is not so much that some Christians are living by the Jewish law, but that they are insisting that all Gentile Christians do the same.

Paul is trying to remind them of the gospel that he preached, but apparently that is stirring opposition. "Have I become your enemy by telling you the truth?" (4:16). That is not so strange, because lots of people react to the truth that way — it makes them angry.

There was a recent TV drama about a young man who discovered that many years previously his father had a child by a woman who was not his mother. Neither child had known of the existence of the other. Then, through the need for a tissue donation by someone with similar DNA, the secret was told and they discovered that they had the same father. This discovery led each to acknowledge that they were not an "only child."

Neither are we.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Background Scripture:

Galatians 3 through 4.

Devotional Reading:

Galatians 4:17-22.

Thomas Carlyle tells of an impoverished widow who appealed to her neighbors for help when she became ill. But they turned deaf ears to her entreaties: what happened to her, they reasoned, was no affair of theirs.

But they were wrong, because the widow was the victim of typhus, which eventually infected the whole village, and 17 of them died along with her. Carlyle comments: "She proved her sisterhood. Her typhus fever killed them. They were brothers even though they denied it."

Some years ago I was reading a book about Egypt and was dismayed to learn that the reason Islam almost totally displaced Christianity there was that the Christianity practiced by the Greeks who had brought it there was afflicted with race and class barriers. Islam, by contrast, offered a brotherhood. Just think how often Christianity has been presented as a faith that keeps many as outsiders.

This is a time of great turmoil in Galatia. There are terrible disputes

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.

May 8, 2002

Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.2920-1.4320 Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3028-1.4212 mostly 1.3351-1.3459.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9550-1.0250; Class III - spot prices - .7500-.9600.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 0, Out

85; last week - In 0, Out 138; last year - In 0, Out 176. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 0, Out 0.

The following are the April 2002 Class and component prices under the Federal Milk Order pricing system: Class II $11.88 (down $0.31 from March), Class III $10.85 (up $0.20); and Class IV $11.09 (down $0.33). The following are product price averages used in computing Class prices: butter $1.1720, NDM $0.8975, cheese $1.2323, and dry whey $0.1948. The Class II butterfat price is $1.2960 and the Class III/IV butterfat price is $1.2890.

Milk production is holding about steady in the Northeast. Some increases are being reported, but gains are rather small as the weather patterns have been cooler than expected for May. In Florida, hot weather has returned and the milk flow is starting to drop off. Florida's fluid milk supplies are still long, but in better balance. The volumes leaving the state have decreased significantly since last week. Bottled milk sales remain slow, but scattered features have boosted demand in some locales. More colleges are recessing for the school year, which does impact bottling schedules. In the Southeast, schools will start recessing in a week or two and bottlers and manufacturers are preparing for this change in operating schedules.

Currently, manufacturing plants are not as busy as they have been, but Northeastern operations are still pretty full since the strike at a large milk-user's plant is still unsettled. (Contacts feel that this strike could be a long one.) Southeastern plants have more "down time" now that Florida isn't shipping as much milk and local milk production is starting to ease lower.

The condensed skim market is mixed and prices are unchanged. However, estimates of April's skim milk prices have some producers thinking that wet solids prices need to move a little higher. Buyers, however, don't share that view, particularly when so much inexpensive NDM is available. Some spot sales for Class II condensed skim were noted this week, which may indicate an improving need from ice cream makers.

The fluid cream market is still weak and supplies are excessive of current Class II needs. Volumes are reported as long, but not quite as burdensome as they have been. Some improved spot demand from ice cream makers was noted, but not up to levels that many suppliers expect for May. Spot prices are generally lower as the butter average price at the CME dropped nearly eight cents last week. Some spot buyers want to purchase based on current market levels. Sour cream and cream cheese output is about steady. However with prices as low as they are, some users are looking to step up production. Bottled cream production and sales are starting to increase as strawberries are showing in the retail stores. Churning activity remains moderate to heavy.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending May 3. RECEIPTS: Auctions: This Week 205,900, Last Week 224,600. Direct: This Week 65,200, Last Week 50,700. Video/Internet: This Week 10,600, Last Week 43,400. TOTAL: This Week 271,700, Last Week 318,700. Old Format: This Week 133,200, Last Week 122,800, Last Year 186,900. This week's auction volume included 48 percent over 600 lbs and 48 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder and stocker cattle sold 1.00-3.00 higher as reported by the USDA's Livestock Market News Service. The full advance was posted on yearlings weighing over 750 lbs, which also made up a large portion of this week's receipts. Demand for feedlot placements returned this week, spurred by last Friday's limit-up CME Futures close. Heavyweight feeders were plentiful with big numbers coming off wheat and showing up at auction markets in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

Further east, offerings were mostly made up of fleshy new-crop calves where demand was surprisingly good. But of course, trading was the most active on thin and lightweight yearlings from 550-750 lbs that buyers were fighting over to turn out on grass. Widely scattered rains have vastly improved pasture conditions in many areas over the last few weeks. Feeder cattle receipts are currently very light in the mountain states and the northern plains where fall calving is unpopular. These ranchers are spending their days riding through pastures of cows and calves, all the while thankful that they don't have to either buy or sell cattle in this spring's volatile market.

Market uncertainty is at an all time high and a series of sharp moves in either direction has been the norm for the last several weeks. Thank goodness for the 1.50 daily limit on the cattle futures or we might see cattlemen all smiles one day, only to hear that they bailed off their feedmill or windmill tower the next. Stability has also eluded the cash market as salebarn managers are having a hard time telling consignors within 10.00 of what they can expect for their cattle. However, the slaughter cattle market has shown consistency consistently lower than that is, and the possibility of fat cattle trading in the 50's is so close it's frightening. The abundance of competing proteins on the market has prevented dressed beef sales from seeing the usual spring spark.

The Rohrer Sales Team

The Rohrer sales team thanks you for your business this season. We were blessed with an excellent forage planting season this year. We have ample supply of all our mixes and varieties of forage seed for last minute plantings. If you are done with your spring pasture seedings, please keep us in mind for this August and September for your fall needs.

The Rohrer Sales Team (from left): Ed Konkle, Earl Rohrer, Paul Cambell, Gary Bender

Ed Konkle is our farm seed dealer salesman. Please call Ed if you are interested in becoming a Rohrer dealer. Earl Rohrer and Gary Bender work in the Rohrer office on phone and counter sales of farm seeds. Paul Cambell is Rohrer's farm seed salesman covering southern Lancaster Co.

We carry a full line of farm seeds, ag chemicals, and lawn and garden seed and supplies.

Our Pasture Perfect® line-up includes the following mixes. Please call us to find out which mix is best for you.

Rohrer's Pasture Perfect® Mixes

Horse Pasture
Mid-Atlantic Grazer
General Purpose

Cover-All is often imitated, but never duplicated,
WE ARE the industry leader!

The Best Because...

Support

Our North American wide dealer network, backed by the best product support team in the industry, is committed to providing service and support long after your building is complete.

Quality

At our 150,000 square foot manufacturing facility, we manufacture all of our own components - steel and fabric. Only Cover-All uses a state-of-the-art molten zinc corrosion process to finish all welds, providing a consistent corrosion barrier.

Strength

Pre-engineered for use across North America, our steel framework is constructed with ViperSteel™, exclusive to Cover-All, and clad with Gatorshield® corrosion barrier.

Solutions

Cover-All offers building solutions - combining quality products with unmatched services in the industry that set us apart from the competition.

Insist on the Best... Insist on Cover-All!

"Our 40 x 80 foot Cover-All is bright enough to let me work until dark without any additional lighting. It has held up in the worst of weather, with no dripping or condensation. The Cover-All was more cost-effective than adding an additional grain bin, and I can store my equipment and farm supplies in it when not in corn. I am now planning on getting a second Cover-All for a calf raising facility."

the Farm Bill. There is added incentive for this to happen as a result of the House passing the Farm Bill last week on a 280-141 vote. The best part is the 280 votes were almost evenly split between the Republicans and the Democrats.

As usual, there are several flaws in the Farm Bill, but, finally, something was done for dairy farmers.

While many people deserve credit for the dairy provisions in the Farm Bill, there are a few people who stand out.

• Sen. Jeffords. You need to give credit to Sen. Jim Jeffords for leaving his party and going Independent. I know many people are irritated at Jeffords, but we would never have gotten the dairy provisions if Sen. Lott and Sen. Lugar were running the show.

• Sen. Leahy. With Jeffords jumping the ship, this meant Sen. Leahy from Vermont was in charge of the dairy provisions in the Senate Farm Bill. Leahy never gave up, both on the Senate floor and as a member of the Conference Committee. Remember, Leahy's first attempt in the Senate was a bill to increase prices to dairy farmers out of the market place.

• Sen. Specter. Even with the efforts of Leahy, they still would not have been successful without the support of several Republican senators such

10,000 Acres Of Adams County Farmland Preserved

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — "The Adams County Agricultural Land Preservation Board is delighted to announce a celebration in recognition of preserving more than 10,000 acres of farmland," said Ellen Dayhoff, director.

The celebration will be at the Knud Hermansen and Sons Farm, 6978 Carlisle Pike, Sunday, May 19, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

During the event, all owners of preserved farms within Adams County will be presented with a permanent sign to place at the entrance to their farm.

The Hermansen farm is a family-run crop farm, operated by Knud and his sons Kai and Kristian. The farm is located on Rt. 94, nine miles north of Rt. 30. From Route 15, the farm is about 2.5 miles south on Rt. 94. Signs will be posted.

For more information, call the ACALPB office at (717) 337-5859.

as our own Sen. Arlen Specter. When it comes to dairy farm pricing, Sen. Specter is always with us.

• Rep. Holden. Tim Holden (Pennsylvania) is a member of the House Ag Committee and was a member of the Conference Committee. He did a great service to the dairy farmers.

• Rep. Sherwood. Ever since Jim Jeffords left the House of Representatives and became a member of the Senate, it just wasn't the same in the House without him battling for the dairy farmers. However, there is no question we have a new advocate for dairy farmers in the House. It is our own Rep. Don Sherwood. Since arriving in Washington, D.C., Sherwood has stood up for dairy farmers many times.

In the fall of 2001 — Sherwood made heroic efforts to have dairy compacts become part of the Farm Bill. The compact did not become part of the Farm Bill because the leadership referred the proposed compact legislation to the Judiciary Committee where it got buried. Then, Sherwood supported Rep. Bernie Sanders' legislation to help dairy farmers (which lost by only 27 votes).

When the Senate passed the Farm Bill with the dairy provisions, Sherwood seized the opportunity and circulated a letter to various House members in support of the Senate's dairy provisions. All representatives signed the letter that was sent to the Conference Committee. I am glad that Pro-Ag members traveled to Washington, D.C. in support of Rep. Sherwood's efforts and helped to obtain a few names.

Certainly Sherwood's letter played an important role in obtaining the dairy provisions in the Farm Bill. The dairy provisions are not what we wanted — the money should come from the marketplace. But maybe we have something to build on for the future.

Many people deserve a thank you, but we will never forget the efforts of Sen. Jeffords, Sen. Leahy, Sen. Specter, Rep. Sanders, Rep. Holden, and especially our own representative and neighbor, Don Sherwood.

Legislators Announce $224,000 For Experiment Station

GENEVA, N.Y. — Continuing their efforts in support of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, Senators Mike Nozzolio and Randy Kuhl, and Assemblyman Bill Magee announced that they have secured $224,000 in state assistance for the Experiment Station. The funding was secured as part of last year's state budget.

"Last year, we achieved a major victory in winning approval for the establishment of the Ag Tech Park at the Experiment Station, which will greatly enhance Geneva's national standing and reputation as a major research center in the development of new technologies and help create new jobs in the Finger Lakes region," said Nozzolio.

Assemblyman Bill Magee, chair of the Assembly Agriculture Committee, said, "This investment in the Geneva Station is a real shot in the arm for the Finger Lakes, definitely, but also for agriculture across New York State."

Jim Hunter, director of the Experiment Station said, "Without these funds, the station would not be able to continue upgrading equipment needed to carry out field and laboratory research. Modern instruments and machines are essential for station scientists to help New York food and agriculture industries, and to retain and attract businesses based on the plant and food sciences."

The funding secured by the legislators will be used to assist the Experiment Station with upgrading equipment and machinery and to support the wine production training facility. The funding brings New York State's investment in the Experiment Station to more than $1.5 million since 1995.

Livestock Evaluation Center

Livestock Stakeholders

One of my goals when I became Secretary of Agriculture was to build a new Livestock Evaluation Center. And, I made the new PDA facility to be a leader in the nation. Good News! It is time for the Ground-breaking Ceremony!

May 24, 2002. 11:00 AM. RT. 45 approximately 2 miles south of Pine Grove Mills (Left Side). RT. 45 approximately 1 mile north of Ag Progress Days (Right Side). Very easy to find. Look for the Tent.

While the PA Department of Agriculture operates the Livestock Evaluation Center and its programs, we appreciate the professional association and friendship we share with Penn State and the livestock organizations. In addition to the test performances PDA conducts as a service to the livestock industry, the new Livestock Evaluation Center offers the opportunity for other research, student instruction, industry outreach, and professional collaboration. The new Livestock Evaluation Center will greatly enhance our opportunity to work together in pursuit of livestock excellence.

Please make every effort to attend the Ground-breaking Ceremony. Bring your livestock friends.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitis problems. Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshening. Less feet problems and less stress.

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

Angus Photos Offered Online

SAINT JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus Productions Inc. (API) now offers Angus enthusiasts the opportunity to buy scans and color show photographs online. AngusPhotos.com is the newest in a line of services offered by API.

AngusPhotos.com is an online service that allows people to buy scans of Angus bulls and females that they can use in the development of promotional items for a farm or ranch. Photos can be viewed by entering either an animal name or registration number. All scans of the animal are then shown. Scans are 4x6 and 300 dots per inch (dpi). They are $2 per scan.

Exhibitors and owners of animals shown at Super Point Roll of Victory (ROV) shows and the National Junior Angus Show can now see their proofs and purchase pictures online. All proofs taken of an animal can be viewed. Scans of the show animals are $5 each. Prints are available to purchase. Prices include range from $5 for a 4x6 to $30 for a 12x16. Shipping and handling charges vary depending on delivery method and region sent to.

For more information about the service or to purchase photographs, log onto www.AngusPhotos.com or call (816) 383-5200.

Growing Greener Receives National Award

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Mark Schweiker recently accepted the prestigious Innovations Award from the Council of State Governments (CSG) for Pennsylvania's landmark Growing Greener program during an event in the Capitol Rotunda to kick off Watershed Awareness Month in May.

The Growing Greener program was chosen as one of CSG's eight Innovation Award winners out of more than 350 award applications nationwide.

"We are proud of the way Growing Greener has inspired and enabled Pennsylvanians to take an active role in restoring and improving the natural beauty of watersheds across the state," Schweiker said.

"More than 11,000 people are engaged in water-quality monitoring across Pennsylvania. The commonwealth has dedicated significant resources to this effort through the Growing Greener Program — the largest program in the nation to promote and support the formation of community-based organizations to restore and protect their local watersheds.

"It is an honor to share this award with the individuals, organizations, businesses and volunteers whose environmental stewardship is producing great educational and environmental benefits — watershed by watershed — for all Pennsylvanians."

CSG's Innovations Awards Program, established in 1986 to bring greater visibility to exemplary state programs and policies, is the only comprehensive, national awards program that focuses exclusively on state programs and policies. Winners are selected based on evaluations by state government leaders.

Said Rep. Art Hershey (R-Chester/Lancaster), chairman of the House Environmental Resources and Energy Committee, "Growing Greener addresses a wide range of environmental concerns in Pennsylvania, and I'm glad to see that the program is getting the recognition it deserves."

Gov. Schweiker also proclaimed May as Watershed Awareness Month to encourage Pennsylvanians to learn more about their local watersheds and participate in environmental activities to enhance their natural surroundings and their communities.

The theme for the month is "The Watershed Connection: Land, Water and You!" It emphasizes the important relationship between citizens and their environment.

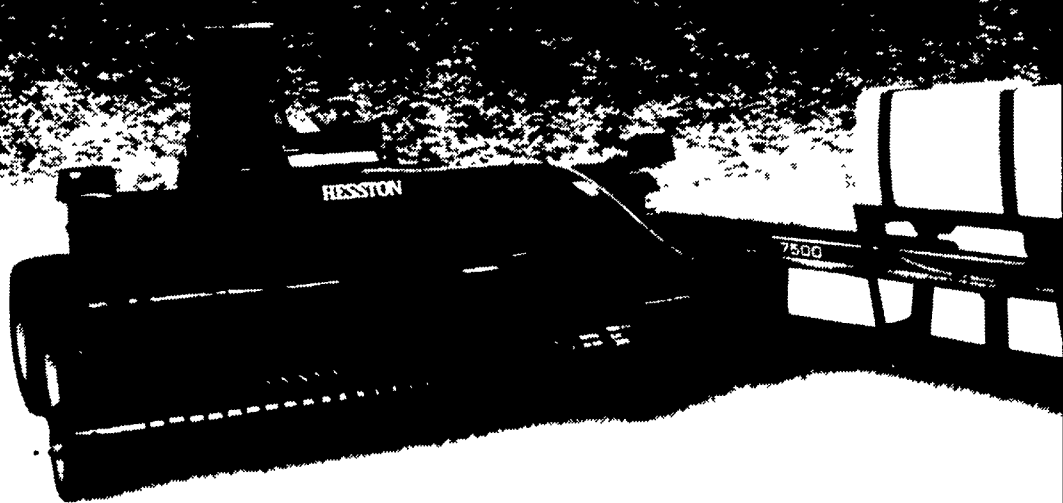

"Whatever we do to the air and the land we do to the water," said Ed Wytovich, president of the Catawissa Creek Restoration Association in Schuylkill County.

The award-winning Growing Greener Program has provided resources to promote and support the formation of community-based watershed restoration efforts including the creation of more than 100 new watershed groups; the restoration of 4,200 acres of wetlands; the buffering of 188 miles of streams; the reclamation of 2,000 acres of abandoned mines; and the development of dozens of education and outreach projects.

In addition, there are 153 watershed assessments in progress now that will lead to the development of new projects.

The 29th annual festival, conducted Saturday and Sunday at the Howard County Fairgrounds and sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association, drew thousands of visitors who came to show, buy, or sell livestock, purchase equipment, get wool supplies, or simply see the wares of 250 vendors from across the country in the juried show.

Festival-goers could purchase anything from a craft to a lamb to brightly-colored wool to clippers to a spinning wheel. Rugs, slippers, hats, or sweaters are just a few of the wool-based offerings from vendors.

On Sunday's sheep to shawl contest, employees and volunteers at Mount Vernon, historic site of George Washington's home, participated in the contest as the "Tidewater Treadlers." The team used wool from the rare Hog Island sheep breed. Several members of the group also do spinning and weaving demonstrations during special occasions at Mount Vernon.

"Our sheep is a rare breed of sheep so we use their wool to promote the breed," said Sandy Newton. According to Julie George, Manasses, who also participated on the Mount Vernon team, the Hog Island sheep produce a medium-grade, very utilitarian wool that takes dye well and has a fine crimp. The wool is used for blankets, outerwear, and rugs.

Among the knitting suppliers and wool-based craft vendors, Yarns International of Bethesda, Maryland, and a wool broker of Lerwick, Shetland, collaborated to produce "Shetland 2000," a venture to provide affordable, naturally-colored yarn from pure Shetland sheep.

On the Shetland Islands, explained Yarns International representative Bonnie Hassler, the sheep are grazed outdoors, so they grow a thick undercoat. The yarn that Yarns International markets is made from this soft undercoat and comes in nine undyed neutral colors.

According to Hassler, the colored sheep are endangered, as the white sheep became more popular because the wool could be dyed to bright colors. "We want to keep them (the naturally-colored sheep) from going extinct by creating a market for their yarn," she said.

Betty Lindsay, also from Yarns International, enjoys the festival not only for the business and promotion they accomplish but also because of the atmosphere and friendly people that participate.

"Of all the shows we do, this one has the most interesting people doing the most interesting things," she said. "Everyone is doing a totally different line of work than we do, but we're all connected," she said.

Sheep shearing demonstrations were conducted by David Todd, a native Scotsman and full-time professional shearer living in Maryland. Todd has sheared thousands of sheep in seven countries around the world.

A key to shearing sheep is to minimize handling and stress. In addition to careful handling, the sheep must be dry, as the shearer is working with electric tools. Also, the lanolin in the wool will make a wet sheep slippery and create a potentially dangerous situation. Packing wet wool is another consideration, as it has been known to spontaneously combust.

Most sheep shearers charge a travel and setup fee and $4 per head of sheep sheared.

Todd sheared Suffolk crosses during the demonstration. Suffolks may yield four to five pounds of wool, however other sheep breeds can yield 8-20 pounds of wool per shearing.

Todd dropped each sheep on the fleshy part of its hindquarters, where there are fewer nerve endings and more meat, so the animal is not uncomfortable and struggling

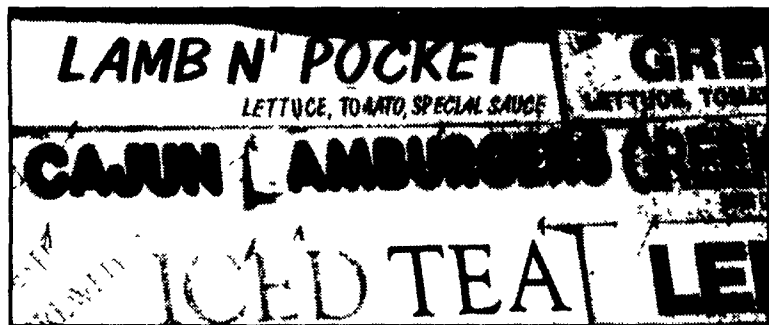

(Turn to Page A27)

Wool supplies in every shade were in abundance from some of the 250 vendors from across the country.

Festival-goers investigate the variety of wool set out for the fleece show and sale. The fleeces were available, after judging, to the spinners.

Hamburgers gave way to lamburgers at the event.

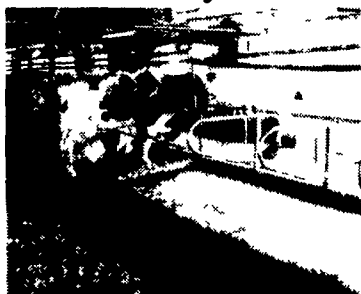

Border collies herd Katahdin sheep during several demonstrations throughout the weekend.

during the shearing process. He began shearing with the brisket and moved onto the belly wool.

This wool is discarded as it is not high quality, since the sheep lie on it throughout the year. Once a sheep is on its back it is passive because its two methods of defense — to flock or to flee — are removed.

The warmer days may create an easier shearing situation as the lanolin has begun to flow and creates easier cutting.

Todd asks that the sheep do not eat 12 or more hours before they are sheared, as the animals are more comfortable sitting on their hindquarters when they are not full. Also when they are full they become too heavy to handle easily.

The working sheepdog demonstrations, well-attended events, featured not only Border Collies but also Katahdin sheep, which work well with the dogs, are heat hardy and have good endurance, according to announcer Nancy Cox Starkey, Mount Airy, Maryland.

The primary goal of a sheep dog is to "move the sheep in a calm, quiet manner," said Starkey. The dogs use "subtle intimidation . . . to require the sheep to move." The sheep should be respectful but not fearful of the dogs.

Nathan Mooney, Carlisle, Mark Soper, Woodbine, Maryland, Ed Moore, Bowie, Maryland, and Steve Riddle, Illinois, each demonstrated the close relationship between trainer and dog, as the collies crept forward, ran clockwise or counter-clockwise, or dropped to the ground — the basic commands. Each command could be given both verbally or with a whistle.

The dogs and their owners demonstrated a figure eight, "shedding" the sheep (to split the flock into two groups and hold them apart), herding the sheep into a pen or gathering or driving away the sheep.

A young, one-year-old untrained dog was brought out to demonstrate how the animals are trained.

"We don't want to load too many commands on the dog," said Starkey. "We don't want them to be mechanical." Owners instead bring out the natural abilities of the animal by letting the dog at first run with the sheep at will, then letting the pup settle into its natural working pattern before the dog is taught commands.

In addition to the working sheepdog and shearing demonstrations, the festival also featured a queen contest, feeder lamb show and sale, club lamb jackpot, lamb cook-off, shepherds lead contest, skein and garment competition, and fine arts and photography competition.

Workshops included spinning designer yarns, designing a cable knit sweater, and carding, dying, and felting. Shepherds workshops covered sheep breeds, basic shepherding, sheep cheese making, value-added ventures, cooking lamb, and scrapie eradication. Llamas and alpacas were presented at the show to demonstrate their contribution to the wool industry.

AVA Offers Video

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — To help the public better understand the truth about veal production, the American Veal Association (AVA) recently produced a seven-minute video depicting life on a veal farm.

Titled "Good Life . . .," the video garnered an Award of Excellence in the 2002 video competition of The Videographer Awards in Arlington, Texas on April 29. The Videographer Awards is a national awards program directed by communications professionals to honor talented individuals and companies in the video production field.

The video takes the viewer inside an AVA board member's barn; audio voiceover emphasizes the association's Veal Quality Assurance program and the importance of a veterinarian relationship to a veal grower's business. To receive a copy of the video, in VHS or CD-Rom format, contact the AVA office at (717) 985-9125.

Penn State Cooperative Extension Capitol Region Dairy Team

WITH THE THERMOMETER?
Dr. Arlen Mills
Extension Veterinarian
Capitol Region

As the weather begins to warm up, producers often notice that the somatic cell count (SCC) and the number of mastitis cases begin to rise. If we stop and consider what factors may contribute to these increases, this should not be a surprise.

Somatic cells in the milk are cells that are there because of some stress or inflammation in the udder. Many of the stresses we see associated with the hot summer weather can cause an increase in SCC numbers. This may be heat stress by itself or rumen acidosis, which is more prevalent in the summer.

Acidosis becomes more of a problem in the summer because of the changes in eating habits of the cow in hot weather and because of the changes we make to the summer ration in an attempt to keep DMI (dry matter intake) up.

Make plans now rather than waiting until the heat is upon us. Install fans to keep cows cool, and make sure space is adequate so that cows are not crowded together. Holding areas are often a farm "hot spot," so make sure these areas have first priority when it comes to cooling cows.

The other major factor contributing to this summer increase in SCC and mastitis is an increase in bacteria numbers. If we remember what bacteria need to live and thrive, it's easy to see why we may expect them to cause more problems in the summer. Bacteria need food, water, and heat to multiply and flourish. If we can remove any one of these three necessities of life for the bacteria, we can keep them in check. If all three factors are present in ample supply, bacteria numbers will escalate to high numbers.

This large bacteria population provides many more chances to attack and perhaps infect the udder tissue. The resulting SCC is a body count of those cells that have been sacrificed in the attempt to ward off or destroy the attacking bacteria.

So to lower the bacterial numbers, let's remove one of the necessities of life for the bacteria. We can't do much about the temperature. If we could cool it off to slow down the growth of bacteria, we'd all be happier, but that's out of our control.

Perhaps instead we can limit the food available for the bacteria. Bacteria use any organic material as potential food. This may include some bedding materials, manure, or milk. The main advantage of using sand in freestalls is that the clean sand has no organic matter that the bacteria may use as food. Sand bedding can become a place where bacteria can live and multiply if the sand becomes contaminated with organic matter, usually manure.

The other option is to remove moisture from the environment of the bacteria. Without water, the bacteria will die. Keeping stalls dry is the number one defense against bacteria. Make sure that stalls have been properly constructed to limit stall contamination with urine or manure. Time spent on a daily basis to groom and check stall areas is time well spent. Pay special attention to the back half of the stall where the udder makes contact with the stall surface. Clean, dry stalls and cows should be a priority on every dairy.

This also may be a time to review your milking procedures to make sure these are at their best to protect those teat ends from all those hungry bacteria. Are you cleaning and dipping the whole teat before attachment of the milker? Are you using an effective teat dip on all teats as the milker is removed? Wearing milking gloves may decrease the number of bacteria carried from cow to cow while milking. This is a great time to do a milking procedure "checkup."

Something else that increases in the summer is fly number. Flies may spread mastitis organisms from cow to cow or from the environment. Flies have been identified as a common cause of heifer mastitis. Fly control will pay dividends both in cow comfort and less risk for mastitis.

Plan ahead. Take steps now to prevent your herd SCC and mastitis numbers from rising with the thermometer.

Pa. Grange Takes On Water Issues

Group Pushes For Wellwater, Resource Initiatives

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Water issues are chief concerns facing Pennsylvania farmers, according to a speaker at a recent Grange Day legislative luncheon here.

"In my opinion, (water) is probably the most important issue we have before us," said George Wolff of George B. Wolff Associates, a public affairs agency based in Harrisburg.

For the past year, the Pennsylvania State Grange has been working with lawmakers to help establish wellwater standards in Pennsylvania.

Wolff focused on the problem of low groundwater levels across the state. Keeping the water table replenished depends on various factors, he said.

While open spaces are necessary for allowing precipitation to enter the soil and recharge the groundwater supply, good practices on the land are also crucial, he pointed out.

"More open space does not necessarily guarantee more groundwater recharge," he said. Practices that help groundwater recharge include standard conservation measures such as contour-strip farming and conservation tillage. Wolff also noted some crops that are especially good at promoting soil uptake of water.

"Your plants on the soil can be a tremendous water recharger," he said.

Warm season grasses and sweet clover are examples of plants that facilitate water entering the soil and the water table.

Sweet clover is known for its extensive root system that helps create porous soil with better water-absorbing capacity, Wolff said. Warm season grasses tend to form arches above the soil in the wintertime. This structure helps to prevent runoff by moderating the force of precipitation at ground level.

The water supply in wells is strongly linked to the management of water above ground, according to Wolff.

"You can't separate wellwater legislation from general resource water legislation," he said.

In addition to the Grange backing state standards for well construction, Wolff said water legislation should also include "some kind of credit for (maintaining) open spaces and practices that stimulate groundwater recharge."

Although Pennsylvania has regulations in place to prevent erosion from stormwater, Wolff cited the large quantity of water runoff from the roofs of industrial buildings that is added to the stormwater flow. Wolff believes in the need to develop techniques to capture this runoff and stormwater and use it to recharge the groundwater supply.

George Wolff spoke on the need for better wellwater and water resource management at a recent legislative luncheon hosted by the Pennsylvania State Grange. Seated is Grangemaster Bill Steel.

Pennsylvania Grangemaster Bill Steel backed up Wolff in stressing the urgency of water issues in Pennsylvania.

"We've been really seriously talking about water legislation in this state for about a year," Steel said.

The Grange recently participated in a Pennsylvania Senate Environmental Resources and Energy Committee hearing on water resources.

Wellwater legislation, sponsored by Rep. Mary Ann Dailey (R-Montgomery), would require well drillers to become registered with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and submit water sample analyses to well owners and to the DEP so that users can be assured of clean water from their wells.

According to Wolff and Brenda Shambaugh, Pennsylvania Grange legislative director, the bill does not give the DEP authority to charge fees for wellwater use, place meters in water wells, or impose quotas on wellwater use. Some citizens had expressed concerns on these issues.

Shambaugh reported on other state initiatives supported by the Grange:

These include:

- A Senate bill that would offer farmers financial protection from "nuisance" lawsuits brought against them by municipalities;
- A House bill that would include farms in a small business loan program;
- A Senate bill that requires "common-sense" sanitation measures for animal exhibitions; and
- A House bill that would offer inheritance tax exemption.

The Grange also supports additional funding for agricultural research, extension and youth programs and for farmland preservation in the state.

Others attending the luncheon included Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes, Jr.; Deputy Secretaries of Agriculture Christian Herr and Russell Redding; Pennsylvania Attorney General Mike Fisher; and various members of the Pennsylvania House and Senate.

The Grange is a nonprofit organization that advocates for farmers and rural communities across the state. It has about 25,000 members in Pennsylvania.

PASA To Sponsor Two Apple Grower Workshops

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) in cooperation with apple grower Michael Phillips is sponsoring two all-day apple growers intensive workshops on Thursday, May 16, and Friday, May 17.

The May 16 workshop will be conducted the Rodale Institute in Emmaus, Pennsylvania-Berks County from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The May 17 workshop will be conducted at Kretschmann Farm in Rochester, Pennsylvania-Beaver County from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Both workshop programs will be the same. This intensive workshop will feature low-input and organic management techniques for managing a profitable and fun orchard.

Michael Phillips is the owner and operator of Lost Nation Orchard in northern New Hampshire. The Phillips' diversified mountain farm includes medicinal herbs as well.

Phillips has considerable orchard management and teaching experience. He is the author of the "The Apple Grower: A Guide for the Organic Orchardist" published in 1988 by Chelsea Green. Some insightful previews of his teaching perspectives can be found at his Website — www.herbsandapples.com, as well as an opportunity to obtain his book prior to the day of the workshop.

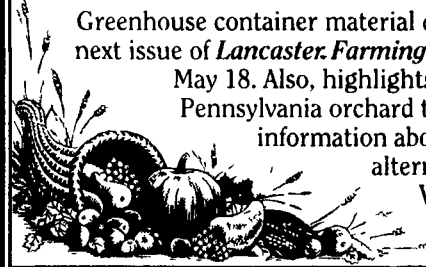

Phillips will lead participants in a walk through the orchard season. He will demonstrate renewal pruning and training techniques first-hand, discuss the key role understory management and soil health plays in an organic orchard, and look at varietal and rootstock choices. He will also identify insect and disease dynamics from a holistic perspective aimed at achieving maximum diversity.

To register for the workshop call Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture at (814) 349-9856, ext. 6. Registrations must be made by May 15. The cost to attend the workshop is $14, which includes lunch. Payment by cash, personal check, or credit card is required at registration desk on day of event.

Greenhouse container material quality will be the focus of the next issue of Lancaster Farming's Grower & Marketer section, May 18. Also, highlights of a recent south central Pennsylvania orchard tour are included, along with information about designing wine labels, an alternative farmers exchange in Virginia, regional news, and a farm calendar of events.

Campaigns Analyzed At FARMER Banquet

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Almost 200 Farm Bureau members gathered for a banquet as part of the political action committee Farmers Allied for Responsive More Effective Representation (FARMER).

Operated by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau since 1981, the organization pools the voluntary finances of members (no dues money is used) and distributes the money among candidates.

The committee conducts research, which includes seeking the opinion of farm bureaus and FARMER members, and reviews such items as the candidates' voting records on agricultural issues. The committee makes decisions on a bipartisan basis.

According to Marlene Reese, chair of the FARMER committee, the organization has supported more than 600 successful bids for state House and Senate seats. Plans will soon be finalized for the 2002 election as committee member decide where the endorsements will lie, according to Reese.

Almost 800 Farm Bureau

members contributed to the political efforts of FARMER last year, she said. This September a solicitation letter will accompany dues notices to Farm Bureau members.

FARMER is controlled by a bipartisan committee of nine members.

The featured speaker of the evening was G. Terry Madonna, political science professor at Millersville University. Madonna has spent more than 25 years writing and teaching about American presidents and American political parties.

"I think this gubernatorial election is starting out as one of the most exciting in modern Pennsylvania history," he said.

The election, he said, is the "single most important election in 40 years."

From the 1960s to the 1990s, either party was capable of winning statewide offices and court positions. However the voting trends across Pennsylvania swung to the Republican party in '90s. "This is the eleventh hour for the state Democrats," he said.

Voters consider issues, leadership, and personality (although not equally weighted) when they make voting decisions.

During this campaign Robert Casey, Jr., has focused on "issues affecting people that need the government — people that were left behind in this economy." Casey has emphasized his positions on children's programs, labor issues, senior citizen programs, and prescription drugs.

Ed Rendell tends toward the entrepreneurial side, the business/urban Democrats, and focuses on job creation and job growth. "They are literally talking to different audiences within their own party," said Madonna.

With Casey's position on economics, combined with the candidate's pro-life and other stances on cultural issues, Madonna considers Casey an "economic liberal and a cultural conservative."

Rendell, on the other hand, who advocates gun control and is pro-choice, is the economic conservative and cultural liberal.

"Never, never have two candidates been in the same party and have such different vantage points."

In the leadership category, Rendell, with years of experience as Philadelphia's governor, has the edge.

However considering the personality aspect, polled voters, who look for trust, integrity, and likability in a candidate, are saying that they trust Casey more than Rendell.

The bottom line, then, is "What messages do voters really care about?"

Rendell, with his outgoing, upbeat, ebullient personality can tout his experience as Philadelphia mayor while Casey, genteel, reserved, cautious and careful, had helped his father during

Robert P. Casey's own campaigns and perhaps has more voter trust.

In the end, voter turnout will determine the winner, as Rendell will probably win the suburban counties. In Pittsburgh, the battleground, both candidates are running even. Although Pittsburgh is a smaller city, more voters turn out so the actual count is about the same number of votes for the two cities.

"At no time have I seen two candidates so different in so many ways," he said.

EPA Awards $4.7 Million To Support Pa.'s Drinking Water Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has approved a $4,721,967 grant to support Pennsylvania's public water system supervision program, which helps protect drinking water supplies. Pennsylvania will contribute $1,245,131 in matching funds.

"This funding supports the state in many ways, but the citizens of Pennsylvania will benefit the most by having safe water to drink and by having information about the quality of their drinking water at their fingertips," said Thomas C. Voltaggio, deputy regional administrator for EPA's mid-Atlantic region.

EPA's funding will help public water systems in Pennsylvania comply with the Safe Drinking Water Act by providing technical assistance, operator training, field surveillance, laboratory certification, and information to water system owners about new regulatory responsibilities.

The EPA funds are awarded annually to states that assume the primary enforcement authority to help ensure the nation's drinking waters remain safe. The grant goes directly to the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection, which manages the program, and initiates enforcement actions against public water suppliers who fail to comply with state and federal regulations.

There are more than 10,000 public water systems in Pennsylvania, serving more than 11.7 million people.

Add Fat To Beef Cow Ration To Enhance Reproduction

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Adding fat to the food ration of beef cows will likely enhance reproduction, advises a beef specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Several studies have shown that added fat will increase the number of follicles that will be formed on the ovary of the cow, according to associate professor John Comerford, who points out that fat will increase the efficiency of rumen fermentation in producing energy for the cow.

"While not a silver bullet that will replace good overall management, evidence suggests supplementing food with fat for the breeding herd may have some economic benefits," he says. "There is considerable evidence now to suggest that adding limited fat supplements — particularly polyunsaturated fats from plant sources — to the diet of beef cows prior to breeding will enhance reproduction by reducing the anestrus period after calving."

Plant-derived oils have been shown to increase insulin and growth hormone levels, and LH secretion was increased with fat supplementation, according to Comerford. He points out that the optimum level of supplementation has not been determined.

"One study has shown two pounds of raw cottonseeds per day fed for 60 days, beginning 30 days before breeding season started, increased the number of cows cycling at the beginning of the breeding season by 18 percent," he says. "Using this level as a guide, the economics of this supplementation for Pennsylvania and the Mid-Atlantic region remains to be examined."

Whole soybeans can be used as the example since they will be more readily available in this region. When priced at $4 per bushel, this results in a total cost of $80 for feeding 10 cows for 60 days at two pounds per day.

"The beans are an excellent source of energy and protein for the cows, and a conservative estimate (based on a hay price of $80 per ton) results in a substitution value of about $50 worth of hay," says Comerford. "Cows bred earlier in the breeding season result in calves being older and heavier at weaning the next year. If we actually wean nine calves from the 10 cows, we would need to increase weaning weight by about four pounds per calf to recover the rest of the cost of feeding the beans. This would be an average of about two to three days older when sold at weaning because of the supplementation."

Comerford believes supplementing feed with soybeans adds an excellent source of energy and protein. "Young cows can be expected to improve body condition and rebreeding rate," he says. "Cows with a higher potential for milk production may be able to produce more milk."

It will be important to watch the cost of the supplement, Comerford cautions. Farmers should optimize the amount that is fed, and remember there are a lot of issues related to reproduction; general nutrition, herd health, bull fertility, weather and several other factors.

Added fat often has been used in the diet of cattle to increase the energy density of the ration because fat has a higher number of calories per unit of weight than carbohydrates and sugars. This was particularly important for feedlot animals where above-average growth rates were expected, and for dairy cows with high levels of milk production. Excessive use of fat in the diet (more than seven percent of the dry matter intake) can be detrimental because it may be unpalatable and cause the loss of rumen microbes.

There are several sources of fat available for use in cattle diets. Other sources include fishmeal, the oilseeds such as whole soybeans and whole cottonseeds, and food byproducts such as bakery wastes. The latter three often are available in this region.

Adding fat to feed will not influence the number of follicles that are present in cows that have been "superovulated" and used in embryo transfers, Comerford notes.

Change Announced In Northeast SARE Grant Application Process

BURLINGTON, Vt. — The Northeast Region Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) program, which funds research and education grants and professional development grants, has made a change in the grant application process. For the 2003 funding cycle, SARE will require a pre-proposal — a one-page description of performance targets and project design — for early review. Projects consistent with the SARE outcome statement will be identified. From these, SARE reviewers will select pre-proposals to proceed with a full application. Preproposals for 2003 grants must be post-marked on or before June 14.

This new process allows applicants to have proposal concepts reviewed before developing a detailed application, and also gives reviewers an opportunity to focus on projects that most advance the SARE mission. This change does not affect the Northeast SARE Farmer/Grower grant program, but does affect the Professional Development and the Research and Education grant programs.

Preproposal materials will be posted to the Northeast SARE Website at www.uvm.edu/ in mid-April, and can be requested in hard copy by calling (802) 656-0471.

ASA Urges Approval Of Trade Bill

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) has called on the U.S. Senate to take action on legislation granting the President Trade Promotion Authority (TPA). This announcement follows an earlier request by President Bush that the Senate take action on legislation granting his Administration TPA.

TPA allows the President to negotiate favorable trade agreements and then present them to Congress for a simple up-or-down vote. Every President since President Carter has had this authority, but it expired in 1994 and hasn't been reauthorized. Last December, the U.S. House of Representatives passed H.R. 3005, legislation granting the President TPA. Shortly thereafter, the U.S. Senate Finance Committee voted 18 to 3 in favor of TPA. The fate of this critically important legislation now rests in the Senate.

"It's now time for the full Senate to show their support for the American farmer by voting in favor of TPA legislation," stated ASA President Bart Ruth from his farm in Rising City, Nebraska.

This was the message of an American Oilseed Coalition (AOC) letter that was delivered to the Senate. The AOC, of which ASA is a member, represents the interests of oilseed growers across the country. "In the last four months, TPA has been awaiting action as the Senate has focused on other important legislation. The time has come, however, for the Senate to move ahead with TPA," reads the letter.

Ninety-six percent of the world's population lives outside the U.S. With U.S. soybean farmers dependent on export markets for one out of every two rows produced, the prosperity of U.S. Soybean farmers is linked closely to enhanced economic growth worldwide and increased market access. However, tariffs on soybeans and soybean products in a number of countries are very high and need to be reduced if U.S. growers are to remain competitive.

The most effective way of reducing these types of trade barriers is through multilateral negotiations in the World Trade Organization (WTO) as well as bilateral trade agreements. However, in the absence of TPA, other countries are refusing to negotiate final agreements with the U.S. because they would be subject to further changes by Congress. In fact, the U.S. is a part of only two of the more than 130 preferential trade agreements that are currently in force throughout the world.

Agronomist Advises Conservative Approach To Growing Grains During Drought

CUMBERLAND, Md. — This year's drought is already having an impact on Maryland farmers.

At best, it means having to change the way they do business, says Dr. Bob Kratochvil, Extension agronomic crop production specialist with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension.

Because fields don't contain the subsoil moisture to help carry a crop through the season, Kratochvil recommends reducing plant populations of corn raised for grain to approximately 20,000-24,000 plants per acre.

He also believes that the plant population goals for silage be reduced this year as well to 28,000-30,000 plants per acre.

When it comes to nitrogen (N) applications, Kratochvil advocates a conservative approach—about 100 lb/a of N. "If we get the rainfall when we need it, the crop will still do well even at the reduced rate, and if we have a wet April and May, producers who backed off on early nitrogen applications will be able to apply the shortage when they side-dress," he says. "If we don't have a wet spring, at least the input costs will have been reduced."

For soybeans, Kratochvil feels pretty comfortable telling producers that a 20 percent reduction from the currently recommended seeding rates of 175,000 viable seeds/acre for full-season and 225,000 viable seeds/acre for double-crop beans will not cause reductions in yield.

"Soybeans are fairly resilient in that they can adjust to a broad range of populations quite easily," he notes. "They also seem to withstand drought better than corn. If I were a farmer and had some fields that were particularly susceptible to drought, I would plant soybeans in those fields instead of corn." Kratochvil suggests that producers who have not already killed cover crops do so now to preserve as much moisture in the soil as possible for corn or soybeans.

And finally, he says, farmers who have irrigation should know how good their water source is. Ground water recharge has not occurred this winter and many wells were dropping rapidly last summer. Producers don't want to find out they don't have any water when they turn the pumps on.

AVA Announces New Board Of Directors

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The American Veal Association (AVA) recently appointed directors for 2002-2003 program year. Board members, committee members, and state delegates gathered in Green Bay, Wis., in conjunction with the Wisconsin Veal Growers Convention this spring.

Art Henderlong, president of Schils America, Susquehanna, was elected to serve as president of the AVA for the upcoming program year. Henderlong hails from Wooster, Ohio, and serves as a feed industry representative on the board.

The president-elect is Dick Dennis, also from the feed industry, who resides in Oswego, Ill. Dennis is president of Veal Tech Inc. Frank Trapp of Watertown, Wis. will serve as secretary of the AVA. He and his wife, Jammie, are veal producers. Trapp also serves on the Veal Quality Assurance committee of the AVA.

Serving as treasurer for the upcoming program year will be Dennis Snyder from Westfield. Dennis, a veal producer from northern Pennsylvania, is also chairman of the National Cattle-men's Beef Association/Cattlemen's Beef Board Joint Veal Committee.

The following producers and industry representatives will also serve as directors this year: John Landin, past president; Delmer Yoder, eastern region producer; Daryl Heisey, eastern region producer; Terry Harrell, western region producer; Ray Krones; packing industry representative; Dan O'Reilly, packing industry representative; Dr. Dan Catherman, feed industry representative; Clatyon Harnish, at-large producer; and Dr. Jeff Pyle, industry floater representative.

Evaluation Center Groundbreaking May 24

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — A groundbreaking ceremony for the new Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) Livestock Evaluation Center is scheduled Friday, May 24, at 11 a.m. off Rt. 45 about a mile north of the Ag Progress Days site, two miles south of Pine Grove Mills.

According to Sam Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, "One of my goals when I became secretary of agriculture was to build a new Livestock Evaluation Center.

And I wanted the new PDA facility to be a leader in the nation. Good news! It is time for the groundbreaking ceremony."

PDA operates the center and its programs. Hayes noted, "We appreciate the professional association and friendship we share with Penn State and the livestock organizations."

The new center offers opportunity for research, student instruction, industry outreach, and professional collaboration.

Gov. Schweiker Honors PFB For Protecting Water Resources

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Gov. Mark Schweiker and DEP Secretary David E. Hess recognized Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) for its commitment to watershed restoration and environmental protection.

"Pennsylvania Farm Bureau was one of 24 organizations from across Pennsylvania selected to receive the prestigious Governor's Award for Watershed Stewardship for 2002.

"It is my great honor to congratulate the winners of the 2002 Governor's Award for Watershed Stewardship," Schweiker said.

"These individuals and organizations are reclaiming abandoned mine lands, protecting and restoring our valuable watersheds and reaching out to our communities to educate them about the importance of Pennsylvania's natural resources."

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Local Affairs Program embarked on an outreach mission to get the word out to farmers about information, resources and funding available to them for watershed protection projects.

"Farmers have been called the nation's true environmentalists," said Michael Pechart, PFB's Director of Local Government Programs.

"If this is the case, Pennsylvania sure has a lot of them. As Pennsylvania's number one industry, farming has its fair share of obstacles relative to protecting the environment. Because of high implementation costs, many projects that might improve the environmental friendliness of a farming operation often end up hurting the farmer's bottom line."

"Through PFB's efforts, farmers have begun to work with county conservation districts, local elected leaders, state and federal representatives and DEP to implement farm programs that at once benefit the viability of farm operations and the health of watersheds ultimately helping to preserve Pennsylvania's farming way of life," said Pechart.

This year marks the second annual Governor's Award for Watershed Stewardship.

In 1999, former Governor Tom Ridge signed into law "Growing Greener" the largest-ever investment of state funds to address Pennsylvania's critical environmental issues.

Phila. Society For Promoting Ag Meets

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

PHILADELPHIA — Dr. Merle H. Jensen, associate director, Arizona Agricultural Experiment Station and assistant dean, sponsored research, at the University of Arizona College of Agriculture, spoke about emerging worldwide technologies in greenhouse agriculture.

Jensen spoke to about 40 members and friends late last week at a meeting of the Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture at the Union League in Philadelphia.

According to the Society, Jensen is the world's leading authority on greenhouse agriculture systems. He has done consulting work on projects around the world, and designed the greenhouse at the Epcot Center at Disney World in Florida.

The Society was organized on Feb. 11, 1785, the oldest agricultural organization in the U.S. The Society was founded by 23 of the leading merchants, business leaders, and landowners in the Philadelphia area. The nonprofit, nonpartisan organization helps members and the general public develop well-informed opinions with respect to policies, achievements, and concerns of U.S. agriculture.

Push Your Soybeans Up The Yield Curve

John O. Yocum

Penn State Department
Of Crop And Soil Sciences

CULTIVAR SELECTION: It is estimated that new cultivars produce a yield gain of approximately 0.2 bushels per acre per year.

In addition to potential yield increase, new cultivars generally have a better disease and pest resistance. With the rapid expansion of herbicide-tolerant cultivars, cultivar choice may also dictate weed control programs.

Various Pennsylvania data indicate full-season maturity cultivars have little yield advantage over mid-maturity cultivars, but seeding early cultivars full-season do result in yield sacrifices.

RECOMMENDATION: Multiple location and year data are preferred in choosing superior cultivars. Check public and private yield trials for this information. It is common to have 15 to 20+ bushel per acre difference between high vs. low yielding cultivars in trials.

PLANT POPULATION: Since soybean can compensate by branching, adding pods, seed and seed size, plant populations of 125,000 to 200,000 per acre generally produce the same yield in full-season production. Late plantings or plantings after small grain harvest generally perform better at higher plant populations (200,000). Equipment maintenance and calibration are important to get the proper plant populations. Since soybean seed size can vary from year to year, equipment calibration is the only sure way to know seeding rate. As with other crops, uniform emergence and plant spacing are also important.

RECOMMENDATION: Maintain and calibrate equipment.

SEED DEPTH: Soybean should not be seeded deeper than 1.5 inches. Unlike corn that can emerge from deeper depths, soybean planting depth should be 1 to 1.5 inches. Herbicide choice may make the 1.5-inch planting depth necessary. If moisture is lacking, do not plant beyond the 1.5-inch depth to put the seed into moisture. Delay seeding until moisture conditions are better. Uniform seeding depth and seed-to-soil contact is important to get uniform plant emergence.

RECOMMENDATION: Get off the tractor seat and check seeding depth several times in a field and in every field.

SEEDING DATE: Soybean can be seeded approximately the same time as corn, but corn yields decline faster than soybean with delayed planting so corn generally should be planted first. Delaying soybean planting until late May or early June results in a yield loss of approximately 7 bushel per acre. Seeding soybean following barley (late June) results in only 75 percent of the yield expected when seeded mid-May. Soybean seeded after wheat harvest generally yield only 50 percent of soybean grown full-season.

RECOMMENDATION: Be ready. As soon as soil conditions permit, soybean should be seeded even as early as May 1.

WEED CONTROL: Control of weeds is important to protect the yield potential, harvest ability and quality. One velvetleaf weed per ft can reduce soybean yield by 14-27 percent. Some weeds such as nightshade and burcucumber may delay or cause harvesting problems. Nightshade can also reduce the grain quality by having nightshade berries in the grain.

RECOMMENDATION: Know what weed species are present and use guides or consultants to choose the correct weed control program.

INOCULATE AND SEED TREATMENT: Farmer trials in Ohio have indicated using the new inoculums increased yield by an average of 1.5 bushels per acre even on land that had grown soybean. On land that has not grown soybean for some time, always inoculate. Seed treatments (fungicide insecticide) may or may not be an advantage. If planting early May, seed treatments will more likely be an advantage than if planting after the soil is warm (60 degrees).

RECOMMENDATION: Inoculate with the new type of inoculums. Planting early or on maturated land also apply a seed treatment. Even distribution of inoculums and/or seed treatment on the seed is important.

HARVEST: Unlike corn, soybean grain moisture can go up and down rapidly. Wetting and drying after the soybean reaches maturity reduces yield, seed quality and may cause seed shattering. When the grain moisture reaches 14 percent, soybean harvest should receive priority over corn harvest. If many green weeds are present, a harvest aid should be applied as soon as most of the pods have turned brown. After applying the harvest aid, harvesting should be delayed for 1 to 2 weeks.

RECOMMENDATION: If soybeans are ready to harvest, drop the corn head and harvest the soybean.

ROW SPACING: When using the same planting equipment and the same cultivar, 7-inch rows produce the highest yields. The earlier the planting date, the less the yield disadvantage of the wider rows. When planted early May, 14-inch rows were almost equal to 7-inch rows; but produced only 91 percent of the 7-inch rows when planted early June. Twenty-eight inch rows yielded only 64 percent of the 7-inch rows. In some studies, unit planters (corn planter) seeding 15-inch rows have produced higher soybean yields than that produced in 7-inch rows seeded with a drill. In other studies, 7-inch soybean rows seeded with a grain drill produced 8 percent more yield than soybeans seeded in 30-inch rows with a corn planter.

Using a corn planter, soybeans seeded in 15-inch rows produced 6 percent more yield than that produced in 30-inch rows. The uniform seeding depth and seed spacing with a unit planter is superior to most drills.

RECOMMENDATION: Use the best equipment and as narrow row as possible. If wide rows must be planted, plant early.

FERTILITY: Most people think soybean does not respond to added fertilizer. Actually, soybean require more N, P, and K per Bu produced than does corn. Properly inoculated soybean produces most of the needed nitrogen, but does respond to added P & K if the soil is low in these nutrients. Fertilizing the previous crop with enough P & K to supply the soybean crop is an excellent way to fertilize soybean. The other critical soil item is pH.

Soybeans should be grown in soil that has a pH of 6 to 6.5. As mentioned, inoculation is important. Recent research has indicated new inoculums can increase yield even in fields that have had soybean grown in them.

RECOMMENDATION: Soil test at least every 3 years and follow the recommendations.

FIELDS: Since soybean harvesters are operated at lowest height possible, level fields are necessary to harvest as many pods as possible and avoid dirt and stones in the grain. Level fields also allow drills to operate more efficiently and do a better job of seeding depth.

RECOMMENDATION: Avoid dead furrows, wheel tracks from previous harvest and tillage operations that cause uneven field surfaces.

SEED: Many studies show the advantage of purchasing high-quality seed over bin run seed. High quality seed has an approximately 3 bushel per acre yield advantage over bin seed. RECOMMENDATION: Purchase certified or equivalent seed.

Grange Launches Internet Store

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The national Grange has launched a new online retail store as a benefit for its more than 300,000 members nationwide. Using the latest e-commerce technology, the new online store will offer contemporary, quality embroidered casual and athletic apparel with the Grange logo for members to promote the Grange and recognize their membership.

The National Grange has created a special bulk order clothing program to provide state, pomona and subordinate Granges with high quality, reasonably priced T-shirts and hats with the Grange logo and its own Grange name and number. The apparel also can be used at Grange events such as picnics, barbecues or to promote the Grange at Country

Fairs, exhibits, fundraisers and community and state Grange events and projects.

The online Grange retail store will offer an expanded line of apparel that includes T-shirts, hats, polar fleeces, outerwear, shirts, sweats, tees/mocks and junior items. Also available online is the popular Grange Cookbook "What's Cookin' in the Grange." Featuring over 375 of American best country-cooking recipes from Grange members nationwide, this 256-page stain resistant cookbook will continue to be sold for $15.

Apple Producers Vote To Continue State Apple Marketing Board

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's apple growers have voted in favor of continuing the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program for another five years. Agriculture Secretary Samuel Hayes said that of the 181 ballots submitted to the state Department of Agriculture, 105 were in favor of continuing the program. As prescribed by the Agriculture Commodities Marketing Act, Hayes called for the statewide referendum in March 2002. Apple producers growing more than 500 trees were eligible to vote.

"Pennsylvania's apple industry is one of the many key components to our state's agriculture," Secretary Hayes said. "The Apple Marketing Program helps the Commonwealth promote and protect this vital industry. I would like to thank all of the apple growers who took the time to vote in this referendum."

Established in 1968, the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program is the oldest commodity marketing board in the state. Created under the Agriculture Commodities Marketing Act, the program represents the interest of Pennsylvania apple growers and promotes the sale of Pennsylvania apples.

The marketing program is expected to boost sales of apples in Pennsylvania by, among other things, stimulating supermarket business through fall and winter promotions.

For more information on the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program, contact the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board at (717) 783-5418.

Cornman Receives Promotion

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The American Veal Association (AVA) is pleased to announce the promotion of Michelle Cornman, Carlisle, to Administrator. Cornman has served as the Veal Quality Assurance (VQA) program coordinator for the past year along with maintaining membership and administrative records.

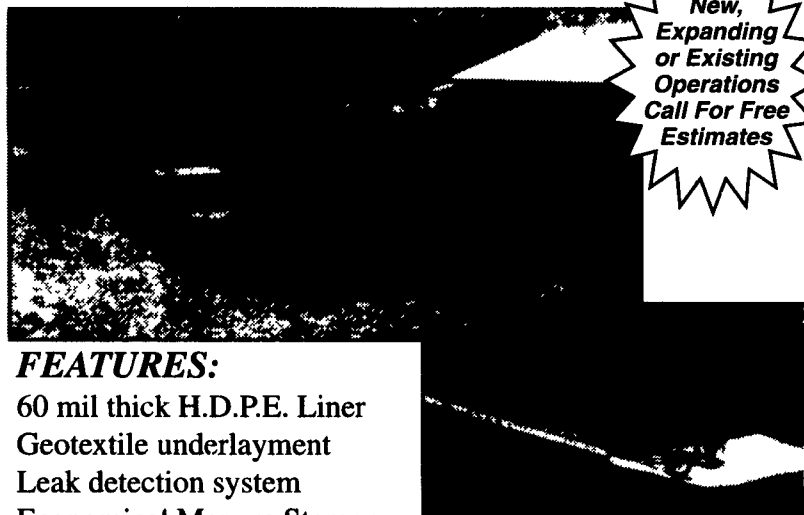

Before joining the AVA, Cornman attended Penn State University where she earned a degree in agricultural business management. While taking on the role as administrator she will continue to serve as program coordinator for VQA. Cornman will work closely with Paul Slayton in co-administering the association's activities and programs.

The American Veal Association was founded in 1984 to represent America's veal producers and affiliated industries. Its main purpose is to work with the veal industry to ensure American consumers have access to safe, wholesome veal. For more information about the AVA visit our Website, www.vealfarm.com or contact Michelle Cornman or Paul Slayton at (717) 985-9125.

Beef Cuts Muscle Their Way To Greater Profitability

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — "The timing is right to look at a different way to merchandise beef," said Ken Johnson, National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), to a group of more than 50 meat managers at a seminar conducted Tuesday at Yoder's Market, New Holland. The Pennsylvania Beef Council and IBP co-sponsored the event.

Also during the day Eric Karson, professor at Saint Joseph's University, Philadelphia, educated the group about "the power of branding" during his presentation.

In "New Cuts for the New Consumer," Johnson highlighted the value of beef cuts that is realized by separating muscle groups the shoulder clod, round knuckle, and bottom round — into single muscles for individual marketing.

Beef Value Cuts

Tentatively named "beef value cuts," the new line of 14 single-muscle cuts was created using information from the recent check-off-funded Muscle Profiling Study. The study included NCBA and university research, which documented differences in the cuts by characterizing muscles in terms of palatability and functionality.

The Muscle Profiling Study analyzed 39 individual muscles from the chuck and round.

Because the muscle cuts are single, they afford the customer consistency.

In addition, they provide moderately-priced steak options, since the new cuts of steaks were created from the underutilized — and generally more economical — chuck and round.

Most of the cuts are classed as lean or extra lean.

Besides benefits to the consumer, retailers now have the flexibility to market the cuts as the traditional roasts or now as steaks, which increases profitability.

Two products in particular, the top blade, dubbed the "Flat Iron," and the beef shoulder center steak, or "Ranch Cut," steaks have gained "some local success and notoriety in the foodservice sector," according to NCBA information. The cuts were tested by a trained sensory panel and by consumer in-house testing.

Industry Change

"The beef industry has been characterized as lethargic and slow to change," said Johnson. "That's not really the case. There's been more change in the past two years than in the previous 30 and that's exciting."

With supplies, prices, and demand up, "that's a real positive when we look at new programs to introduce to the industry."

By separating the muscles and removing the fat and connective tissue, the resulting cuts are tender and consistent, said Johnson. For example a chuck arm roast, which includes seven to eight major muscles, must be cooked in liquid to break down the connective tissues between the muscles.

The new way of cutting and sorting the chuck provides several intermediately-priced steaks instead of the cheaper roasts.

"Get away from the mindset that this is chuck," said Rick Fetrow, IBP. "It's value-added steak. It may be coming from the knuckle but you don't want to price it like the knuckle."

For food retailers, the new cuts "don't mean the cuts you already have have to go away," Fetrow said, suggesting that the meat case could be expanded to include a grilling section with the Flat Iron and Western Griller.

According to IBP representative David MacVane, "it is what consumers want today. They don't want to fight with bones or sinews. They are not eating beef four or five times a week. They're eating it two or three times a week and when they have it, they want it good."

Cutting Demonstration

To demonstrate, Ken Johnson, NCBA, and David MacVane, IBP, divided the shoulder clod, extracting five muscles by following the natural seam that separates the muscles in the shoulder clod. The Flat Iron steak, for example, is a cut from the beef shoulder clod.

In the future, predicts MacVane, the subprimals will be divided into the smaller muscles at the plant level.

The beef, cut across the grain for tenderness, was sliced 3/4 to one inch thick. This will help consumers cook the beef to only medium- to medium rare doneness. If the steaks were a half inch they could be overcooked on the grill, and they do not perform as well if they are overcooked, according to Fetrow.

The next phase of the program is to work on merchandising the cuts in several test stores.

When the connective tissue is removed from the exterior of the cut, the different directions of the muscle fibers is visible, allowing for not only easy separation of the muscles, but meat cutters can cut across the grain more easily.

Branding Power

Also during the meat seminar Eric Karson, professor at Saint Joseph's University, presented his ideas about the use of brands in the food industry.

Historically, said Karson, "a branded product with consistent quality had an edge over local marketing" when, with increased transportation in America, a national market opened.

"Simply put, a brand is a promise to the consumer. What we have to understand is that the brand has to stand for something. The key is understanding what's important to the consumer."

At left Ken Johnson, NCBA, and David MacVane, IBP, prepare to showcase the new cuts of beef available by separating the chuck and round.

A brand is a relationship between the buyer and the seller — value that's relevant to the consumer. "We're promising the customer something — all the time. Consistency," he said. Consumers understand that a branded product will behave in certain ways, "so that every package of that beef that is pre-seasoned and maybe even precooked tastes the same every time."

Even though many facets of the food industry has recognized and utilized "the power of branding," according to Karson, the "final frontier" is the meat case.

However "it doesn't fix everything. You can't just brand like a magic wand and think everything is going to change if you can't back it up. What we're trying to do is differentiate our product. In fact marketing is differentiation. Position yourself in the customer's mind."

Also, "keep your promises," advised Karson. "Consumers have long memories and they'll remember what you tell them."

"Identify the specific benefits you're going to promote" and specifically focus on that every step of the way.

"The concept of brand loyalty has faded. I think what we have to strive for now is brand preference. We've trained consumers to look for the deal."

If a producer has created brand loyalty, price changes won't diminish their picking a specific product, he said.

In creating a brand, the first step is to create brand awareness. After building brand awareness, work on loyalty and perceived quality. "Ultimately we are trying to achieve some sort of competitive advantage by not just competing on price."

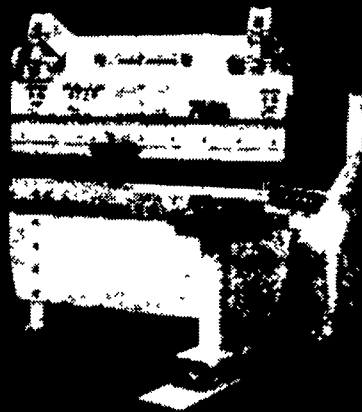

The clearest strength of great brand is their ability to maintain value over time, noted Karson.

COMMUNITY FARMERS' MARKETS

Growing for consumer demand is making growing for farmers' markets increasingly active. Communities are striving to help sustain their local agriculture by creating markets.

Farmers' markets are one of the most effective means farmers have for obtaining the highest return on their investment. By marketing middlemen, farmers' markets return the profits to farmers' pockets and profitability farming, while putting the face of the farmer on food.

On a typical market day, a handful of farmers can connect with hundreds of local community customers. In larger city markets, that connection can be with thousands of customers. Farmers' markets are growing in popularity nationwide in response to keeping local agriculture part of the community. In addition, more people want local-produced foods that are fresh and superior in quality.

Sustainability of local economies is the main reason for new market development. Growers living the price squeeze on profitability are tempted by the lure of development money to sell their real estate as farmland values escalate. The farmers wanting to remain in farming are discovering farmers' markets and learning to sell directly to their customer. Farmers' market in local communities, fosters awareness of where food is grown, and makes local residents more eager to support farm preservation and farmers themselves.

By participating in direct marketing, farmers learn also. Suburban and urban communities share ideas that are important to the "neighborhood" culture. Collectively, communities and farmers develop a personal connection.

Who Benefits?

Farmers of any size could benefit from selling at a farmers' market. However, small acreage farmers or market gardeners who grow high-value, low-volume crops need a high return per acre.

Agricultural producers who are located on rural back roads and out of the way locations can develop new marketing opportunities through farmers' markets. The main advantage of a farmers' market is it employs direct selling that allows the farmer to be the price maker, instead of a price taker.

Direct selling also requires people skills. Communicating with customers and a willingness to accept cultural diversity are important. In many instances, a niche market is discovered in producing ethnic foods needed in a culturally unique community.

Many large farms are beginning to discover farmers' markets as an opportunity to increase income potential. In several states surrounding Pennsylvania, large farm producers make up 20 percent of the market.

Fruit and vegetables are the primary mainstay of farmers' market offerings. Herbs, fresh-cut flowers, and bedding plants are very popular market items, too.

Value-added products are performing very well for small processors of food items. Such value-added products include bakery foods, canned and frozen products, and many kinds of processed meats and fish. Dairy products such as cheese and yogurt are always in demand.

Aged hard cheese is a popularly sought item by chefs and exclusive restaurants. Almost any food item or value added product has potential to increase farm income as well as satisfy local demand.

Putting It All Together

Farmers' markets have many advantages for farmers and communities to create important relationships. Looking beyond fresh food and community sustainability, farmers' markets become festive celebrations that unite people with each other. Farmers' markets provide the opportunity for educational, social, and other community service agencies to reach out where people gather in their neighborhood, letting them know all that their community has to offer.

Winners Named In 2002 Virginia Junior Beef Roundup

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. — One 340 cattle at the recent 2002 Virginia Beef Exposition Youth Shows, according to animal science officials from Virginia Tech.

Judges for the event at the Buckingham County Fairgrounds were Dave Mullins from Tannery in Frederick County, Virginia, and Terry McCoy, Franklin, W.Va.

In the steers show, about 106 head were shown. The champion heifer belonged to Josh Wynkoop of Purcellville. John Funkhouser of Mt. Jackson had the reserve champion steer.

Jessica Walter of Wytheville had the grand champion heifer in the Simmental Show and B.J. Othe of Dublin, the reserve champion heifer.

B.J. Boothe of Dublin showed the champion Simmental bull and Payton Doyle of Emporia showed the reserve champion bull.

Amanda Giles of Toms Brook had the champion heifer of the Hereford Show and Michelle Pullen of Charlottesville, the reserve champion heifer. The Hereford champion bull and reserve champion Hereford bull were both shown by Michelle Pullen of Charlottesville.

The Shorthorn show had 48 entries. The Shorthorn champion heifer was shown by Amanda Marston, and Jacklyn Butler had the reserve champion.

Bradley Bennett of Weyers Cave had the champion Shorthorn steer. Josh Wynkoop had the reserve champion steer.

There were seven animals shown in the Red Angus event. Amber Boyles had the champion heifer and Joanna Stewart the reserve champion heifer.

Some 77 head were shown in the Angus show. In the owned division, Chelsea Weiben, Leesburg, had the champion heifer and Joey Epperly of Moneta the reserve champion heifer.

In the bred and owned division of Angus, Trey Gum of Frederick County had the champion heifer. Chelsea Weiben had the reserve champion heifer.

Chelsea Weiben had the Angus champion steer and Timber Peyton the reserve champion Angus steer.

In the commercial replacement heifers, 49 head were shown.

Chelsea Weiben, Leesburg, had the champion and Josh Wynkoop, Purcellville, had the reserve champion.

Chelsea Weiben, Leesburg, also won showmanship champion in the senior division, which had 34 exhibitors. Kathryn Taylor, Warren County was the senior showmanship reserve champion.

Of the 26 exhibitors in the intermediate division of showmanship competition, the champion was Timber Peyton of Loudoun Co. Madeline Lickey, Loudoun County, was the reserve champion.

There were 23 junior division showmanship exhibitors. Josh Wynkoop of Purcellville was the champion and Sarah Danner of Loudoun County, reserve champion.

Also in the novice division of showmanship, Tyler Renner of Frederick County was the champion, and Jessica Bramhall of Loudoun County, reserve.

THE LANCASTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE & INDUSTRY'S AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE: A VALUABLE RESOURCE FOR LANCASTER COUNTY AGRICULTURE!

Jay Shannon

Account Executive

MidAtlantic Farm Credit

And Chairman Of

The Lancaster Chamber's Agriculture Committee

I have the honor of serving as the 2002 chairman of The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce & Industry's Agriculture Committee. My purpose in writing about the committee and its activities is not to toot my own horn, but to communicate to the agricultural community what a great resource The Chamber can be and to promote the close partnership that our industry has with The Chamber.

Lancaster County enjoys a unique position as the only chamber of commerce in the U.S. with a full-time position dedicated to specifically serving the needs of the agricultural industry. Our full-time ag services coordinator, Brent Landis, has effectively led the activities of our committee for more than three years and has proven to be a capable advocate and spokesman for Lancaster County producers and agribusiness.

The Agriculture Committee is comprised of 22 individuals, including farm producers, agribusiness professionals, and ag lenders. The committee also includes representatives from government and farmland preservation. It is a group of dedicated individuals who are leaders within their own businesses and give generously of their time to serve the industry. It is a pleasure for me to work with these people and you can be proud of how they represent Chamber agricultural members.

The Agriculture Committee has four focus areas:

- Community education and public relations — promoting agriculture to the general public and assisting producers with public relations issues.

- Legislative issues monitoring legislative issues that affect agriculture on the local, state, and federal levels.

- Ag Industry Relations and Education — providing our industry with educational opportunities to stay informed of business issues specific to agriculture.

- Chamber Awareness and Involvement — promoting the advantages of Chamber membership to the agriculture industry and encouraging interaction between Chamber members and our agricultural businesses.

I strongly encourage anyone who has an interest in the success of agriculture here in Lancaster County to consider becoming a member of The Chamber so you can take advantage of many of the membership benefits and, perhaps more importantly, help sustain the work of the Agriculture Committee as an advocate, spokesperson, and information resource for our industry. The position of ag services coordinator is supported through a combination of chamber memberships, activities of the Agriculture Committee, and some funding provided by the county. If you have a chance, please thank the county commissioners for their continuing support of this program, even in a period of budget constraints. It speaks to their understanding of the importance of agriculture to the heritage and future of Lancaster County.

If you're a producer, you probably consider membership in the chamber of commerce as something for business people and professional types. Well, you're involved in one of the most exciting and challenging industries in the business world and you will want to take advantage of every tool you have available to help you survive in this highly competitive and fast-paced environment. The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce & Industry's Agriculture Committee is committed to being one more survival tool in your toolbox as we face the challenges of the 21st century.

In recognition of the fact that many farm operations may consist of family only and may not see as much value in a full chamber membership, the Lancaster Chamber has created a special membership for farm producers. A farm operation can join the Chamber for as little as $100, for a family run operation. For more information on membership, contact Sandy Brill at (717) 397-3531, ext. 129 or sbrill@lcci.com.

THE GRAIN OF OUR ECONOMY

Identifying Value Focus Of Angus Conference

SAINT JOSEPH, Mo. — Purebred and commercial cattle producers from nearly 30 states, Canada and Poland attended the 2002 National Angus Conference and Tour. The event took place April 23-26 in Sacramento, Calif.

The event included a two-day tour of Angus ranches and California agriculture and a conference program "Identifying the Value." Despite a year of calamity in the beef industry in 2001, executive director of the California Beef Council, Berven said that demand increased for beef during that time. "In 2001 we saw a 4.9 percent improvement of beef demand with $57 billion spent on beef even after September 11 and losing most of our exports to Japan," he said. "As a nation we spent $4 billion more for beef than in 2000."

During a morning session, Brett Erickson, director of value-added products for Certified Angus Beef LLC (CAB) challenged all producers to work with the American Angus Association staff and the CAB Supply Development team to produce animals that will meet Certified Angus Beef specifications. "The only way to grow the brand is through producing more supply," he said.

Tim Schiefelbein, value-based procurement manager for ConAgra Inc., talked about the value found on the grid and encouraged producers to use ultrasound technology to help ensure that cattle they are raising have the characteristics packers are looking for.

"Combining the right breeds together is the most important of anything to make the cattle right for what I want as a packer," he said.

Weldon Hawley, Vernon, Texas, is responsible for managing 13,000 cows on the W.T. Waggoner Estate. He told the audience when he is buying bulls he looks for longevity, as he expects bulls to last five breeding seasons, and their data. "I love EPDs," he said. "My secretary said I'm obsessed with them," he said as he explained that low birth weights and high accuracies are the keys to his selection criteria on the 200-250 bulls he buys annually.

Bill Beal, Virginia Tech professor of animal and poultry sciences, used audience participation to demonstrate the estrous cycle of a cow. He used props and audience members to demonstrate the reproduction cycle in elementary terms.

"Understanding the estrous cycle is key to explaining the things that must 'go right' to establish a pregnancy or the things that may 'go wrong' if the female fails to become pregnant or experiences embryonic mortality," Beal said.

Keith Evans, former director of communications and public relations for the American Angus Association, also led a session. Evans outlined four basic principles to a successful marketing program: positioning, understanding when buying decisions are made, top-of-mind awareness and developing a program. "Marketing is just as important to your success as is your breeding program," he said.

A marketing panel consisting of Jay Leachman, Bozeman, Mont.; Rob Thomas, Baker City, Ore., and Bill Rishel, North Platte, Neb., followed Evans. The panel agreed that customer satisfaction is the number one priority in a successful marketing program.

"Sell your program, not just the bull," Leachman advised. "There are no short cuts in this business." He says his annual sale catalog is his most important marketing tool, as he has many requests for it both before and after his sale.

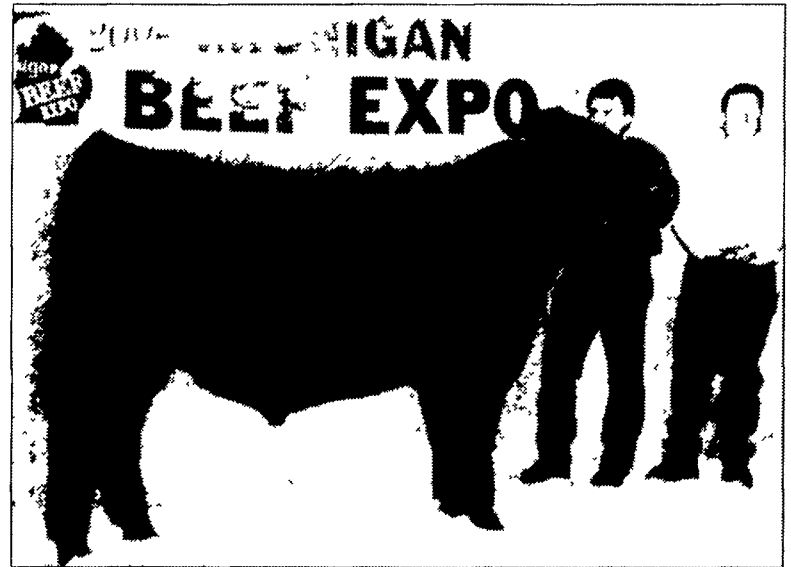

Thomas said that having a good reputation with the customer is a priority in his family's business where many of their customers tend to talk to one another. "Long-term marketing to us means earning the respect of those customers one at a time," he said.

Rishel said that keeping the consumer in mind is vastly important to the entire beef industry, and it is important for seed stock producers to keep the consumer in mind. "The only true dollars that are created in the beef cattle industry are the dollars that a consumer pays for the ultimate product at the very end of the chain of production," Rishel said.

Regional Wins In Angus Shows

Rains Doctor Max DRMX won grand champion bull honors at the 2002 Michigan Beef Expo's Angus Show, April 5 in East Lansing, Mich. Dale Rains, Mercer, Pa., owns the March 2001 son of O C C Doctor 940D. Oran Wolfe, Liberty, Ind., evaluated the 51 entries.

V A R Forever Lady 0091 strolled to the winner's circle as grand champion female at the 2002 National Angus Show at the Western National Angus Futurity Super Point Roll of Victory (ROV) Show, April 21-22 in Reno, Nev. Ashley Bauer, Urbana, Ohio, owns the January 2000 daughter of Krugerrand of Donamere 490. She first topped the junior division. Bill Wilson, Cloverdale, Ind., evaluated the 184 entries.

Hereford Seedstock Posts Increase In Sale Averages

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — With the spring sale season beginning to wind down, the American Hereford Association (AHA) proudly announces the 2002 year-to-date sale average has increased $391 during the past two years. With the climb, Herefords prove their seedstock is in demand across the nation. Specifically during 2001, the average ascended $249.

Individually, the bull prices raised $198, while females posted an increase of $489 since 2000. Furthermore, the females improved $371 over 2001.

Currently, 7,229 head totaling more than $1 million in sales have been reported in Hereford World and on HerfNet.com. Presently, 4,108 bulls and 3,141 females have sold in Hereford production and consignment sales. Overall, the total numbers of head are down, but the rise in the average indicates breeders are offering a higher quality product.

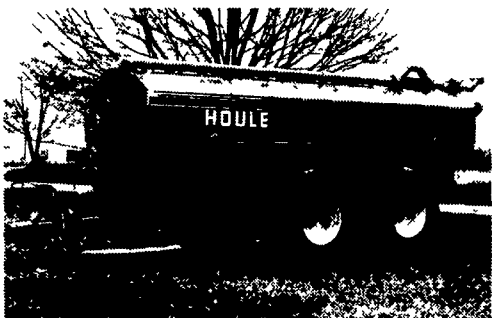

To help spread the word the average of Hereford seedstock is on the rise, a new marketing feature called the Weekly Hereford Sales Digest has been implemented. This internet communication tool is sent electronically to 3,480 potential buyers around the world.

This update features the past weeks sale averages from across the country and is a complete source of current information to help producers locate Hereford cattle. The digest includes private treaty sale cattle, sale and semen catalogs as well as a calendar of upcoming sales.

To subscribe to the Weekly Hereford Sales Digest, the newest tool to find the latest offerings of Hereford seedstock, please contact the AHA at (816) 842-3757 or send your e-mail address to jbishop@hereford.org.

Dise Blends Wool, Mohair To Create Fine Fiber

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

GLEN ROCK (York Co.) — The curly-coated Angora goats sauntering down the hills of Persimmon Tree Farm present a scene straight from Johanna Spyri's "Heidi."

On the other side of the road, the scene is almost repeated, with a flock of Border Leicester ewes mothering their dark-coated lambs along a winding stream.

Combining the curly locks of product." This includes demonstrations on how to skirt fleeces (picking through the fleece for bad wool, burrs, dung tags) and remove the "britch," or undesirable wool, usually at the bottom of the hind leg.

After she experienced success with exhibiting fleeces, she was encouraged to buy a spinning wheel, which she did — and left in the box for months. Later, however, she brought it out, taught herself to spin, and has dyed commercially-spun yarn, and finished garments.

Shearing, Dying, Drying

The flock is shorn in April and October. The October shearing produces nicer fleeces, she said, because the animals are not lying in straw or close together at the trough, which wears the wool.

Dise puts the fibers in dye pots and adds detergent to clean the fleeces. She keeps the wool and mohair separate throughout the dying, rinsing, and drying process, as they will be hand-blended according to specifications at the mill near Harrisburg that processes Dise's fibers.

Most of the time Dise uses a 50/50 blend of mohair and wool. The dark — silvers and grays — colors of the wool produce natural, muted tones when Dise overdyes the fibers.

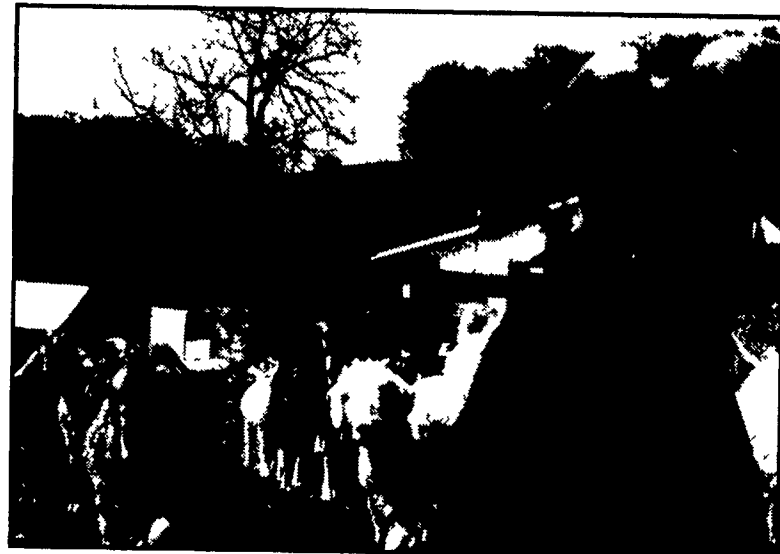

She usually sends 20 pounds of wool for a batch for the same "colorway," meaning that all the clouds will have the same blends of color. There is great variance between these colorways, which Dise gives names such as Peacock, Fall Silk Madness, Koppy Kat, Tropical Breeze, Smoky Mountains, Indian Corn, or New England Fall.

mohair goats with the fine crimp of Border Leicester sheep has become more than a hobby for Greta Dise, Glen Rock. Dise has branched out from showing fleeces to dying, spinning, and selling her own wool, besides marketing sweaters and hats.

"It Just Blossomed"

The 85-acre farm includes 40 acres put aside for pasture for not only the goats and sheep but also several llamas and one alpaca that lend their coats to Greta's spinning. Sixty babies were born this spring from her flock of 25 ewes and 40 does.

Dise and her husband Bob purchased his home farm from his brother and moved on the farm in 1989.

"That next summer I bought my first sheep and it just blossomed from there," said Dise. She began showing fleeces from her sheep, taking home the grand champion fleece honor at the 1991 Farm Show. She has also enjoyed showing her sheep competitively, which she calls "addictive."

Achieving success in fleece competitions is "all in knowing what to look for when you are buying the animal," she said. For handspinning quality, for example, the wool should be uniformly dense, soft and lustrous, free of excessive weathering damage, and regular and definite crimp. The wool should also be two inches or longer.

This year she is helping with the York County 4-H Fiber Club, where she is looking forward to "teaching how to produce a good been making inroads into the wool industry ever since. Dise, who grew up in a nearby town, was taught how to knit by a neighbor but did not pursue the art until she purchased sheep, when she took up the craft again.

Seven years ago she got a booth at Maryland's Sheep and Wool Festival, her first show. Now she travels to New York, Michigan, North Carolina, Virginia, and this year, Colorado, to show fleeces and sheep and sell her woolen wares. She merchanbags of clouds from the mill, Dise usually spins a bag to show the spinners what the hand-spun yarn will look like.

The bags are displayed in bushel baskets for show, and the samples hung on the basket so customers "can see what it looks like when it's spun up," she said. "They're all one of a kind. I could never reproduce what I do."

After she sells the clouds from one lot, Dise spins the sample skein into hats to sell.

Dise also has sheets of felt made from the clouds. The felt can be used for clothing or wall-hangings.

Mohair, because of the softness it contributes to the yarn, has become very popular in the last few years. A stand of brushed mohair, for example, combines with a strand or regular yarn combines to make ideal jackets or sweaters.

This year, 60 babies were born from her flock of 25 ewes and 40 does.

The blend of mohair, alpaca, and llama wool allows Dise to have several varieties of yarn at her stand, which she sells for $28-$38 per pound. Vendors must be diversified at shows, she said. By selling such merchandise as hand spun yarn, wool ready to spin, hand-dyed yarns, and finished garments, her stand appeals to a wide range of customers.

Ewe Lamb Program Announced

Denver, Colo. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) on March 27, published the new rule on the extension of the Lamb Meat Adjustment Assistance Program (LMAAP) for an additional year through July 31, 2003.

The new rule includes the much anticipated ewe lamb expansion payment program that will provide incentives for producers to purchase or retain breeding ewe lambs.

Per the agreement with the 201 petitioners, USDA has allocated an additional $37.7 million for the extension of LMAAP. Of that amount, $26 million will be allocated to the new ewe lamb expansion payment program for years three and four of LMAAP, while the remaining funds are for payments for feeder and slaughter lambs marketed during year two through year four of LMAAP.

"We are very pleased that USDA issued this program rule consistent with the information released last fall," Wyoming sheep producer and ASI President Frank Moore said. "The program is designed to be simple and effective. Program details and application forms will be in FSA county offices shortly."

USDA Establishes National Lamb Checkoff

Denver, Colo. — The final rule establishing a national, industry-funded lamb promotion, research and information program was issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Agricultural Marketing Service recently.

The American lamb checkoff order was published in the April 11 Federal Register, which follows the public comment period conducted last fall.

Under the program, U.S. lamb producers, feeders and lamb packers will all pay an assessment. Individual U.S. lamb producers and feeders will pay a one-half ($.005) cent per pound assessment based on live weight, and the first handler, primarily lamb packers, will pay an additional 30 cents per carcass. The proposed order calls for a deduction at sale, however, remittance will occur at the slaughter level for most transactions.

"Publishing this order lays out the logistics of how the program will work, who will be assessed and other details," American Sheep Industry Association President Frank Moore said. "The next step is to issue rules, which will set a date at which collections will begin, followed by the procedures to nominate board members."

Moore added, "It is an exciting step for the American lamb industry to move forward with an industry-wide board to work on our lamb market."

The program is the first national livestock assessment to include slaughter companies."

The order calls for a delayed referendum to be conducted no later than three years after assessments begin. During this time period, refunds may be requested. Lamb imports will not be assessed under the order.

A lamb checkoff program has been in development since May 1999, when USDA brought together a task force of all segments of the industry to investigate lamb checkoff possibilities.

The program is expected to raise $3 million plus each year and will fund promotion, research and information programs. Specific programs will be determined by the program's board of directors who will be appointed by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture. Industry organizations will nominate representatives to serve on the 13-member board, which will include: six producer representatives, three feeder representatives, three packers; and one seed stock producer.

Start your plants off right with Messenger

Messenger® is a unique new compound that increases crop yields while improving overall plant health and vigor. Messenger is made from a naturally occurring protein (harpin) that triggers processes inside the plant that activate the plant's own defense and growth systems. Plants activated by Messenger exhibit a higher rate of photosynthesis, which in turn enhances nutrient uptake. As a result, Messenger treated plants grow faster and stronger. Messenger also activates the plant's natural defenses so they are better able to fend off a broad spectrum of bacterial, viral, and fungal diseases. Bottom line: healthier plants, higher yields.

Give your plants the strongest start possible—apply Messenger before they leave the greenhouse, or if they are direct seeded, soon after emergence when plants have at least two true leaves. Make repeat applications to maintain a higher level of growth and protection.

To find out how Messenger can add to your bottom line, contact EDEN, your local ag supplier, or one of these certified Messenger retailers:

Awards Presented At Jersey Meeting

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent
BEACH LAKE (Wayne Co.) - Jersey enthusiasts from across Pennsylvania gathered for their annual meeting April 19 and 20 at the Central House Resort here.

Don and Mary Wivell of Mansfield received the distinguished service award. The Wivells have shared their love of Jerseys with family and friends for many years. They currently operate Laureldon Jerseys, in Covington, and milk 65 cows.

"We started with Jerseys in the late 70s," said Mary. "We were renting a barn with Holsteins, and the stalls were small. Tom Noble said we should try some Jerseys and that's what we've ended up with."

Mary also serves as the secretary/treasurer for the Tioga-Bradford Jersey Club.

Named 2002 Pennsylvania Young Jersey Breeders were Joe and Melinda Vanderfeltz, of Rushville. The Vanderfeltz's have a mixed herd with 70 milking Jerseys and 40 Holsteins.

"My father-in-law gave us the foundation to get started on the farm on the Jersey side," said Joe. "I thank Melinda's parents for a great foundation."

Joe and Melinda are currently in the process of purchasing the cows and equipment from Melinda's mother, Marilyn Quick. In the future, they plan to purchase the farm as well.

"Right now we try to focus on the cows. That's where we make out money and where we spend the most time," he said.

Currently they have 15 cows classified Excellent and 45 cows with a score of Very Good on the farm.

"The future looks promising for us," said Joe. "We're pretty blessed with opportunities."

Ralaine Jerseys, owned by Lori Sollenberger, of Everett, received the Norman Genetic Award.

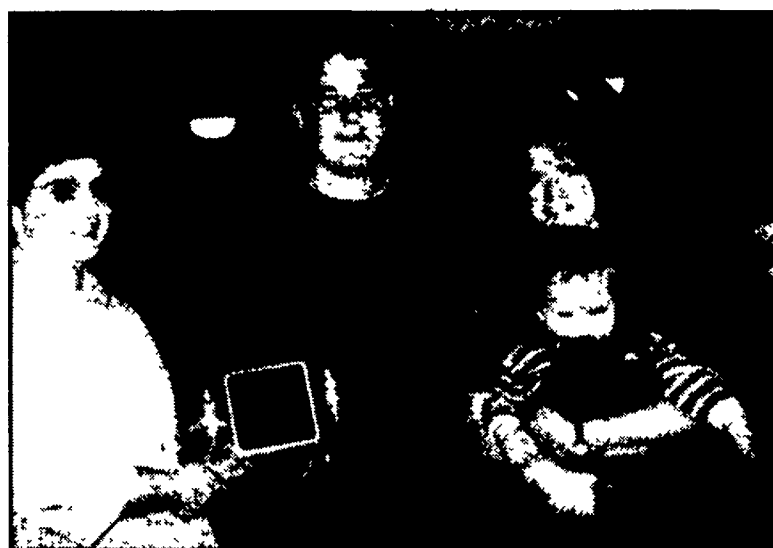

The 2002 Pennsylvania Jersey Queen was also named. Amy Kaucher, daughter of Bonnie Kaucher and Harold Leib, Mechanicsburg, will travel throughout the state promoting Jerseys as part of her responsibilities.

She will be Pennsylvania's official representative at the North American International Livestock Exposition in November, where a National Jersey Queen will be crowned.

The 17-year-old Kaucher has been active with Jersey projects for 10 years and is a member of the Cumberland Valley FFA Chapter and Cumberland county-wide 4-H Dairy Club. She now owns 21 registered Jerseys and has exhibited them at various shows across Pennsylvania.

Other juniors were recognized at the event. Scholarships were presented to Emily Norman and Gwen Courtright.

Winning the junior achievement award was Jacob Rassau, while Jason Chyle won the senior achievement award. Becky Theobald and Ashley Derr shared the first year Jersey project award and Christine Wagner won the Jersey scrapbook award.

Josh Kellerman took first place in the Jacob M. Brunges production contest with a record of 23,181 pounds of milk, 1219 pounds of fat and 865 pounds of protein, or 914 pounds of protein mature equivalent (ME). Tying for second place were Heather Yurkanin and Nathan Kenny.

Amy Theobald was crowned 2002 Pennsylvania Jersey Queen.

Milk Board Asked To Maintain Over-Order Premium

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Representatives of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) and the State Grange have asked the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board to maintain the state's over-order premium for fluid milk at $1.65 per hundred-weight.

"At a time when both cow numbers and production are in decline in the state, the board must do what it can to bring price relief to all producers servicing the Pennsylvania market," said Joel Rotz of the PFB.

The current over-order premium, paid to producers of Class I (fluid) milk produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania, is scheduled to expire June 30.

Grange representative Arthur Zug cited a recent Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service release, noting milk production was down 0.1 percent from last year's production and that the total number of milk cows in the state has decreased by 19,000 over the past 12 months.

According to Zug, maintaining the over-order premium at $1.65 will not alter supply and demand of milk.

Zug also pointed out the rising cost of fuel as reason to continue a $.25 per hundredweight fuel adjustment included in the current $1.65 premium.

"Since fuel costs went below the trigger price for the adjustment, that portion of the over-order premium has been discontinued. Once again, however, fuel costs are rising," he said.

Beef Production Declines While Lamb, Mutton Increase

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Total commercial red meat production, dressed weight basis, in Pennsylvania during March 2002 totaled 96.0 million pounds, down one percent from March 2001, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Beef production was down five percent from March 2001, while veal and calf slaughter was up slightly.

Pork production was up four percent from last year.

Lamb and mutton production during March 2002 was 672,000 pounds live weight, up 51 percent. The number slaughtered was 6,600, up 50 percent. Average live weight increased one pound to 102 pounds.

Hereford Dams Of Distinction Named

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — Recently the American Hereford Association named several animals in Pennsylvania as Dams of Distinction females.

Craig Huffines, AHA's executive secretary, said of the Dams of Distinction, "these are the most efficient cows in the Hereford breed. They have met the strictest requirements for early calving, reproductive efficiency, calving intervals no greater than one year, and weaning weight ratios in the top end of the breeder's herd."

More than 500 breeders who produced cows earned the distinction in 2001. There were 1,619 cows named to the prestigious list for this year, according to AHA officials.

In order to be honored as a Dam of Distinction, each cow has to wean a calf born after January 1, 1999; produce at least three calves; initially calve at 30 months of age or less; have an interval between the first and second calves no greater than 400 days.

In addition, a 370-day calving interval must have been maintained after her second calf. The longer initial calving interval allows breeders to calve two-year-old heifers prior to the mature cow herd; have weaning records submitted to the Hereford Performance Program on every calf produced; have progeny average 205-day adjusted weaning weight ratio of at least 105.

"These are the cows that meet the highest standards of commercial cattle production," said Huffines. "The cows must do her job, but also her owner must manage the herd correctly to give her the opportunity to excel. Only a small portion of active cows are recognized. All heifers have the potential of being a Dam of Distinction but only a small percentage fit the job description of an ideal cow year in and year out."

A complete listing of Hereford cows that were recognized and the breeders who produced them is available from the American Hereford Association on its Internet web site at www.hereford.org.

Pennsylvania breeders with Dams of Distinction females for 2001 include: Sheila Miller and Emilie Miller, Womelsdorf; Kyle Zerbe, Womelsdorf; Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture, Doylestown; Flat Stone Lick, Marianna; Stanley W. Hunt, Slippery Rock; Rolling Shade Polled Herefords, East Greenville; Paul and Bette Slayton, Bedford; and Twin Ponds Farm, McVeytown.

One of the winners, Sheila Miller, along with husband Michael, has been raising purebred Hereford cattle in Berks County since 1980. This is the third consecutive year Sheila Miller received this recognition, and the second time daughter Emilie received the honor. "It is as much as a thrill that we are continuing to have our cows recognized as it was the first time we were notified," said Miller. "This is a repeat performance for our two cows that received the honor last year."

The Millers own and operate Deutschland Farm, Tulpehocken Township, a 150-acre cow/calf operation.

Emilie, a junior at Tulpehocken High School, has a 29-head herd of registered cattle under ECM Herefords that she keeps at her parents' farm.

Emilie, a ninth-year member of the Berks County 4-H Beef Club and third-year member of the Tulpehocken FFA has built and improved her herd of Hereford cattle during her lifetime.

A cow that Emilie bred and sold to Kyle Zerbe was also on the Dam of Distinction list.

Zerbe, 20, has 13 head of registered Herefords. He is a graduate of Conrad Weiser High School and an employee of the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation. Zerbe, who finished 11 years in the Berks County 4-H Beef Club in 2000, said he is looking forward to owning a farm in the future and continuing to raise cattle.

Pa. Launches West Nile Virus Surveillance Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Health Secretary Robert S. Zimmerman Jr., Environmental Protection Secretary David E. Hess, and Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes have announced that Pennsylvania is launching this year's effort to detect and control mosquitoes that carry the West Nile virus.

"It's that time of the year again — time to get your yard back in shape or just get out and enjoy Pennsylvania's natural wonders," Zimmerman said. "But don't forget about the mosquitoes."

"Last year, West Nile virus was detected in Pennsylvania in humans for the first time. Fortunately, those people recovered. But last year's experience makes it clear that Pennsylvanians need to do their part to eliminate mosquito breeding areas around their homes."

When transmitted to people, the virus can cause West Nile encephalitis, an infection that can cause an inflammation of the brain. Anyone can get the virus, but older adults and people with compromised immune systems have the highest risk of developing severe illness because their bodies have a harder time fighting off disease.

BOOST PRODUCTION IN THIN ALFALFA FIELDS

No till drill Century BMR Sorghum Sudan into your old stands of alfalfa after first cutting to boost the tonnage this summer. Century BMR is high in protein, digestibility and sugars. The BMR (Brown Mid Rib) Trait significantly increases digestibility without hurting the yield. Has potential to double the yield of thin old stands.

Makes high quality balage or haylage. Cows go for it and milk well on Century BMR. Grazers are very happy with the performance of Century BMR to fill in the "Summer Slump."

Century BMR is available exclusively from King's Agri Seeds.

ICE BOX CAKE

Part 1: Separate

4 eggs

To the yolks, add:

½ cup sugar

Beat until smooth. Add:

4 teaspoons water

2 teaspoons vinegar

Beat until light.

Beat whites and add:

½ cup sugar

Beat until stiff. Combine the two parts and add:

1 cup flour

½ teaspoons baking powder

Bake in cake tin at 350 degrees until it springs back when lightly touched.

Part 2: Separate:

4 eggs

To the yolks, add:

3 tablespoons sugar

Melt:

½ pound bittersweet chocolate

Add:

5 tablespoons coffee

Add chocolate and coffee mixture to yolks.

Beat whites and add to chocolate mixture. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Tear cake into cubes. Pour chocolate over half the cubes. Repeat layers. Chill until chocolate is firm. Serve with homemade whipped cream. Very rich!

This was always the most favorite thing my mom made. I always think of her while making this. It's rich—serve small dishes.

VEGETABLE PIZZA

2 packages crescent dinner rolls

2 8-ounce packages cream cheese

1 package dry Hidden Valley ranch dressing

¾ cup sour cream

Shredded cheese such as mozzarella or mild cheddar

Spread rolls on large cookie sheet. Bake at 375 for about 8 minutes-until lightly browned. Cool. Mix soft cream cheese and sour cream and dry party dip. Spread on cool crust. Top with sliced fresh vegetables and shredded cheese. Examples: cauliflower, mushrooms, broccoli, black olives, celery, radishes, tomatoes, pepperoni, peppers, cucumbers, etc.

Put in refrigerator until you are ready to serve. Cut into small pieces and serve. Keeps well in refrigerator for a couple of days.

My mom, Marilyn, is extra special because she is the mother of three different dairy princesses. My sisters, Sandy and Alicia, and I were very lucky to have a mom like her to support and encourage us throughout our reigns.

My reign as the Berks County Dairy Princess is coming to an end. I would like to thank the farmers and other people who helped to make my year as dairy princess a success. Even though I will not be dairy princess after May 18, I will still help to represent the dairy industry that farmers work extremely hard to create.

Mom has helped me make this and the punch recipe below for many promotions this year. I hope that you try them and I am sure that you will love them!

Just keep one thing in mind that my mom has told me for as long as I can remember. When you purchase dairy products, buy them real and keep them cool!

FROSTY APPLE PUNCH

1 gallon milk

1 gallon ice cream

1 apple juice drink box

1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 teaspoon nutmeg

Just mix and enjoy!

Are you looking for a fresh, fast treat that you can make for Mom on Mother's Day, take to a party or picnic?

This Frosty Apple Punch is a cool refreshing drink that my mom absolutely loves. Try it. I am sure that you will love it too!

MASHED POTATO FILLING

1 cup celery

1 cup butter

1 medium onion

2 packages bread cubes

6 eggs, beaten

2 big pinches saffron

1 cup boiling water

3 teaspoons salt

1 teaspoon pepper

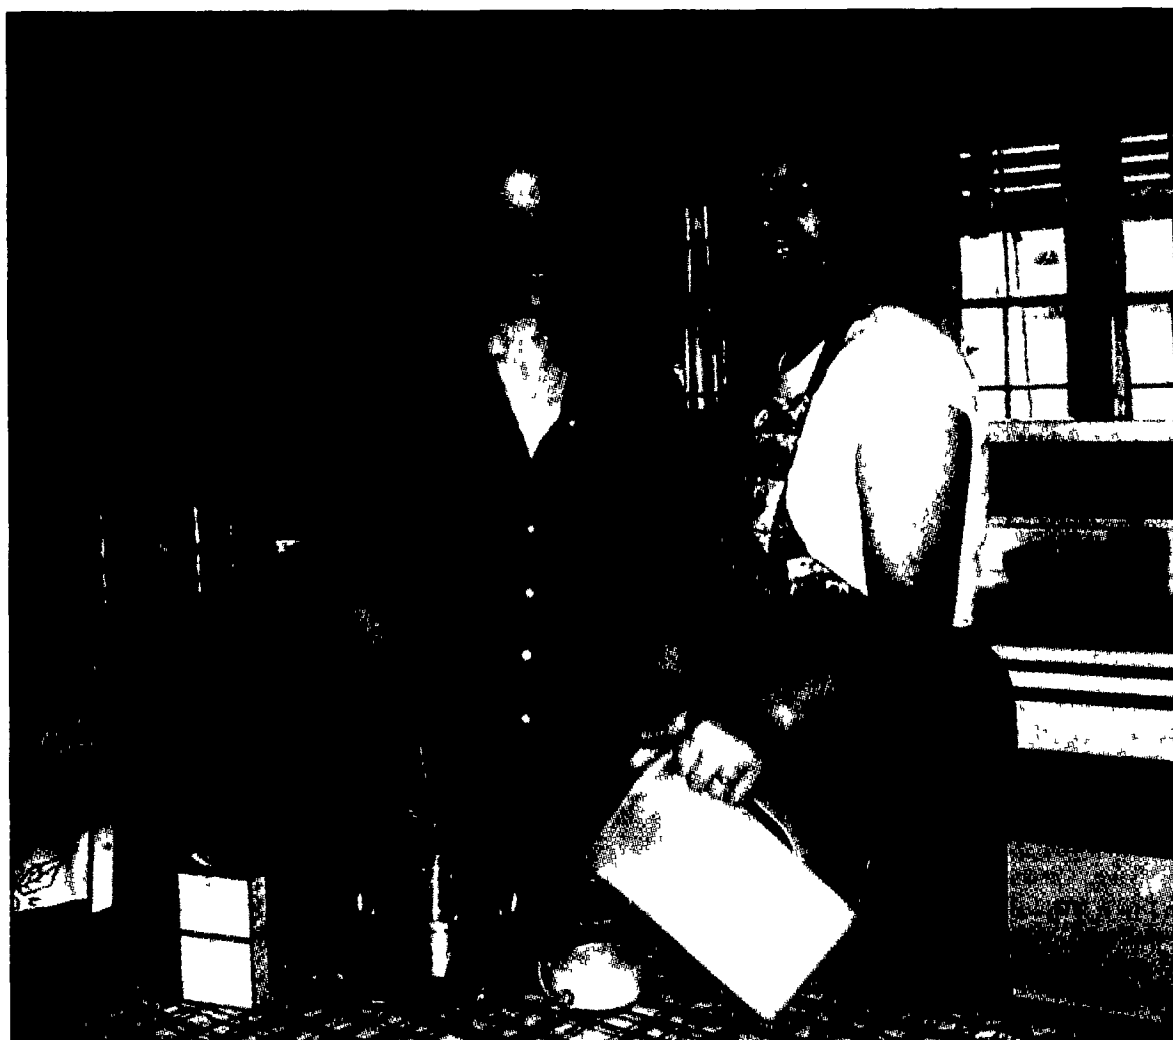

1 quart mashed potatoes

Put saffron in boiling water. Cook celery and onion in butter about 15 minutes. Pour over bread cubes and mix. Add the remaining ingredients, mixing between each. Be sure the finished product is very moist, add more milk if necessary. Put in greased casseroles. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes, or until heated thoroughly. Also delicious stuffed in pork chops. This makes a large amount. Make it all and freeze extra for quick, delicious meals on those busy days.

This is a very tasty recipe, which my mother gets a lot of requests for. So I thought I would share it with you.

Kari Martin, left, thinks her mom's (Joyce Martin's) tapioca pudding is the best. Joyce said she learned to make the recipe by standing by her mother's side. Her mother did not use recipes with measurements. Instead she filled a kettle ¾ full with milk and added a dash of this and a bit of that. Joyce figured out the correct proportions so that she can teach Kari to carry on the family tradition.

From Generation To Generation

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "My mom was an excellent cook," Joyce Martin, Ephrata, said. "But she didn't use measurements for her recipes. I wanted to learn to make things like she did. So, I needed to stand next to her and literally figure out the measurements."

Joyce wanted to serve the same great food she loved during her growing up years to her husband Leonard and daughters Kari, 18; Jenna, 15; and Stephanie, 13.

She achieved that goal and now her daughters are trying to imitate their mother's successful cooking.

The Martins operate the dairy farm in which Joyce grew up as the fourth generation on the Ephrata farm. Joyce jokes that her husband was the one who needed to adjust to a milking schedule without time off.

"Leonard grew up on a beef farm, and worked for a hog farmer. But coming here was his first exposure to dairying," Joyce said.

Two of Joyce's favorite loves are milking cows and cooking. She finds herself doing both just because she loves it. Joyce also works part-time as an accountant for a tax management firm. Even at work she finds herself organizing events that require her cooking expertise. She also is one of the coordinators at the family's church kitchen and for the Ephrata Fair Farm Women's booth. She also holds cooking classes as a 4-H leader.

Recently the Martins updated the barn by installing a one-touch milking system and tunnel ventilation.

"Both were needed, but it's taking some time to adjust," Joyce said. She explained that the tunnel ventilation is noisier than the quietness she came to cherish in the barn. Joyce helps milk the 60 cows every morning. The fringe benefit is the allotment of time to converse with her husband. But the tunnel ventilation makes it more difficult to carry on a conversation than before.

Their three daughters also help in the barn. By taking turns, each daughter spends two evenings a week milking. Kari said that she also milks Saturday morning.

Kari, an FFA officer at Ephrata High School, has helped with dairy promotion in Lancaster County for three years. Next month, Kari plans to try out for the county dairy princess.

"I really enjoy meeting so many different people. My favorite is doing school promotions," Kari said.

Enjoying her mother's good cooking isn't the only fringe benefit for Kari. She credits her family and faith with making her the person she is today.

Expect to hear more from Kari as she continues promoting dairy products.

TAPIOCA PUDDING

3½ cups milk
3 tablespoons tapioca
1 egg, beaten
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients in pan except vanilla. Let stand 5-10 minutes. Cook over medium heat until it is boiling, stirring constantly. Cool for 20 minutes, stirring a few times. Add vanilla.

Not only is this one of my grandmother's favorite recipe, but also my mother's, and our entire family's. I remember when I was little, and had the big responsibility of stirring. Hope your family enjoys it as much as ours.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

So there I was, hustling about the calf barn, my brain focused on what I could write here about mothers, while my hands fixed bottles for our bovine babies.

Mothers are our lifeblood on the farm. We have mothers in the barn and mothers-in-waiting in the meadow. We have mothers at the ponds — one with a fluffy gosling and others in progress. We have our first turkey mother, proudly patrolling little balls of streaky-brownish fluff stealthily sneaking through forests of grass. We have mother robins and mother bluebirds, mother groundhogs, mother squirrels, mother deer. They're all part of what we do.

So, there I was, deep in thought while filling bottles, when a loud wailing erupts, literally, at my feet. A glance down and I make eye contact with the frightened, howling face of a chubby, tabby cat. She is one of the rodent-patrol barn cats but friendly enough to mingle with the rest at feeding time.

This cat is half-squatted and straining, half-way in and half-way out of the door. Her ear-splitting howling-meowing couples with fear and confusion in her wide, yellow-green eyes. While it is obvious to me this cat is about to give birth, she apparently doesn't have a clue. Also obvious is that she has come for help, terrified by whatever is happening to her.

So I reach down to pick her up for relocation to a more private spot. She thanks me by lunging around and biting my hand. I am not offended. This cat is scared and in pain, and, for all she knows, I might intend her more. Since I'm still wearing a pair of latex gloves from milking, her lash-out doesn't penetrate. A second attempt at picking her up earns a re-run of the bite attempt.

By wrapping the howling cat in a hand towel snagged from the sink, I am able to move her, without hazarding my health, the few steps to an empty, well-bedded calf pen. Gently laying her down, I stroke her back; and after a few moments, she settles down. I walk away, grab a bottle of milk, slip it into a holder for the waiting calf, turn around and nearly fall over the tabby cat sitting back outside the pen. Quietly. A peek into the pen reveals a soggy, orange-tinted, tiny newborn, mewling softly.

I retrieve the cat (she doesn't bite me this time), pet her a bit more and set her back inside the pen, stroking and talking to her. Gently, I nudge the wee bit of wet fur close to her warm belly. After a few moments, she settles down and begins to lick her baby clean.

Five minutes later, I glance in again to find the cat pushing shortly thereafter a soggy, solid-black kitten arrives, getting prompt and enthusiastic motherly attention. When I reach in to stroke our new mother, she nudges back at my hand with her forehead, but makes no attempt to leave this sudden new responsibility.

Uncertain that she is totally settled down, I set containers of food and milk inside the pen, so she doesn't feel a need to take off hunting for dinner. She responds by practically inhaling the offering, then returns her attention to cleaning up the kittens.

A peek into the pen is the first order of calf feeding next morning. It appears our new mother has not budged from the spot, and remains tightly snuggled around her babies as they nurse. She purrs vigorously in response to being petted, but stays glued to the spot.

How swiftly and strongly the bond of motherhood forms.

In the cat's trembling body and confused fearful face, I could almost see reflected the indelible memory of my own new motherhood. Slightly confused, somewhat frightened, threaded through with a sense of tremendous pride, is exactly how I remember the first few hours of new motherhood. Friendly, understanding hands can help, but only one being — a mother — can actually, physically, "walk the walk" that brings forth a new life.

That experience, somewhat awestruck and at least a little frightening, almost without fail swiftly grows into a bond of fierce pride, defensive protectiveness and tremendous tenacity.

Mom comes in all shapes and sizes — and, here on the farm, furred, feathered and spotted-hide-covered as well. But they all seem to share one trait: an almost instant and abiding streak of Mother Love.

So to all you moms out there who can identify with the jumble of emotions shared by at least one new mother cat...we offer our love and our thanks.

And we ask God for an extra measure of blessing for mothers everywhere!

Food Safety Guidelines For Bake Sales

I will always remember Mrs. Taylor's Butterhorn Crescent Rolls. They just melted in your mouth. My mother would buy them whenever the Rush Methodist Church was having a bake sale. Since Mrs. Taylor herself usually delivered them to our house, we often got them before the bake sale even took place.

These days many nonprofit organizations still hold bake sales to earn money. Most of the items are made at home and transported to the site of the bake sale. If your organization is planning one this season, there are a few food safety tips to keep in mind:

To reduce the risk of food-borne illness, consider preparing baked items at a central kitchen rather than in individual homes.

This will allow you to keep an eye on safe food handling practices such as washing hands and sanitizing kitchen equipment and surfaces.

Check with your local health department or Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture to see if a food license is needed to conduct a bake sale.

Check with your organization's insurance company to see if your organization has the appropriate insurance in the event of an outbreak.

Those who prepare the baked goods need to be free from any illness such as the flu, cold, diarrhea or nausea. Hands and arms should be free from cuts and sores. Remind volunteers to wash their hands before beginning to prepare foods and keep pets out of the preparation area.

Ask your group members to prepare foods such as fruit pies, cakes, cookies, muffins, candy and homemade bread for the bake sale.

Foods that should not be accepted for sale are custard pie, pumpkin pie, real cream pies, meringue pies, cream-filled cupcakes and doughnuts, or cream cheese fillings and frostings. These foods contain dairy products or eggs and are considered potentially hazardous foods. Home canned foods, flavored oils and jar breads should not be for sale because of the risk of botulism.

All foods should be tightly wrapped or sealed during transport to the site or the sale. Do not transport foods when the family pet is in the car.

Some people have food allergies and can become ill from eating certain foods or ingredients. Alert customers to potential problems by asking your bakers to supply a written list of all ingredients for each of the items that is for sale.

If spoons, forks or other utensils are available for customers, place the utensils so the customer can pick it up without touching the food contact surface (i.e. tines of fork or bowl of spoon).

Wrap each item to prevent cross contamination. Ask only the volunteers who have washed their hands to handle and wrap the items. To further reduce the risk of contamination, regularly clean and sanitize the food contact surfaces and provide a trash container to dispose of spoons, toothpicks, napkins and so on.

At the bake sale site, keep all foods at least 6 inches off the ground or floor. This will help prevent pests from getting into foods.

Remind volunteers working at the bake sale to wash hands before beginning to work and after each break, especially when using the restroom or smoking. If gloves are used, hands need to be washed before putting on gloves.

Ask volunteer bakers to label their donations with their name, address and phone number and keep a list of all who donated and which food items they donated in case of any necessary follow-up.

If your non-profit group is interested in receiving food safety training at a nominal cost, Penn State Cooperative Extension has a three-hour program, Cooking for Crowds, A Volunteer's Guide to Safe Food Handling which will be available for groups in the fall of 2002. Contact your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office for information.

Lehigh County Celebrates 4-H Centennial

OREFIELD (Lehigh Co.) — Three hundred 4-H alumni, current members and their families gathered to celebrate the national 4-H Centennial Saturday, April 27, at Jordan Lutheran Church, Orefield.

Alumni renewed friendships, viewed memorabilia, shared scrapbooks, photographs, plaques, trophies, and ribbons. Several sewing and room improvement projects were also on display.

Although 4-H started in 1902 in several different states, the first recorded 4-H club in Lehigh County was a pig feeding club in the southern part of the county in 1918. Two years later a second pig feeding club held meetings for about six months. During the 1920's sewing, potato, strawberry, and room improvement projects began to flourish.

A 4-H uniform sewn by Pauline Bear Acker in 1933 was on display. She and the other girls in the Weisenberg 4-H Sewing Club made uniforms. The uniforms are documented in a photograph of Pauline and two friends wearing them during 4-H Club Week at Penn State. Mildred Kuhns lent her 4-H uniform, made in the 1940's, for display. LaRue Samuels, now of Breinigsville, brought the pattern from which she made her uniform.

During the 1940's and 1950's at least five clubs played softball against each other in a 4-H league. Plaques and trophies from those games were on display.

Project books and record books stretching back to 1934 were on display. Carl Heintzelman lent his entire collection of project and leader books for the tractor maintenance project for which he, another volunteer and county agent Glenn Ellenberger were trained. Lehigh County was the site of the first tractor maintenance 4-H club in the state.

Current 4-H clubs, including the Tropical Jungle 4-H Club in Allentown, had displays at the event too.

The program featured three alumni and a current member describing the impact the 4-H experience has had on them. Ray Huber, Macungie, spoke about his experiences in the 1930's and 1940's. He completed steer projects, including showing a champion steer at the Farm Show. He also carried capon, sweet corn, potato and other projects. Later he became a volunteer 4-H club leader.

Ruth Ohl, Coopersburg, wove the theme of buttons through her 4-H experiences beginning in the 1950's in the Weisenberg Home Ec. Club where she began sewing a three-button sampler. In 1958 she joined the Lehigh County Horse and Pony 4-H Club as it organized under the direction of Ralph Zettlemoyer. She displayed the buttons from her horse ribbons. Now she collects buttons and has become a member of a button-collecting club.

Gail Post, New Tripoli, shared her experiences in the Germansville Happy Homemakers 4-H Club, the county beef club and the county sheep club. One year she was the polled Hereford queen for the state and needed an outfit appropriate for her duties as queen. As part of a sewing project she made jeans, vest, jacket, and a blouse which on display along with her western hat and boots. She participated in State Fashion Revue that year.

Erin Lichtenwalner, Coplay, spoke of the leadership skills she has learned as a volunteer camp counselor at 4-H camp. As part of the evening program, the current members taking sewing projects gave a fashion show. Proclamations in honor of the 4-H Centennial were read.

A 64-page Commemorative Centennial Book filled with photographs through the decades of Lehigh County 4-H is available for sale. It can be purchased at the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension office, 4184 Dorney Park Road, Room 104, Allentown, PA, or it can be mailed. The book costs $5 if picked up at the office. It costs $7.25 if it is mailed. Checks should be made payable to the Lehigh County 4-H Development Fund.

Right Flowers, Feeders Attracts Hummingbirds

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — By putting up feeders and planting tempting flowers, you can draw hummingbirds to your garden year after year, says a wildlife biologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"If you have the right flowers and feeder, you even can draw hummingbirds into a suburban environment," says Margaret Brittingham, associate professor of wildlife resources.

"People love hummingbirds because they're so extreme in their looks, size and beauty," she says. "They're the smallest bird in Pennsylvania, and they have very iridescent feathers. They're also very tame around people. You can attract them right to your kitchen window."

Hummingbirds are fun to watch for their unusual flight. "They move their wings in a figure eight pattern," Brittingham says. "They can fly both forwards and backwards and hover in mid-air. You'll often know a hummingbird is near by the humming sound made by their wings." This hovering flight allows hummingbirds to maneuver around flowers like bees.

"You'll also see them do an aerial 'pendulum display,'" Brittingham says. "The male flies up and down like a pendulum to attract a female, or to defend a feeding site. Hummingbirds also will chase each other — they're fairly aggressive for such tiny birds."

Although 16 hummingbird species are native to the United States, only the ruby-throated hummingbird is found east of the Mississippi River.

Each September, the birds migrate to Mexico and Central America, flying nonstop 600 miles across the Gulf of Mexico. In the spring, the birds return, following the blooming of early-season flowers, such as azaleas, rhododendrons and columbine. They arrive in Pennsylvania from mid-April to early May.

To attract hummingbirds to your yard, Brittingham suggests planting masses of flowers. "Hummingbirds like tubular flowers that are orange, red and pink," she says. "You should have a variety of flowers blooming from mid- to late-April through the summer season."

"Early in the season, azaleas and rhododendrons are good choices. For early summer, plant bleeding hearts and columbines. During late summer, hummingbirds come to bergamot and the late summer wildflowers. You also may want to purchase hanging plants, such as fuschia."

Other early summer flowers that attract hummingbirds include fly-honeysuckle, fire pink, tulip poplar, weigala and trumpet honeysuckle.

Mid- to late-summer flowers that attract hummingbirds also include spotted touch-me-not, trumpet vine, cardinal-flower, garden phlox, coralberry, hollyhock, Turk's cap lily, rose of Sharon, butterfly milkweed, butterfly bush, bee-balm and impatiens.

Hummingbirds play a major role in pollination. Tubular flowers with long stamens are specially adapted to be pollinated by hummingbirds.

Using long beaks and long tongues, the birds feed on the flowers' nectar. As they brush against the flowers, pollen sticks to their bodies, then transfers to the next flower they visit.

Homeowners also can hang a feeder to draw hummingbirds to a specific location, like a kitchen window. Hummingbird feeders can be purchased at garden supply centers. "Hummingbirds will return to the same feeder each year," Brittingham says. "Many times they'll hover at the window before you even put the feeder up."

Brittingham suggests filling feeders with a nectar of one part sugar to four parts water. "A stronger solution can be harmful to their kidneys, while a weaker says. "Some people think honey and water is healthier. But it ferments and grows a mold that can be very harmful to hummingbirds."

Although some people have recommended adding red food coloring to the nectar, Brittingham says it adds no benefit. "The birds will be attracted to the red plastic on the feeder," she says.

You also can entice hummingbirds by purchasing a misting attachment for a birdbath, available at some garden supply stores. "Hummingbirds like to fly through the mist to bathe," Brittingham says.

Finally, make sure the feeder and birdbath are out of reach of cats. "Cats are extremely proficient hunters — and they hunt whether they're hungry or not," Brittingham says. "You also should minimize your use of pesticides. Pesticides may harm the flowers hummingbirds feed on, as well as the hummingbirds themselves."

For more information about hummingbirds, see the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences publication, "Pennsylvania Wildlife No. 6: Attracting Hummingbirds." Single copies are available free of charge from your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office, or from the College of Agricultural Sciences Publications Distribution Center (call 814-865-6713).

Enter Dairy Recipe Drawing To Win Prizes

June Dairy Month is "mooving" into the calendar of events. That means it's time to send in your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing.

June Dairy Month salutes dairy farmers everywhere for their hard work in providing milk, which we so often take for granted. Lancaster Farming's annual drawing reminds us of all the wonderful dairy products available to produce culinary delights.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and nondairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and of your family is preferred. We and our readers love to "see" the people who send in the recipes.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the picture.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are at least 18-years-old. We require this because children who send in recipes often inadvertently miss measurements, ingredients or a part of the instructions.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address. If we do not have your complete mailing address, we cannot send your prize if you win.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 3 to be eligible for the drawing. The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners. Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winners will be printed in the June 29 issue.

Send entries to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522 or e-mail to lgood@lfpnews.com.

Well Preserved

Rhubarb

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Rhubarb is the vegetable that is enjoyed as a fruit. By itself it provides a unique tart flavor. Unlimited possibilities exist for combining rhubarb with other foods to create delicious sauces, pies, cakes, cobblers, muffins, and even jams.

Although fresh rhubarb is at its peak through May and June, harvesting can continue through the summer if plants have adequate water and don't wilt from the intense heat of July and August.

Rhubarb can be found at roadside stands and in the supermarket, but the quality will be much better if it can be pulled from the garden and used before it has a chance to dry.

Choose rhubarb stems that are bright pink, crisp, and free of disease or insect damage. Pull the stems from ground level instead of cutting them.

At any given time, harvest less than one-third of the stalks from any one plant. Rhubarb leaves are poisonous and should never be eaten.

Rhubarb is a good source of dietary fiber, vitamin C, and potassium. Although it contains a significant amount of calcium, it combines with oxalic acid preventing its being absorbed by the body.

One cup raw rhubarb contains only 20 calories, but the added sugar or other sweeteners more than double that when eaten.

Your well preserved rhubarb can provide a stimulating change to your mid-winter diet. It can be canned or frozen and is sometimes dried.

To can rhubarb, select young, tender, well-colored stalks. An average of 10 1/4 pounds is needed per canner load of 7 quarts; an average of 7 pounds is needed per canner load of 9 pints. Trim off leaves. Wash stalks, and cut into 1/4 to 1-inch pieces. Use the hot pack method of canning for rhubarb. In a large saucepan, add 1/4 cup sugar for each quart of fruit. Let stand until juice appears. Heat gently to boiling.

Fill jars immediately leaving 1/4 inch headspace. Remove air bubbles. Wipe jar rims. Adjust lids and process pints or quarts in a boiling water bath for 15 minutes or process in a pressure canner at 6 pounds pressure for 8 minutes.

Frozen rhubarb can be packed into the jars raw or pre-heated.

Susan Reynolds, Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Florida, says heating rhubarb in boiling water one minute and cooling promptly in cold water helps retain color and flavor. Watch the time closely as overcooking will cause it to lose its shape.

A dry or syrup pack can be used. Dry pack simply involves putting either raw or blanched rhubarb into containers without sugar leaving 1/4-inch headspace. The individually quick freezing method also works well with the dry pack. Spread a single layer of cut rhubarb on trays, freeze until firm, then put in air tight bags or containers.

A syrup pack involves covering the rhubarb with a 40 percent syrup (1 cup sugar to 2 cups water) and allowing adequate head space for expansion 1/4 inch for pints and 1 inch for quarts in wide top containers. In general, up to one fourth of the sugar may be replaced by corn syrup or mild flavored honey. When cooking with rhubarb that is frozen in syrup; remember to include the sugar as part of the recipe.

Freezing already cooked rhubarb dishes saves time when serving.

Plain sweetened sauces or those thickened with tapioca freeze well. (See recipe below.)

Making a large recipe, using part of it now and freezing part for future use is an easy method for preserving.

Freezing small containers (1 or 2 servings per person) works well. Breads, cakes, cobblers, and some pies freeze well, but don't freeze rhubarb custard pies.

Rhubarb Pineapple Sauce
20-ounce can crushed pineapple
2 tablespoons instant tapioca
1 1/2 cups sugar
6 cups rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces

1 1/2 cups crushed pineapple
Drain pineapple juice from can into 3-quart saucepan. Add tapioca and sugar. Stir. Let set 5 minutes.

Add rhubarb and bring to a boil; cover and cook over low heat until rhubarb is tender and tapioca is clear, about 8 minutes. Add crushed pineapple. Chill. May be frozen in small containers.

The following recipe is a freezer jam with flavored gelatin as the thickener instead of commercial pectin. Gelatin based freezer jams seem to be less sticky than pectin based jams. The gelatin gives this spread a good strawberry flavor without the berries. If orange peel is not available, one tablespoon frozen orange juice concentrate may be substituted.

Easy Rhubarb Pineapple Jam
5 cups chopped fresh rhubarb
2 1/2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
8-ounce can crushed pineapple, in unsweetened juice, undrained
3-ounce package strawberry-flavor gelatin

In Dutch oven or large saucepan, combine rhubarb, sugar, orange peel and pineapple; mix well. Bring to a boil; boil 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; cool 30 minutes.

Stir gelatin into cooled rhubarb mixture until dissolved. Ladle mixture into five clean, hot 8-oz. jars or moisture-vapor proof freezer containers, leaving 1/2-inch headspace; cover with tight-fitting lids.

Store in freezer until ready to use. Thaw in refrigerator several hours before serving.

Store in refrigerator for up to one month. Makes 4 1/2 cups.

Celebrities Sing Ode To Moms

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — You've seen them in magazines sporting milk mustaches, now you'll hear those milk mustaches making music too. For the first time, famous celebrities will sing milk's praises on the radio. The new campaign that hit the airwaves in mid-February taps well-known recording artists to give a musical thank you to their own moms for serving them milk as a kid.

First up to the microphone to sing "thanks mom" in song are "Queen of Soul" Aretha Franklin, country crooner Wynonna Judd and R&B legend Aaron Neville. Franklin shows "respect" for her mom with a soul-stirring tune, while Judd's heart-felt tribute to mom, Naomi, is done in true Nashville style and Neville offers a smooth ballad of thank to his "Momma."

"These charming tunes from these 'big kids' are an attention-grabbing way to remind moms that her influence is long lasting," says Scott Higgins, spokesperson for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. "The lyrics say it all — even many years and many glasses of milk later — moms are recognized for giving their kids a great nutritional start that will stay with them a lifetime."

Kids' need for calcium is well established," says Higgins. "Research shows that moms are the number one influence on kids' milk drinking behavior and that healthy eating habits formed at an early age are carried on to teen years and then into adulthood."

The series of 45- and 60-second "Celebrity Ode to Mom" radio spots, sponsored by America's dairy farmers and milk processors, are designed to get mom tapping her toes while the lyrics communicate the benefits of making milk a part of their family routine.

Most stars will be added to the radio campaign throughout 2002. Enjoy the lyrics to these tunes:

Aretha Franklin Lyrics
Spoken:
Hi, this is Aretha Franklin. And this song is for my mom, for giving me milk as a kid.

Song:
Mom I'd like to thank you For the gift of song And giving me milk So I grew up strong Momma, I remember And I'd hear you say Aretha drink your milk Three glasses a day Whether it's in my glass Or in my bowl Milk's nine vitamins and minerals

Help enrich my soul Mom thanks again This is from my heart The milk you poured me Gave me my big start I love you Mom
Spoken:
Moms, give you kids milk,

and one day, they'll thank you in their own special way, too.

Song:
Got milk?
Aaron Neville Lyrics
Momma I want to thank you For being there for me You gave me milk The rest is history When I was a kid I'd always hear you say (You'd say) Aaron drink your milk It'll help you grow big and strong someday I still drink a lot of milk Think of you all the time Milk helped give me strong bones

And it tasted so fine Momma I appreciate the way you Took care of us Gave us three glasses a day And it tasted so fine Mom I want to thank you Milk's nine vitamins and minerals Helped make me who I am I'm your biggest fan Thank you Mom Moms give your kids milk And one day, they'll thank you in their own special way too

Song:
Got milk?
Wynonna Judd Lyrics
Mom, thanks for raising us in Ashland, Kentucky You poured us milk we sure were lucky Nine vitamins n' minerals showed you care Gave me strong teeth n' bones to go with my red hair When I'm on tour With my guitar I stock the bus with milk and send my love from afar Mom, I raise my glass in honor of you and sing your praises for all that you do I've got kids of my own Mom, I follow your lead 'cuz milk is what their little bodies need

Yeah. Milk is what their little bodies need Moms, give your kids milk, and one day, they'll thank you in their own special way, too.

CAROLYN N. MOYER

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.)

— Sara Derstine, daughter of Jon and Betsy Derstine, of Mansfield, was crowned the 2002 Tioga County Dairy Princess Saturday, April 27.

"I'm looking forward to a good year," said Derstine after accepting the crown.

Derstine is in 10th grade at Mansfield Junior-Senior High School where she plays flute in the school band. She is also a member of her church's youth group and puppet ministry team.

Serving as Alternate Dairy Princess is Renee Norman, daughter of David and Aggie Norman of Liberty. Renee will graduate from Liberty Junior-Senior High School in 2004 and is the president of her 10th grade class, a member of the key club, student council, the school chorus, and band. She is also on the volleyball and track teams.

Judges Elaine Noble, Bonnie Borek, and Clair Pratt watched as the two contestants each presented a skit and answered an impromptu dairy-related question.

Derstine posed as the "dairy nutrient gardener for her presentation. As she listed the nutrients found in milk, she reminded the crowd that drinking milk and eating dairy products gives you a healthy body.

Norman was in the business of transforming imitation dairy products into real dairy products as she entertained the crowd as the "Dairy Fairy."

The question asked of the girls by master of ceremonies J. Craig Williams: "With statistics showing a decline in the number of farms, most importantly dairy farms, in the country and in the world, how would you, as a dairy princess, encourage youth of today to choose a career in agriculture."

"First, I would ask them where their food comes from. Then I would explain that producing food is very important to them, and they should help to produce the food," said Derstine.

Norman gave a similar response. "I would explain to them how dairy and agriculture are how we live - it's our food and our milk," she said.

Derstine accepted the crown from 2001 Tioga County Dairy Princess Kimberly Baker, daughter of William and the late Becky Baker.

In her farewell address, Baker thanked everyone for making her year memorable.

Kaitlyn Johnson, daughter of Sandra and Charles Johnson and Crystal Miles, daughter of Kenny Miles and Elizabeth and Andrew Costley will serve as Dairy Ambassadors for the coming year. Mariah Miles, daughter of Dale and Michelle Miles, Felicia Prutsman, daughter of Richard and Diane Prutsman and Angela Sweely, daughter of James and Emily Sweely, will round out the dairy promotion team by serving as dairy maids.

Award-Winning Author To Speak At Garden Expo

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Patricia Lanza, winner of the Quill and Trowel award from the Garden Writers Association of America, will be speaking at the Spring Garden Expo to be conducted at Lakeside Elementary in Honesdale on Saturday, May 25, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Lanza has perfected her method of layering that creates bountiful gardens without digging, tilling or weeding.

The Expo is from 10 a.m. to 4

Easy Fat-Free Topping

12-ounces evaporated skim milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

One hour before preparing topping, place unopened can of evaporated skim milk in freezer. At same time, refrigerate small whipping bowl and beaters.

Shake can and pour cold milk into refrigerated bowl. Using electric mixer at high speed, beat cold evaporated milk with cold beaters until slightly stiff; gradually beat in sugar and vanilla at high speed scraping bowl occasionally, until very stiff when mixture is lifted with a rubber spatula.

Serve immediately. Makes about 3 cups.

If milk doesn't whip well, it needs to be colder. Put the bowl filled with milk and beaters back in the freezer for about 15 minutes and try again.

Makes 3 cups. Exchanges: ¼ skim milk, 26 calories, 4 g carbohydrate, 2 g protein, 0 g fat, 2 mg cholesterol, 32 mg sodium, 0 g fiber.

Raspberry Bars

½ cup whole-wheat flour
½ cup all-purpose flour
1 cup old-fashioned oats
¼ teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons light brown sugar
⅓ cup olive or canola oil
⅔ cup low-sugar raspberry jam

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spray and 8-inch square pan with cooking spray. Line with aluminum foil and spray again.

In medium bowl, combine flours, oatmeal, baking soda, brown sugar, and oil. Press 1 cup mixture onto bottom of prepared pan. Spread jam to within ¼-inch of edge. Sprinkle reserved crumb mixture over top and lightly press into the jam.

Bake 35-40 minutes. Cool on rack. Remove baked cookies with aluminum foil from pan and place on cutting board. Use a sharp knife to cut into 24 bars. Use a metal spatula to remove bars from aluminum foil. Store covered.

Makes 16. Exchanges for 1 bar: 1 starch and 1 fat (1 carbohydrate choice). 116 calories, 17 g carbohydrate, 2 g protein, 5 g fat, 0 mg cholesterol, 20 mg sodium, 1 g fiber.

Chocolate Clouds

2 large egg whites, at room temperature
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 tablespoon cocoa

Preheat oven to 275 degrees. Line two baking sheets with aluminum foil or parchment paper.

In medium bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until frothy. Beat in salt and cream of tartar at high speed until soft peaks form when batter is lifted with spatula. Gradually add sugar and continue beating at high speed until peaks are stiff. Scrape sides of bowl and beat in vanilla at high speed. Use rubber spatula to gently fold in cocoa until well blended.

Drop by teaspoonfuls onto prepared cookie sheets. Bake 30-35 minutes. Immediately remove aluminum foil or parchment paper with baked cookies to rack. Cool one minute and remove cookies from foil and cool completely on rack. Store in covered container.

Makes 36. Serving size 3 cookies. Exchanges: ½ fruit (1 carbohydrate choice). Per serving: 36 calories, 9 g carbohydrates, 1 g protein, 0 fat, 0 mg cholesterol, 58 mg sodium, 9 g fiber.

Zip Zap Pie Crust

½ cup whole-wheat flour
½ cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons finely chopped nuts
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons solid vegetable shortening
2-3 tablespoons apple juice
1 egg white, beaten

Have a 9-inch pie plate ready. In medium bowl, combine flours, nuts, and salt. Using pastry blender or two knives scissor-fashion, cut in shortening until crumbly. Sprinkle with 2-3 tablespoons apple juice and gently stir with fork until mixture forms ball. Cover with plastic wrap and flatten slightly; refrigerate 30 minutes.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Remove plastic wrap. With rolling pin, roll dough between two pieces of waxed paper or plastic wrap to 11-inch circle. Remove one piece of paper and place in pie plate paper-side up. Gently remove paper and press into pie plate. Turn edges under and flute. Prick bottom and sides of crust with fork. Brush with a small amount of beaten egg white. Let dry 5 minutes. Bake 5 minutes until golden brown. Cool on rack before filling.

Makes 9-inch pie crust. 8 servings. Exchanges: 1 fruit and 1 fat (1 carbohydrate choice). Per serving: 110 calories, 12 g carbohydrates, 3 g protein, 6 g fat, 0 mg cholesterol, 80 mg sodium, 1 g fiber.

Garden-Fresh Fruit, Veggies Best Nutrition

COLUMBUS, Ohio — I know someone who swears the fruits and vegetables she grows in her garden have more nutrients than what you buy at the store. Is that true?

It could very well be. It all depends on when the food is harvested and how it's treated once it's picked.

The nutrients in fruits and vegetables are at their peak when the fruit is fully ripe and still on the vine (or branch or stem). While fruits and vegetables are still growing, their cells get nutrients from the soil and air. Once they're cut off from that supply, the cells enter into a process called "senescence," or aging. During this phase, enzymes in the plant degrade cell walls. In turn, that allows certain chemical reactions involving oxygen to take place. That's how fruits and vegetables begin to lose nutrients.

So, if you pick a ripe tomato or strawberry from the vine and eat it almost immediately, you'll get more nutrients than you could hope for if it is held in storage for several days or longer.

Once harvested, how fruits and vegetables are treated makes a big difference in how many nutrients they retain. Fruits and vegetables are sensitive to heat, light and air — whether you pick them from your garden or buy them at the supermarket. Limiting their exposure to those elements helps preserve them.

Fruits and vegetables that are frozen lose some nutrients when they're blanched during processing, but once they reach freezing temperatures, the nutrient-loss process virtually stops cold.

Likewise, canned fruits and vegetables can lose vitamins from the high heat used in the canning process, but many nutrients remain both in the food and in the liquid surrounding it. Nutritionists often recommend using that liquid in rice, gravy, soups, casseroles or other dishes to make them more nutrient-dense.

When heating fruits and vegetables, you can retain more nutrients if you do so briefly, with very little water or oil. Too much water allows water-soluble nutrients, such as vitamins B and C, to escape; fat soluble-vitamins, such as vitamins A and E, can escape into butter or oil.

Foodborne Pathogens Short Course Scheduled

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's 2002 Food Microbiology Short Course focusing on "Detection and Control of Foodborne Pathogens" will be conducted May 15-17 at The Penn Stater Conference Center Hotel on the University Park campus.

Sponsored by the College of Agricultural Sciences, the course is for food scientists and technologists, small food processors and plant managers and others working with food microbiology issues.

"The course will offer a basic understanding of the ecology of microorganisms in foods," says Hassan Gourama, associate professor of food science and short course co-chair, including detection, enumeration, isolation and identification of such threats as E. coli 0157:H7, listeria, salmonella and mycotoxins. Instructors will cover the latest developments concerning foodborne pathogens and how they may be managed in a food plant environment under current regulations."

Wednesday morning sessions present an introduction to microbiology and foodborne pathogens and the role of detection methods in setting up an effective food-safety system. Wednesday afternoon sessions include detection of salmonella, listeria and E. coli 0157:H7, and laboratory sessions on basic food microbiology techniques.

Thursday's sessions will focus on setting up an in-house microbiology laboratory; detection techniques for fungi, mycotoxins and other demonstrations; and hands-on exercises. Friday's instruction includes a preview of future detection methods and an overview of current regulations regarding foodborne pathogens.

To request registration materials and a detailed schedule, call (814) 865-8301, or visit the Conferences and Short Courses Website at <http://conferences.cas.psu.edu>. For more information on conference content, call Hassan Gourama at (610) 396-6121. A registration fee of $350 includes all workshops, instructional materials, breaks and lunches.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

In looking for one thing, I found another thing. It is an old school book that my grandmother used in Rupp's School in 1864 — she was 10-years-old.

This manual of "Geography Combined with History and Astronomy" was published in 1862. Most of the book is written in question and answer form. Roman numerals are used to mark the 138 lessons. I noticed that Canada is called "British America." Almost every page has an unusual picture of a foreign country.

My knowledge of geography is not very good, but I've always liked the subject. When I told a lady, several years ago, that I was going to Hawaii she asked me if I was driving there. She must have missed one of her geography lessons.

Over the years I've accumulated a lot of very nice magazines. The problem is what to do with them. Some of them can be used by a retirement home nearby. Others, I fear, must be thrown away.

Everyday I gather asparagus and then freeze some. During hot weather it grows rapidly but on cold and rainy days there is little to cut. I've had to cover some plants in the evening and I'm hoping for warmer weather.

Despite the weather, the weeds grow just fine, and I have filled several wheelbarrow loads with them. They grow around the row of peony bushes and under the rhubarb. Even the grass under the mailbox, that the lawn mower cannot reach, has to be clipped. The dwarf white and pink tulips there bloomed very nicely this year. Each year I look forward to the forget-me-not blooming too.

Lady Beetles Causing Orchard Damage

WOOSTER, Ohio — It isn't enough that homeowners must battle to keep the multicolored Asian lady beetle out of their homes, now Ohio fruit growers must contend with another one of the insect's behavioral quirks: an insatiable appetite for sugar.

Ohio State University entomologists have documented large numbers of Asian lady beetles feeding on peaches, grapes, and apples, but whether the damage found on the crops is caused primarily by the insect, or by another host has yet to be determined.

"We've heard from field reports that 25 percent of some of the peach crop was damaged this season due to something nibbling on the fruit. Originally we thought it might be grasshoppers," said Kovach. "Then we started finding large numbers of lady beetles aggregating on damaged and undamaged fruit and are questioning whether they could do this type of damage."

The multicolored Asian lady beetle, although considered a pest because it tends to hone in on homes as overwintering sites, does have beneficial characteristics in that it feeds on aphids, scale insects and other agricultural pests. Its diet restriction of insects, however, is what makes the lady beetle's craving for nectar rather unusual.

"There is some unique behavioral shift going on that we don't understand yet that is causing the lady beetle to change its feeding preferences," said Kovach. "Between September 1 and October, when it heads off to find overwintering sites, there is a drop-off in aphid feeding and the insect's attraction to black light traps. They are interested in neither and seem to be going for the fruit."

If researchers' speculations hold true, the news won't bode well for fruit growers. "Peaches and grapes are at a greater risk because their soft skin is easily damaged," said Kovach. "In grapes, it could really be a problem because people are detecting the chemical smell from the beetles in wine."

The short time window that the lady beetles aggregate on the fruit is also a dilemma for growers who spray their orchards. "There are restrictions on certain pesticides that require one to wait several days after spraying before the fruit can be harvested," said Kovach.

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well—until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Pennsylvania Streams and Lakes

Stream MAP of Pennsylvania

Why every paddler needs this map

Pennsylvania is loaded with great paddling waters. This new edition of the famous Pennsylvania Stream Map highlights navigable streams and rivers and shows the degree of difficulty (highest letter/number the most difficult), access points, dams and waterfalls.

Professor Higbee's® Stream Map of Pennsylvania is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind.

This 3-foot-by-5-foot color map shows virtually all of the 45,000 miles of Pennsylvania streams plus lakes.

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps."

—John Pitarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH, Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake... then 'Professor Higbee's Stream Maps' are without question the finest."

—Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"I spent three hours looking at it [the Stream Map]. The accuracy, it's unbelievable."

—Victor Blauch

Farm Safety Day Kids' Camp A Success In Somerset County

SANDRA LEPLEY

Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN GROVE (Somerset Co.) — About 40 children and their parents attended and participated in Farm Safety Day Kids Camp, April 20, at the Berlin Community Grove in Somerset County.

"I think everyone learned a lot more about safety than they knew before," said Ashley Stoltzfus, 10, a fourth-grader at Berlin Elementary School and daughter of Don and Joanne Stoltzfus. "I had a lot of fun and I know all my friends did too. We learned about safety and what our role is on the family farm."

Although Farm Safety Day was held in Somerset County in the past, this year's event centered on a child's role in safety on the family farm.

Connie Oshop, field inspector for Schneiders Dairy in Pittsburgh, event sponsor, attended the day-long event and believed that despite rainy weather conditions, the day was well attended and very well received.

"It's amazing how many people came out even though most of the day was dreary and in the afternoon, it started raining," said Oshop. "It shows that parents want to keep their children safe and they want their children to learn about the importance of safety. That's a very important part of this whole day."

According to Miquel Savioff, extension agent in Somerset County, the event was not only a tool for teaching about farm safety, but it was also a lot of fun for children, their parents and those who came to help.

"Our primary purpose was to create awareness in children, an attitude of prevention," stressed Savioff. "It can happen at any moment to anyone. Children must have respect for the equipment, follow safety measures and manuals and abide by the safety rules. Even if one child is saved, then this event was worth it."

In 2000, 25 percent of farm-related fatalities in Pennsylvania affected children age 19 or younger, according to Penn State University statistics. National Safety Council statistics show that tractor rollover, truck-related injuries, machinery entanglements and drowning are the leading causes of death for agricultural workers under age 25.

In Somerset County, there were eight farm fatalities from 1990 to 1999 with six happening from 1995 to 1999 and two occurring from 1990 to 1994, explained Savioff. Statistics on how many children were affected by farm accidents are not available.

"Children are not exempt when it comes to accidents on the family farm," said Savioff. "They are also exposed to many of the same environmental hazards as those experienced by adult workers."

Penn State is currently running farm safety coalitions in three counties: Somerset, Huntingdon and Juniata counties. Penn State continues to be an educator of farm safety issues, mainly through Dr. Dennis Murphy, who is known on an international basis, and also through strong interest from the state's Department of Agriculture.

In addition to Schneider's Dairy, Somerset Farm Safety Coalition and Penn State Cooperative Extension in Somerset were also program sponsors.

For Drew Romesberg, a third-grader at Berlin Elementary School, the smokehouse provided by New Centerville Fire Department was really interesting and then the arrival of the medical helicopter in the afternoon was well worth the wait.

"I liked learning more about safety," said Romesberg. "I picked up a lot of tips today so I can tell my dad about safety later on and you never know when you might need to know these things."

Stacy Hay, a volunteer for the New Centerville Fire Department, explained that the department's smoke house, a trailer designed to educate people about fire hazards, was well received throughout the day. She said kids were asking several questions and adults participated as well.

Jill Stull, spokesperson for Conemaugh Memorial Hospital's MedStar I helicopter, explained that the pilot for the helicopter was not sure he would be able to land for the Farm Safety Day because of weather conditions but the long-awaited arrival of the medical helicopter finished the day with a grand finale.

"Education is sometimes the difference between life and death," said Connie Oshop. "Farm Safety Day for kids is important."

It only takes one simple mistake to change everyone's life on the family farm so we can never be too careful."

Representing both Scheffel Equipment and New Centerville Fire Department, volunteers explain machinery entanglement to children attending Farm Safety Day Kids Camp at Berlin Grove in Somerset County.

Delaware County 4-H Offers Horsemanship

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Many children daydream about owning a horse or pony of their very own, yet have no first hand horse knowledge or experience. Delaware County 4-H offers education to children eight to 18 about horse care, horse science and basic walk/trot riding skills.

Two class options are available: Summer Specials Horsemanship, offered in conjunction with 4-H Summer Specials Day Camp; and Horsemanship Classes, offered from April to October on weekends and weekday evenings.

In addition, the Silver Stirrups Horse and Pony Club meets once a month throughout the year. 4-H program participants must have been at least eight years old on Jan. 1, 2002.

Summer Specials Horsemanship is for children who have no experience with horses and would like to have their first experience riding and learning the basic care of a horse or pony. These classes meet for two and one-half hour sessions for four sessions in one week. Twelve children share four mounts.

The children have an opportunity to ride, complete chores in the barn (mucking out stalls, grooming horses, tacking up) and learn scientific information about horses and horse care. This program costs $125 and begins June 17.

Horsemanship classes also meet four times for two and one-hours each. The schedule for these classes varies by season. Details are in the program brochure. These classes of no more than eight children (sharing four mounts) cover the same information as the Summer Specials Horsemanship, but in greater depth and with more riding time for each individual.

With the smaller class size, instruction is customized to serve the child with no experience or with modest experience. The program is limited to walk/trot riding skills, so it is introductory, and not appropriate for an experienced rider.

The Horsemanship Classes cost $175 for the four meetings.

If you would like further information about this program or other 4-H opportunities, please call the Penn State Cooperative Extension office at (610) 690-2655 for a brochure.

Children and adults alike listen to paramedics and a pilot with Conemaugh Memorial Hospital's MedStar I helicopter during Farm Safety Day Kids Camp at Berlin Community Grove in Somerset County.

QUESTION — Sallie Nailor, 474 Sample Bridge Rd., Enola, PA 17025, wants instructions for crocheting pineapple doilies and tablecloths.

QUESTION — Timothy Martin, Mt. Pleasant Mills, wants to know if a token he has is of any value. The token is slightly larger than a penny. On one side is a picture of a railroad car with the words Pittsburgh Railways C.O. 1922. The other side says it is good for one fare. In the center is a three-cornered hole.

QUESTION — Frank Battista, 541 N. Henderson Rd., King of Prussia, would like to know where to buy life-size wood ornaments of cows, sheep, and goats for lawn display.

QUESTION — Another reader requested information on getting rid of pesty moles.

QUESTION — Kitty Legge, Ulster, wants to know if anyone has information on how to get a penpal from Scotland. Any age is fine. She also wants to know how to find information on her Cherokee Indian heritage. She does not have a computer.

QUESTION — Simon Renno, Mifflintown, purchased a grain cradle at a sale. The piece is in good condition, on the side is printed: H.S. Walck Greencastle, PA. Renno wants to know who is H.S. Walck, what year the cradles were made by that company, and what year they stop using them.

QUESTION — Linda Tyrpin, Jonestown, wants to know how to get rid of unwanted peonies without digging them out.

QUESTION — S.E. Brown, Richland, read somewhere that someone makes baskets from old phone books. She would like to know the name and address for the person or organization that does this.

QUESTION — Sara Stoltzfus, Cochranville, is looking for someone to fix the motors in her Niagara massage recliner. Does anyone know of anyone who is able to repair them?

QUESTION — Paul Chermiski, Unionville, wants to purchase an aluminum carport from a manufacturer and assemble it himself. The carports he sees for sale cost about $1,000, but the salespeople do not manufacture them. They order them, sell them, and install them to make a profit. He wants the name and phone number of the manufacturer.

QUESTION — Krista Schaible writes that a Bucks County friend needs information on how to get rid of colonies of bats. Their barn is literally infested with thousands of bats.

QUESTION — Shirley Orfanella, 1125 Slate Hill Rd., Quarryville, is looking for an old wooden "spool" like PP&L used for wire. She would like to use it to make a table.

QUESTION — L.Martin, Bethel, wants a Tri-Star vacuum sweeper or something similar in good working condition. If you have one to sell at a reasonable price, call her at (717) 933-8962.

QUESTION — Beth, no last name or address given, wants to know how to sterilize potting soil in the oven before planting vegetable seeds indoors.

QUESTION Ella Ebersol, 311 Newport Rd., Leola, PA 17540, will pay for the following used books in good condition: "Easy Growth in Reading, Looking Forward," 5th reader, Winstone by Gertrude Hildreth (can't determine where the book was printed), and "Around the Corner," a Ginn Basic Reader by Ginn and Company, copyrighted 1948-1953-1957-1961, Philippines copyright 1949.

QUESTION — Leon Spory, 730 Roaring Run Rd., Boswell, PA 15531-1946, wants seeds for a pole bean called Lazywife. He believes it is one of the best stringless bean he ever tried and is a good producer. He likes to plant a few seeds with the field corn, which eliminates the need for poles.

QUESTION — Margaret Marshall, Rochester Mills, wants the words to the poem, "Gossip the Barber," which she remembers was in a prose and poetry high school book in the 1940s.

QUESTION — C. Faus, Hegins, has some questions about rhubarb stalks. She writes that in the fall, before frost kills the leaves, she harvests rhubarb stalks. The leaves will not feed the roots after they are killed by frost anyway. Some people say the stalks and leaves have poison in them at the that time of the year. Is this true? If so, why don't they have poison in them when harvested before June 21?

QUESTION — Nine-year-old Alvin Stoltzfus collects business cards. He would like if people would send a few from their businesses or a collection of one if they no longer want it. Send to Alvin Stoltzfus, 1195 Mondale Rd., Bird-in-Hand, PA 17505.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Backtrackers 4-H Horse And Pony Club

Backtrackers 4-H Horse and Pony Club of Northampton County is sponsoring an Open Youth Schooling Horse Show, Saturday, June 1 at the Northampton County 4-H Center, Bushkill Center Rd., Nazareth. Starting time is 9 a.m.

This show is open to any youth between the ages of eight and 18 years. It will offer walk-trot, open, jumping and fun classes throughout the day. Each class is $5 per class or $20 per five classes. All entrants are required to wear a hard hat in all classes. Release forms, negative EIA status, and a rabies certificate are required before entry into the show.

This show is offered as a learning experience for the youth of the area. It will be an informal show, appropriate riding boots and hard hats are required, no T-shirts allowed; neat, but not formal dress required. Entrants will receive help and encouragement throughout the event. Ribbons and awards will be given in each class.

There are age restrictions on certain classes and restrictions throughout divisions in the show. This allows all exhibitors an opportunity to participate and learn.

For more information concerning this show, call (610) 837-7294.

Susquehanna County 4-H Sizzlin' Steaks Club

The Sizzlin' Steaks 4-H Club met April 28 at the Lockwood's home. After pledges were said the members welcomed three new members — Bryce, Bradley and Brandon Powers.

The next meeting will be at the Mitchell's home, June 2 at 2 p.m. for building and painting the birdhouses. Members should bring brushes, paint and hammers. Discussion will be on fund raising and the club's bake sale on June 11 at Ames.

Mrs. Lockwood had dirt, containers and seeds ready for members to plant the seeds for Fairground Beautification at the Harford Fair. After refreshments and games the meeting was adjourned.

April 21, the club met at Zick's. They picked up litter along two roads, filling two bags, and returned to Zick's for the meeting and refreshments.

Elizabeth took attendance and read her secretary's report, followed by Aaron and Mrs. Phillip who gave us information about the bake sale at Ames store, June 11. Mrs. Lockwood provided information about Camelback Beach where the club is planning a fun day.

Susquehanna County Bits And Bosals

4-H Horse and Pony Club

The Bits and Bosals club recently held a meeting. First they did the 4-H pledge, and then Kathy Taylor passed out 4-H horse packets and everyone filled out their enrollment forms. Kathy Taylor discussed the hoagie sale and gave a treasurer's report. Then the club discussed the horse clinic and show schedule. They discussed more fund raisers and decided to check into selling candy bars. Lorraine Hall volunteered to hold the next meeting at her house on May 15 at 7:30 p.m.

Cumberland County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club

The Cumberland County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club met April 17 at the Cumberland County Nursing Home. There were seven dogs in attendance with 12 owners and co-owners.

The meeting opened with the 4-H pledge and the pledge to the flag. The treasurer's report was given and approved. Nuria Rodriguez-Padro, the new 4-H agent for Cumberland County, was welcomed to the meeting. She presented equal rights cards, which were signed and are kept on file at the extension office. Elizabeth Pepperman gave a report of the county council meeting. The Seeing Eye Puppy Camp was also discussed.

The next meeting will be at the home of Pat Putz Sunday, May 19 at 2 p.m. Everyone will be bringing a covered dish. In case of rain, the meeting will be at the Claremont Nursing Home on May 24. The picnic will be rescheduled. Pat will see that directions are provided to everyone planning to attend.

Northampton County 4-H Fly Fishing Course

Saucon Creek Trout Unlimited and Northampton County 4-H are teaming up to present a special Introduction to Fly Fishing course.

The two day hands-on program is planned for Saturday, June 8, and Sunday, June 9, along Saucon Creek in Hellertown and South Bethlehem.

Students will receive expert instruction in the basics of fly fishing, including tackle care, fishing safety, knot tying, handling fish, stream biology, conservation and entomology (bugs).

Anyone between the age of 13 and 18 is eligible, male or female. Enrollment is limited to a dozen students. The cost of the two-day program is $20, which covers all course materials and lunch. Scholarship money available. For more information, an application and course schedule call the 4-H office at (610) 746-1970.

Susquehanna County 4-H North Jackson Ag Club

The North Jackson Ag 4-H club met April 27 at Valley Lanes for bowling, and then they went back to Abby Onyon's house for pizza. Following lunch, the meeting was called to order. After the club members said the American and 4-H pledges, Abby Onyon took roll, Joe Pipitone gave the treasurer's report, and Abby gave the secretary's report.

Among old business discussions, Jessica Sartell talked about the food sale fund raiser at the Holstein auction at Hart's Barn April 5; Felisha Schaffer and Abby Onyon talked about the county council meetings they attended and some of the upcoming events; and Abby Onyon told about the dairy judging contest in which the club members took third place.

Under new business, Sandy Pavelski brought up the meat certification for people who have livestock projects and the Beautification of the Dairy Barn at the Harford Fair. This year she would like to do a poster with pictures of our entire club.

Sondra Fallon, Lyle Foster, Mary-Katherine Walker, Abby Onyon, Caitlin Flor, and Beth and Eric Giangreco volunteered to do demonstrations at the next meeting, May 18, 2002 at 7:30 at the Pavelski's.

York County Society 26

York County Society of Farm Women 26 conducted its February meeting at Eat and Park Restaurant in New Cumberland. Nine members were present.

President Jan Sechler conducted the business meeting.

Donations were made to the Heart Association, Cancer Fund, and American Diabetes Association.

The Spring Rally will be conducted at the York Expo Center on May 15.

Christine Erdman from the Cardiac Unit spoke on problems of the heart, strokes, etc.

Members celebrating birthdays in February were Martha Huston and Evelyn Beshore.

The groups' March meeting was also at Eat and Park with 11 members attending.

The group will entertain Group 30 from York.

Donations were made to Salvation Army and Red Land Library.

The program was on Saint Patrick's Day. Evelyn Beshore gave a reading on the Irish holiday.

Game prizes were won by Doris Beshore and Doris Goodlander.

Lancaster County Society 18

Lancaster Women Society 18 met on April 20. Mary Lou Shelton was hostess to 19 members and guests. President Mildred Kreider called the meeting to order.

Roll call response was to name the president in office on the date of one's birth. Devotions were led by Martha Stoner on the theme of prayer. Prayer is for every moment of our lives, not only for troubled times. The attitude of prayer present always in our hearts and minds.

Henry Reist, the 'popcorn man,' fluently described the farmers especially in Pennsylvania and Ohio who have added the growing popcorn seed, to the seeds they have been planting traditionally to fill out the full use of their fields. Many varieties are available. The shape is a desirable mushroom one. Much moisture in the seed to make a good popcorn. Saudi Arabia is a good market overseas.

Reist passed a half dozen bowls around for the ladies to taste. Some kinds had sugar added. One bowl was a lovely pink. A new variety pops in three minutes in the microwave.

After committee reports and spring rally news, the meeting was dismissed.

Maryland Seminar Introduces Food Editors To Beef Value Cuts

DENVER, Colo. — Food editors from Better Homes and Gardens, Southern Living, Parents, Good Housekeeping and other key publications were introduced to the new beef value cuts and discussed other new products and beef industry trends at a seminar hosted by the beef industry's R & D Ranch. The seminar was conducted April 8-9 in Queenstown, Md.

The effort was a project of Food Communications, funded by beef producers through their $1-per-head checkoff and coordinated for the Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB) and state beef councils by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA).

A total of 11 editors/writers, representing a circulation of more than 20.6 million, participated in this event. It was the first news media group to be given hands-on experience cooking and tasting dishes using beef value cuts, said Bob Rolston, cattle buyer from Englewood, Colo. and chairman of the CBB/NCBA Public Relations Subcommittee. The editors also took part in making their own cheeseburger fries.

Editors at the seminar were also given a ranch tour of the University of Maryland's Beef Cattle Research and Education Ranch.

"We wanted to educate these influential editors on the value of beef value cuts, how they're different, and how they're cut and cooked," said Rolston. "The idea is for them to go back out and communicate their experiences with consumers who will help boost the demand for beef."

The beef industry created beef value cuts using information from its Muscle Profiling study. As a result of the study, funded through the checkoff program, the industry has introduced a new product line of moderately priced cuts from the underutilized chuck and round. The new cuts help meat processors, manufacturers, retailers, foodservice operators and cattle producers improve overall profitability while supplying more options to the consumer.

"This was another important step in the process of introducing the new beef value cuts to consumers. The food editors play a major role in communicating beef information to consumers," said Carl Blackwell, NCBA's executive director of new product development and culinary initiatives. "This initiative creates products that are a great fit for today's lifestyles - which is why the beef value cuts initiative was just recognized as one of the Top 10 Product Innovations by National Provisioner for 2001. Such new cuts as the Flat Iron Steak, Shoulder Tender, and Sirloin Tip Steak offer tremendous potential."

Blackwell said the beef value cuts program is intended to offer greater benefits to cattle producers by enhancing the value of and increasing demand for undervalued beef primals.

Antiques Showcase Cave Hill Farm Bed and Breakfast

Innkeeper Jennifer Dowling is pictured in the Bridal Room of the Cave Hill Farm Bed and Breakfast Inn. A magnificent 1790 four-poster canopy bed with a solid headboard is the focal point of this long-ago servants room and subsequent storage facility.

This old hand pump stands over a 25-foot well.

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent
MCGAHEYSVILLE, Va. — From room to room in the 1830 Cave Hill Farm manor house (now a bed and breakfast inn), handsome antiques flow with grace and charm on the inside, obviously, a natural sequence to passing by the introductory gardens outside.

Yet, from the vantage point of an elegant settee in the living room, an arrested conversation of life is there, too, tacitly reminiscent of energetic and intelligent people whose skill and craftsmanship brought them success at a time when electricity, medicine, and modern transportation were conveniences still to come.

Clearly, the work ethic was strong and quality was respected. The old pieces of farm machinery and equipment were cared for with dignity so their character today is preserved.

The house itself, with 15-inch thick outer walls and inner ones 12-inches thick, required three years to build. The sum of its bricks, they say, would serve to cover 30 modern-style houses. And each brick was a product of Cave Hill Farm's own clay.

The timber floor planks were produced from the pine trees harvested from the nearby mountains.

On a yonder hill, the entrance of the cave for which it is named can be seen from the Cave Hill house windows. According to Jennifer Dowling, the innkeeper, spelunkers from the James Madison University in nearby Harrisonburg, have gone into the cave for exploring expeditions.

An antique oil lamp with a lovely gold globe on a bedside stand accessorizes the Gold Room.

The gas lantern placed at the back illuminated the glass plates slid into place in the front of this 1896 gas lantern projector. It is preserved in the basement museum of Cave Hill Farm B & B.

Dowling absolutely adores her job. She is responsible for the daily care of Cave Hill Farms Bed and Breakfast.

"I had an overwhelming feeling of belonging immediately," Dowling said, enthusiastically. Since her arrival when the inn opened in May 2001, Dowling has learned, "a monstrous amount."

"I've met people who have used these pieces. It blows your mind. I'm fascinated by the working tools."

She is employed by J. L. Hopkins III, his wife and their married children who put the farm into a trust. Cave Hill Farm has been in the Hopkins family since 1868. Dowling is the first non-family member to live on the place.

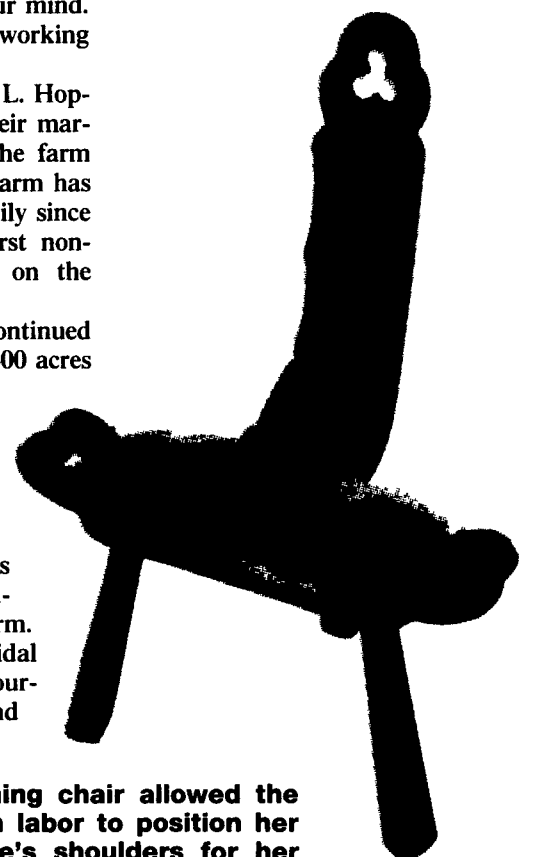

To ensure the lands continued productivity, the farms 400 acres are leased to neighboring Holstein dairyman Harvey Gasser.

"I think what they did was proactive," Dowling says admiringly of the owners. "It was pragmatic. It's an incredible way to sustain the farm."

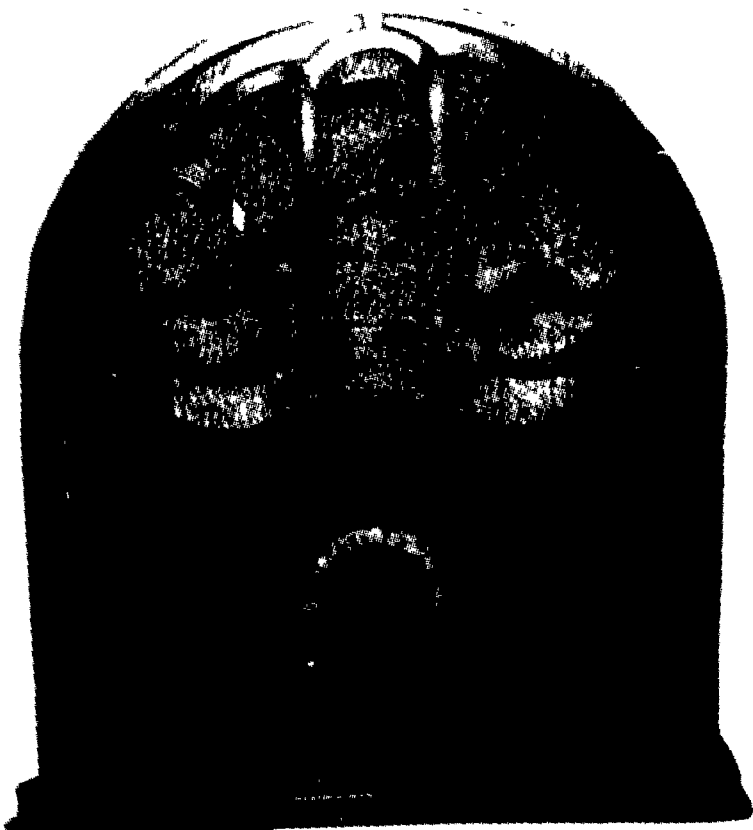

Walk into the Bridal Room with its 1790s, four-poster, canopied bed, and dominant feature of the antique decor and it may be difficult to imagine how such an elaborate room could have been quarters for the servants. It was a later storage compartment for several of the home's claw foot bathtubs and other items.

(Turn to Page B24)

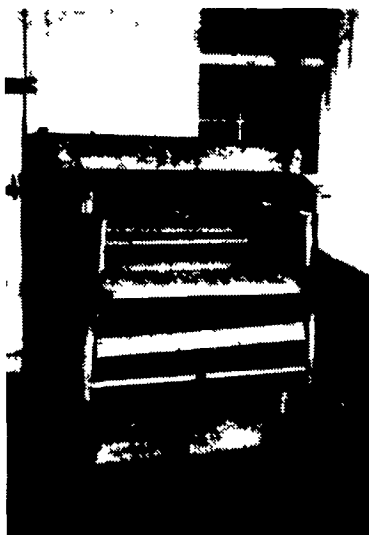

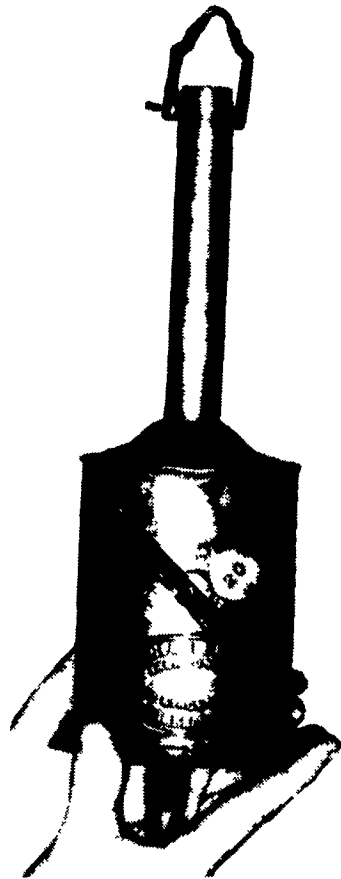

The antique birthing chair allowed the expectant mother in labor to position her legs on the midwife's shoulders for her newborns delivery.

A Sonora Cathedral Radio still pulls in stations with some static. The radio accessorizes the Bridal Room.

Antiques Showcase Cave Hill Farm Bed and Breakfast

The era of this well-preserved antique wheat separator was approximately 1860-1880.

At left is a very old wind-up rotisserie to which meat was attached for roasting. It was hung over the fire to slowly unwind while the meat cooked uniformly.

The headboard is a solid piece. The bed frame has no hardware such as nails or screws in it.

On the lid of a birthing chest at the foot of an antique bed, the birth year — 1927 — of J.L. Hopkins is recorded.

Many family antiques (1800s) and family photographs are featured in Aunt Emma's Bedroom, Grandmother's Bedroom, and Uncle Charlie's Bedroom.

The Gold Room, however, is notable for invoking memories of the Civil War. In fact, on June 8, 9, 1862, at nearby Cross Keys and Port Republic, historical records report Civil War campaigns were underway between the Confederate troops led by General Stonewall Jackson and the Union troops.

Dowling said she spent three days restoring a female-side saddle lined with horse hair. The effort was worth the result and again the intricate hand-tooling on the side panel has been enhanced.

Numerous family antiques and tools comprise the attractive museum arranged in the basement where, the original family cooked all its food in the large fireplace and ate in an adjacent second room. They served meals on the first floor when guests came.

While some of the former out-buildings have been removed, antique pieces like the wheat separator are treasures that remain in sheltered locations. Dowling says the old windmill stands directly over the concrete slab hosting a rusty hand-cranked pump atop an old 25-foot deep well, will be restored.

American Modern Look

The newly revived interest in objects made in the 1940s-1950s has resulted in "Modernism" shows and museum exhibits across the country, along with books on almost every conceivable aspect.

For the most part prices have gone up 20 percent and more for the most unique examples. Needless to say a plethora of reproductions are also in the market place from the stainless steel penguin form cocktail shaker to pottery.

For the avant garde collectors and dealers who envisioned modernism designs as the next, natural follow-up to the Art Deco objects of the 1920s, early 1930s, the rewards are great.

These days, this design period is most appealing because it was so widely produced and is still plentiful for collectors. It was, after all, based on industrial designs using metal, plastics, ceramics, and glass in new ways.

While the 1940s-1950s pieces are usually how we view American modern, it is important to remember that a large percentage was the work of the foreign immigrants who fled Europe for America just before and after World War 11.

The recently opened exhibit, "American Modern, 1925-1940: Design for a New Age" at the Mint Museum of Craft and design offers 150 objects that are strictly American in design. The 60 designers include well known Russel Wright, Raymond Loewy and equally important, but not as well known to the general public, Isamu Noguchi, Eliel Saarinen, Walter von Nesson, and others.

Objects include everything, from textiles, furniture and appliances to a bathroom sink.

The exhibit covers the influences that began around 1925 to 1940 that led to the Modern styling and sometimes carried over. One of the most interesting is the "skyscraper" concept. The American skyscraper being a unique symbol of American dynamics. It resulted in designs with a "stacked look" from furniture to cocktail shakers.

At the same time the linear lines of Art Deco continued, sometimes combining with the new forms of Modernism.

CLUES: The beginning collector should get acquainted with the many looks of American Modern.

Streamlining, was one of the first examples that was first introduced in Europe in the late 1920s. By the mid-1930s American designers were using tapered curves and the emphasis was on sleek, rectangular forms. It continued into the late 1940s and was used by such industrial designers as Russel Wright and Harry Bertola.

Biomorphic Modern came into use by designers by the mid-1930s.

Furniture designers as well as architects made cocktail tables, tables and chairs in amoeboid shapes. By the early fifties objects, large and small were described as "organic," "free form," "kidney-shaped," "boomerang," and "amoeboid." The "tulip" look was also popular and an exaggerated form in the 1950s used in Eero Saarinen's "tulip" chairs and Orrefors' hand-blown "tulip" glass goblets.

By the early 1950s design motifs centered around the atomic-nuclear age. Flying saucers, amoebae, satellites and molecules were designs on everything from textiles to the then new, Formica countertops.

Modernism furnishings were first introduced to mass public by the Herman Miller Company of Zeeland, Michigan in the 1940s-1950s. Not only were the industrial designs and materials pioneered in the furniture of Charles Eames but also of George Nelson. Two examples of the radical designs of the era were the "potato chip" chairs by Charles Eames and the "conconut chair" by George Nelson.

Would you believe that a piece of Tupperware is considered museum-worthy? A Tupperware bowl produced in 1945 shows the lines of Modern design. It is made of translucent green polyethylene and is 2 1/8" high. It is displayed at the Museum of Modern Art collection. The Tupperware has a value of $1,000 as a prototype. That is the exception.

The traveling exhibit was organized by the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the American Federation of Arts. It travels to the Philbrook Museum of Art in Tulsa, OK, August 23-November 10.

Special Modernism auctions are held at Treadway-Toomey Galleries. The John Toomey Gallery, 818 North Blvd. Oak Park, ILL. 60301. The Treadway Gallery, Inc. of Cincinnati, Ohio 2029 Madison Road, Cincinnati, OH, 45208.

Elevator dtrs., 2 Tradition (1 is VG85), 2
Collection first calf heifers, VG 87 Mustang dtr., (14 are classified GP) Several potentially Excellent cows in this herd Young stock sires include 2 Dec -00 Starbuck dtrs., 2 Dec 01
Collection dtrs., 1 Dec. 01 Camelot, 1 Dec 01 Joy Trek, 2 June 01 and 2 March 01 Joytaker dtrs.
Most of these heifers are born right to show and definitely have the look and the quality Werner Stierli, the herd manager, is also an A.I. technician for his district His health is failing - reason for selling. Werner has used the better bulls and a select group of young sires. DHIA herd average is 14,900 4.0% BF, 3.5% Protein. SCC 150 This herd has never been pushed due to milk quota restrictions. Fresh cows are milking 70, 80 and 90 lbs/day The animals are on regular hard health - housed in a round tie stall barn - long tails tied up with strings Cattle are in a beautiful condition and the potential and the breeding is there for a much higher herd average. 9-way shots - preg checked
- eligible for immediate interstate Sale's manager's note This is definitely one of the best herds in the northeast. The milking cattle are tall and correct with beautiful udders The young stock are tall and well grown Many should go on and show Don't miss them Good Swiss are very hard to find

2 Plus our usual run of dairy cows, heifers and service bulls

NEW! Now Available!
Accu-puls 12V milking systems without inverter, runs strictly off of your 12V diesel batteries. Results are usually better milkout, faster milking, better rest period on milkers, less sore teat ends, less mastitis, which all helps to lower your somatic cell counts and helps produce more and better quality milk.

We specialize in cleaning vacuum lines and servicing milker systems. It has been proven over and over you can't properly clean your line with water only. Armor digest will bring lots of dirt out even after being cleaned with water once every month. Also any galvanized lines cannot be cleaned properly, all vacuum lines should be 2" PVC for proper milking performance and lower somatic cell counts. Any milking system and pulsators should be cleaned and serviced once a year, twice a year is better yet. Farmers could prevent a lot of mastitis and produce more and better quality milk if this was done, prevention is cheap compared to a cure.

Call 717-529-1226 for more information
P.S. Summertime is the best time to clean and service vacuum systems, we can do our best job and clean your line easier when your cows are out in the pasture.

New Company Name

WHITEFORD, Md. — Clements Supply Company, Inc., a longtime community partner, John Deere equipment dealer, and petroleum distributor in Clayton, Del., has a new name.

Founded in 1887, Clements was purchased in 1983 by Mr. Charles "Skip" Rebar. In December 2001, Rebar, while retaining the petroleum distributorship, sold his interest in the equipment dealership to his sons Gregg and Daron Rebar.

The resulting companies are Clements Fuels, owned and operated by Rebar, and Deer Creek Equipment, owned and operated by Gregg and Daron Rebar.

Deer Creek Equipment of Clayton joins existing locations in Whiteford, Md., and Oxford, Pa., in the mission of supplying the highest quality equipment and service. The signs and logo may change, but the same great staff will continue to deliver the very best to customers.

Agco Offers Free Fieldstar Field Report

ATLANTA, Ga. — Accurate soil testing; variable-rate application of lime, fertilizers and chemicals; plus detailed application documentation is paying off for the customers of Miles Farm Service in Southern Indiana. How they're doing it and the results they're getting are detailed in a new free Fieldstar® Field Report available from Agco Corporation.

Yield monitoring and GPS (Global Positioning System) mapping, part of a Fieldstar precision agriculture system, are revealing to today's leading producers exactly where they have problem areas in their field. Richard Baylis and Paul Rose, Opti-Crop consultants for Miles Farm Service in Hatfield, Ind., are using GPS-based variable-rate technology (VRT) to turn that information into increased profits for their customers farming the rich farmland along the Ohio River.

"We're seeing some pretty good payoffs," reports Paul Rose. "For example, on lime application, one of our customer's savings in material costs alone was $13.17 an acre." Today, with Fieldstar, there's no need to correct pH with a blanket application.

"VRT with lime has proven itself as a money maker," Rose continues. "And we're studying variable rates in other areas. The idea is to save input costs and increase yields. Sometimes we can do one, sometimes both."

The Field Report details their approach, along with an actual soil analysis map and lime application plan developed by Baylis and Rose using the Fieldstar Office Package software.

The Field Report shows chemical application plans and actual "as-applied" maps, and explains how Miles Farm Service develops and implements their application plans.

Rose explains in the Field Report how the Fieldstar precision agricultural system is also helping them become proactive in the environmental and other legislated aspects of farming.

Advanced Concrete Systems Receives Awards

Advanced Concrete was presented with first place marketing excellence, first place website design, second place highest manufacturing efficiency, and second place highest sales award. Dawn Brown was presented with Top Salesperson of the Year and Tom Dissinger was presented with a sales performance award.

Advanced Concrete is a franchisee of Superior Walls of America and provides home builders with insulated, pre-cast concrete foundation walls in Central and Northeast Pennsylvania. They have been in business since 1986 and have 84 employees.

Land Pride Introduces New AT26 Series Grooming Mowers

SALINA, Kan. — Land Pride's new AT26 Series air tunnel grooming mowers continue an outstanding tradition of mowing excellence. Available in three key widths of 60 inch, 72 inch and 84 inch, these air tunnel mowers now feature the vacuum formed ABS belt guards and discharge chutes and the one piece gauge wheel arms. The one piece tubing for the gauge wheel arms increases strength and adds to the overall appearance.

The finest in grooming results are made possible by the air tunnel design. The aggressive high speed cutting blades cut the grass cleanly and the air tunnel system discharges it efficiently, even in many moist, rugged and tall grass conditions.

Glencoe Introduces New High-Capacity Tillage Tools

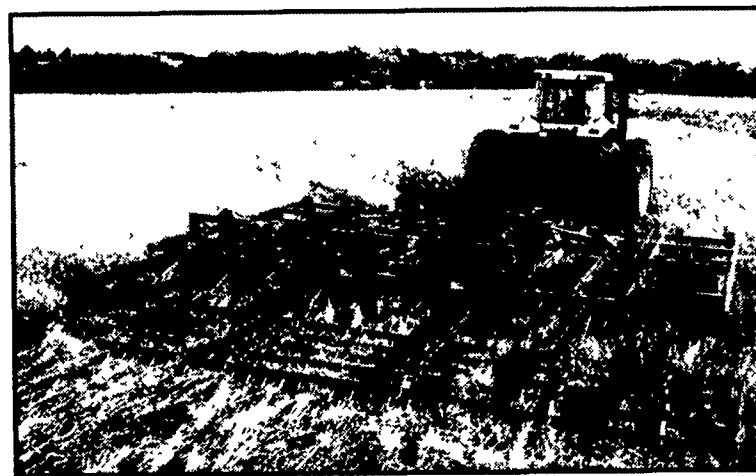

ATLANTA, Ga. — Glencoe has introduced two new, high-capacity tillage tools for optimum residue incorporation and one-pass seedbed preparation.

The FC3800 Field Cultivator features six ranks of shanks on a 153-inch (3.9-meter) front-to-rear frame for exception shank-to-shank clearance and residue handling. The SF4800 Soil Finisher features a disc gang ahead of four ranks of shanks to chop and incorporate residue while preparing seedbeds.

Both models come with C-Shanks in your choice of C-flex or spring clamps. The FC3800 is available with standard eight-inch (200-millimeter) low-crown sweeps or a wide choice of optional sweeps and spikes. The SF4800 comes with 10-inch (255-millimeter) sweeps. Rear hitches are available on both models for pulling tanks and other attachments.

The FC3800 is available in three- and five-section models that fold quickly for narrow transport. Three-section models range from 19½- to 36½-foot (5.9- to 11.1-meter) working depths. Five-section, hydraulic-folding, models are available in working widths from 33½ to 54½ feet (10.2 to 16.6 meters). Tractor recommendations are 3½ to 6 drawbar-horsepower (dbhp) per foot (11 to 20 dbhp per meter), depending on soil conditions.

The SF4800 is available in rigid-frame models with 11- and 14-foot (3.4- and 4.3-meter) working depths, and wing models with 16½ to 35½ foot

(5.1- to 10.8-meter) working widths. Wings are hydraulic-folding and can flex 7½ degrees up or down in the field.

Massey Ferguson Designs And Builds New Orchard Cab Tractors

DULUTH, Ga. — New Massey Ferguson® MF 4300 Series Orchard Cab tractors feature a state-of-the-art cab that meets or exceeds the requirements of ASAE Standard S525 for enclosed cabs for pesticide application incorporating respiratory protection; provides maximum operator comfort, convenience and visibility; and minimizes damage to crops and tree limbs.

"Designing and building the cab based on extended testing and input from orchard operators has also resulted in a unique tapered design, the lowest roof height in the industry, and a redesigned cab interior for greater operator comfort and convenience," said James Hill, Massey Ferguson sales engineer.

"We spent two years designing and testing the 4300 Series Orchard Cab tractors, and during this time we had over 120 orchard operators use the tractor and provide feedback," said Tim Wagner, Massey Ferguson general marketing manager. "The information we received was invaluable in achieving the final cab and tractor design."

"The cab is designed and built by Massey Ferguson specifically for orchard applications — we wanted to improve on the after-market cabs used by other tractor manufacturers," added Wagner. "This gives us the advantage of being able to fit the cab precisely to the chassis for maximum sealing and provide the best possible protection to the operator."

The 730 requires a tractor of only 30 PTO hp and one double-acting remote valve to produce bales of up to 500 pounds (250 kilograms). The 740 gets by with only 45 PTO hp to roll bales of up to 1,000 pounds (500 kilograms). Both balers feature standard dual twine arms for tying at nearly twice the speed of the competitor's single-arm balers. Electric twine tie is optional on the 730 and standard on the 740.

New Massey Ferguson 4300 Series Orchard Cab tractors, 85, 9, and 99 PTO hp models, two- and four-wheel drive, feature a new MF designed and built cab.

Special attention has been paid to ease of operation and durability. For example, wide-opening doors on both sides of the balers provide easy access to all drives. And with only five drive chains and one drive belt, efficiency and reliability are exceptional.

The tapered cab design is reduced in width at the top to 35.8 inches, and the height of the steel roof is only 90.5 inches (with 18.4-26 rear tires) to reduce damage to crops and overhead tree limbs. For added crop protection rear view mirrors are located inside the cab, work lights are removed from the roof where they can snag fruit or limbs and repositioned on the fenders, and the exhaust points down — not up or horizontally.

There are three MF 4300 Cab Orchard Tractor models — the MF 4355 (85 PTO hp), MF 4360 (90 PTO hp), and MF 4370 (99 PTO hp). All three are available in two- and four-wheel drive configurations. The MF 4355 features a steeply-slanted low profile hood design, and the MF 4360 and MF 4370 have a gently-sloping standard hood profile.

Buck Rejoins Blue Seal Bainbridge Dairy Sales

LONDONDERRY, N.H. — Larry E. Buck of Unadilla, New York recently rejoined Blue Seal as a member of the dairy sales staff based at Blue Seal's Bainbridge, New York mill.

Buck joined Blue Seal in 1975 as a dairy sales representative. In the ensuing years he served as area manager for Bainbridge, N.Y. and area manager for Arcade, N.Y. He also spent five years as a district manager for Specialty Feeds. From 1990-2001 he served as a dairy specialist based in Bainbridge.

Hail Damage Affects Silage Corn

Mark Antle
Penn State

Anyone who has ever seen the devastation a hailstorm can cause to a stand of corn knows that the potential for yield loss can be very high. In severe cases, a field of corn can be shredded beyond recognition — sometimes to the point it looks more like a poor crop of bamboo instead of a cornfield.

Surprisingly, in other situations, the corn plant has the ability to recover and yield reasonably well.

There are two primary factors that determine how much potential yield loss has occurred due to hail damage. One of these factors is the amount of defoliation the plant encounters. In the most severe cases, 100 percent of the leaves can be stripped off the plant. The other factor influencing the amount of yield loss is the growth stage of the corn when the hailstorm strikes.

There has been a fair amount of research done documenting the effect hail damage has on grain yield, but not much is known about the yield and quality loss to corn harvested as silage. We have just completed the second year of a trial that studied the effects of hail damage on corn silage. We hope to determine how much loss occurred under the following conditions: 100 percent defoliation at V7 (7 leaf stage), V10 (10 leaf stage), silking and early dough; 50 percent defoliation at V10, silking, and early dough; and 25 percent defoliation at silking and early dough.

For the trial, a popular silage variety was planted in 30-inch rows at 32,000 seeds per acre. The hail damage was simulated in the trial by clipping off a portion of the leaf area of each plant, corresponding with the percents defoliation and growth stages listed above.

As one might expect, some of the plots showed severe losses in yield. When averaged over two years, the highest yield reduction (75 percent) occurred when the corn was 100 percent defoliated at silking. These plots had no grain in the forage due to the severe stress at silking. The lowest yield loss over two years was nine percent and took place when silking corn was defoliated 25 percent. The table summarizes the average yield losses over the various treatments in the study.

Growth Stage	Defoliation %	%Forage Yield Reduction (2 Year Average)
-	None
V7	100	16.3
V10	50	10.2
V10	100	43.5
Silking	25	9.0
Silking	50	21.1
Silking	100	75.3
Early Dough	25	10.7
Early Dough	50	14.0
Early Dough	100	40.8

Not surprisingly, there was a large difference in forage quality among the different treatments. The forage was analyzed for crude protein (CP), neutral detergent fiber (NDF), neutral detergent fiber digestibility (NDFd), starch, and ash. Some of the largest quality differences were with the 100 percent defoliation treatment at silking. This treatment was significantly higher in CP, NDF and Ash, but lower in starch than all others. It is not surprising that this corn was ranked lowest in starch because it was completely stripped of its leaves at silking and therefore did not produce any grain.

A summary of the quality analyses from the 2001 trial is shown in the table.

Growth Stage	% Defoliation	CP	NDF	NDFd	Starch	Ash
-	None	6.8	49.72	42.53	25.24	2.98
V7	100	7.1	40.32	43.30	37.52	2.37
V10	50	7.0	43.35	44.13	34.91	2.49
V10	100	7.3	43.65	44.18	30.77	2.85
Silking	25	6.8	44.86	42.55	33.15	2.53
Silking	50	7.0	48.50	44.30	28.05	2.77
Silking	100	8.0	63.48	43.28	7.52	4.99
Early Dough	25	6.8	53.67	42.43	21.52	3.30
Early Dough	50	6.5	52.73	43.28	24.38	3.03
Early Dough	100	6.6	53.63	40.80	28.29	3.43

How does this information affect producers in our region? Probably the most important way a producer could be affected is if a crop insurance adjuster needs make a fair estimate of yield losses because of hail damage. The estimates insurance companies have used for grain losses in the past may not be applicable to silage losses.

Also, since a hailstorm can change forage quality in such a dramatic way, it would benefit livestock producers to have a rough idea of how their feeding program might change if they have to feed a significant amount of hail damaged corn during the year.

We plan to conduct a third year of this study in 2002. Our colleagues at the University of Wisconsin are conducting parallel trials. At the end of the third year, we plan to summarize our findings and develop some guidelines for assessing the effects of hail damage on silage corn for producers and the hail insurance industry.

Sterling Financial Forms New Affiliate

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Sterling Financial Corporation (NASDAQ: SLFI), a Lancaster-based bank holding company with assets of more than $1.8 billion, recently announced the formation of a new affiliate called Sterling Financial Trust Company. The move is aimed at offering unparalleled financial expertise in a way that sets a new standard for efficient and effective customer service.

As of Jan. 1, the trust, investment, and fiduciary services previously spread among four separate Sterling-owned banks — the Bank of Lancaster County, the Bank of Lebanon County, the Bank of Hanover, all in Pennsylvania, and the First National Bank of North East in Maryland — were combined into a single unit under Sterling Financial Trust Company.

"We are concentrating and focusing the power of our experience and expertise into a single, high-performance organization," said Gregory S. Leffer, president and CEO of Sterling Financial Trust Company. "We are achieving efficiencies of scale that will result in better service and at the same time will create for us a stronger identity and presence in the marketplace."

The new company includes an investment services group to provide market research and analysis, professional investment management, and securities trading; a wealth-management group to administer trusts, estates, and guardianships; a retirement services group to administer employee benefit and retirement plans; and a private banking group to serve the special needs of high net-worth customers.

The creation of the region-wide trust company is also viewed as a major step in enabling the individual banks in the Sterling Financial corporate family to serve their customers better and more completely. "This dramatically raises the level of service we can offer to our local customers," said Tom Dautrich, president and chief operating officer of the Bank of Lancaster County. "We can give our customers access to whatever depth and breadth of expertise they need — and do it within an existing relationship that they already trust and feel comfortable with."

Sterling Financial Trust Company serves customers in Adams, Lancaster, Lebanon, and York counties in Pennsylvania and Cecil and Carroll counties in Maryland.

Farm Computing Booklet Available Free Online

RED WING, Minn. — The popular booklet "How to Computerize Your Farm Records" is now available for free download on the Internet by pointing your browser to www.redwingsoftware.com.

"How to Computerize Your Farm Records" not only tells the reader how to go about the search for the "right" software, but it also gives recommendations for choosing the "right" computer.

There are guidelines and checklists to help the first-time computer user (or the user looking to upgrade their system) choose the hardware and software that best fits his farm's needs.

process of evaluating software and choosing the right computer.

The publisher, Red Wing Business Systems, Inc., is a full service supplier of software to the agricultural industry. The company's staff includes farmers, programmers and computer analysts who have combined their expertise to develop the first practical guide for farmers choosing to computerize their farm records.

The 2002 version of "How to Computerize Your Farm Records" is available at no charge from Red Wing Business Systems, Inc., 491 Highway 19, Red Wing, MN 55066. The publication can also be requested in printed form by calling Red Wing Business Systems, Inc. toll-free at 800-732-9464.

Renowned Geneticist: Ag Technology Preserving Land, Feeding The World

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Advances in agricultural technology, from chemical fertilizers to genetically modified crops, are the keys to feeding more than six billion people worldwide while preserving vast expanses of uncultivated land for other purposes, says a renowned geneticist.

Nobel Laureate Norman Borlaug said such limitations as availability of water and natural plant nutrients makes biotechnology and improved crop production methods that much more important in stabilizing agricultural land and battling starvation.

Borlaug offered his views on agriculture, global crop production and risk taking during a recent presentation at Ohio State University and the Wooster branch of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC).

Borlaug is an agricultural geneticist. He received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1970 for his contributions to the "Green Revolution," a food production movement of the 1960s that helped lift many countries out of starvation through the introduction of high-yielding wheat varieties. He's lived in food-deprived countries for more than 55 years.

Feeding the world has been possible because of agricultural technology, Borlaug said. Increased use of irrigation has made it possible to grow crops in areas that might not have been able to sustain them. Borlaug applauded the use of organic fertilizers but said they cannot replace chemical fertilizers.

"Cereals, such as rice, maize and wheat make up 70 percent of the world's food supply," he said. "In reality, 99 percent of all edible dry matter comes from the land but only one percent of Earth's water can be used to support that production."

"And when it comes to organic fertilizers, I say without qualification, use all there is, but don't let anyone tell you that we can feed 6.2 billion people without the use of chemical nitrogen."

Nearly 80 million tons of nitrogen is consumed annually through synthetic applications. To maintain that amount through organic sources — livestock manure, for example, U.S. cattle numbers would need to increase from 1.5 billion head to 10 billion head, Borlaug said.

Because of improved crop production techniques, China, India and Pakistan have increased grain production as much as sevenfold since the 1960s, Borlaug said. Global grain production has jumped 23 percent in the past 50 years, from 650 million tons to more than one billion tons.

"These improvements in yield are due to high-yielding varieties, agronomic practices, weed control, fertilizers and seeding dates, combined with economic policies that farmers have adopted and put into practice," Borlaug said. "Plus, we are producing more food on less land than we were in 1940 — all of this due to technology."

Genetically modified crops, commonly known as GMOs, will continue to play an important part in crop production, Borlaug said.

"I'm convinced biotechnology is going to help us," he said. "There's fear, but biotechnology has been going on since the beginning of time. Mother Nature was crossing plant genes long before scientific man and agricultural man began doing it. If you like to eat spaghetti, you are eating a GMO that Mother Nature made. It's a natural cross of two wild wheat plants."

Agricultural land used for transgenic crop production has increased thirtyfold over the past five years. The United States leads the world in transgenic crop production, followed by Argentina, Canada and China, and use of such crops has boosted yields and reduced costs.

With world population expected to reach 7.6 billion people by 2020 and the demand for grain production likely to increase 40 percent to 50 percent, agricultural technology advances should not be ignored, Borlaug said.

"There's always fear when you change," he said. "We did everything that the book told us not to do, and when we moved all that wheat to India in the 1960s, they were saying that we were mad and insane, playing with the lives of millions."

"There's little or no starvation in Pakistan and India today, and if you travel through China you won't see emaciated people. You don't know what's going to happen when you change something, but you have to change it to try to improve it."

New Tools For Raising Identity-Preserved Corn And Soybeans

AMES, Iowa — New seed technologies and special grain production opportunities are giving Midwest corn and soybeans producers the chance to produce consistent, high-quality grains and oilseeds. These products often earn higher prices resulting in more income for these growers. With those premiums come requirements that strict identity preservation practices be used when growing and harvesting these crops.

A new tool is now available to help farmers protect the identity of these specialty crops during the planting process. Iowa State University (ISU) Extension, Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. and the Iowa Grain Quality Initiative (IGQI) have teamed up to develop the "Planter Clean-out Procedures for Corn and Soybeans" video.

"Planting is the one step in try grow out and housing units. At other livestock facilities, dust is collected from side rails, feeder and water equipment and along building cracks and crevices, then analyzed in a laboratory.

Cleaning with disinfectants specifically formulated to control farm pathogens is essential to reducing the disease challenges that animal environments present, said Fred Schneider, animal technology unit manager, Loveland Industries. "Disinfection helps tackle the immunosuppressive viruses that are difficult to kill, as well as the common bugs known to reduce productivity such as E.coli and salmonella. This is especially important in farrowing units, hatcheries and nurseries, since newborn animals haven't developed their immune systems to help fight off diseases."

percent of animal mortality occurs during the earliest growth stages," Schneider said, "and a fast-acting product with residual helps newborn animals and chicks get through that critical early-growth period, until they can start making antibodies on their own. Good sanitation is even more important as livestock and poultry producers are forced to cut back on the use of preventative antibiotic regimens."

Following disinfection, recontamination must be prevented to keep disease organisms at the lowest possible level. For that, Schneider notes, everyone entering the animal premises should be required to use a two-step footbath that first washes away manure and dirt, then disinfects with a fast-acting product such as Loveland's DC&R® Disinfectant.

New Herbicide Gives Growers Option

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. — Since their inception in the late 1980s, sulfonylurea (SU) herbicides have been an important part of managing unwanted grasses in cornfields, but few have been effective at providing the one-two punch of controlling grasses and key broadleaf weeds. Until now.

Option®, an SU herbicide from Aventis CropScience that recently was registered by U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, controls grasses such as Johnsongrass, foxtails, fall panicum, quackgrass, shattercane, wirestem muhly, barnyardgrass, and wild proso millet. Option also controls key broadleaf weeds such as velvetleaf, pigweed, and nightshade, and provides suppression on sunflower, cocklebur, lambsquarters, and giant and common ragweed, as well as perennial broadleaves.

Option also provides growers with the flexibility to make management decisions during the growing season. Option allows growers to control grasses and key broadleaf weeds while maintaining the flexibility to rotate to any crop within 60 days. Currently, most SU herbicides require that growers wait up to 18 months before rotating to some crops, such as sugarbeets.

According to Mark Bishop, Option product lead for Aventis CropScience, the flexibility to make decisions during the growing season is something growers want. "No matter how much planning a grower does, there usually is something that causes plans to change," said Bishop, "and sometimes changing plans can take away from a grower's bottom line." He continues, "Option will be tough on weeds and allow growers to make important management decisions without sacrificing yield or profitability."

Rob Kauffman, owner of Mid-Atlantic Independent Tech Services in Mount Joy agrees that growers will appreciate the flexibility of Option and its control of grasses and broadleaf weeds. Kauffman managed an Option experimental use plot (EUP) in 2001, during the testing stage of Option development. He was impressed with how well the product worked. "Option picked up a good amount of broadleaves. It even suppressed lambsquarters, which were eight inches tall when we applied it," he said. His EUP was approximately one-half acre and Option was applied to 12-inch corn around June 1.

Kauffman predicts Option will be a good alternative to Accent®. "It did just as good as Accent in controlling giant and green foxtails, shattercane, and Johnsongrass."

We also saw it control crabgrass, and Option picks up more broadleaves than Accent," he said.

The label recommends applying Option anytime from emergence through V5 or 16-inch corn, giving growers a wide application window during which they can make weed control decisions. Additionally, the label recommends an external adjuvant system of MSO plus UAN (28-32 percent) or AMS, and Option has the flexibility of tankmixing with a variety of products, including atrazine, Distinct®, Clarity®, Hornet®, and Northstar®.

No-Till Farmers: Slugs May Be Abundant This Year

WOOSTER, Ohio — High slug populations may welcome no-till farmers to the start of the growing season.

Ohio State University entomologists have been receiving reports that adult slugs and eggs are present in abundance in some no-till fields throughout western, southern and northeast Ohio.

"The winter weather was not severe enough to knock out slug populations. Last fall we were finding a lot of slugs in fields and those just carried through winter to lay eggs," said Ron Hammond, an Ohio State entomologist with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster, Ohio. "We fully expect juveniles to be there this spring."

The juvenile stage of the slug creates the most damage to crops and its voracious appetite can be devastating for farmers who have had a history of slug problems. Upon hatching in mid-to-late May, the slug will begin feeding on anything that is planted in the field, whether it's corn, soybeans or alfalfa. Slug feeding can cause significant reductions in corn yields and total stand loss in soybeans.

Hammond recommends farmers begin scouting their fields now for the presence of adult slugs and eggs to determine their severity and plan appropriate management tactics.

"If farmers easily find slugs and eggs in their fields, the impression we get is that populations will be high. We want them to realize that the potential is there for slugs to be out there," said Hammond.

He said the best management practice to control slugs is to plant early. "The earlier a farmer can plant his crops the better. The plants have a better chance of outgrowing the damage done by slug feeding if they can get a head start before eggs hatch."

Earlier planted crops like corn usually have the most success in escaping any serious damage from slug feeding. Soybeans, on the other hand, suffer the most damage if germination follows egg hatch.

"Slugs can take out the plant before a grower ever sees the crop," said Hammond.

If soybean farmers are finding a lot of slugs in their fields, are planting in late May or June, and have had a history of stand losses because of slugs, they might want to consider applying a molluscicide at or following planting.

Delaware Valley College Awarded Webcasting Grant

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Delaware Valley College announced recently it has received a $113,393 grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Education which will help train students in real-time livestock monitoring practices. It has also received an additional $1,400 for related dissemination activities.

Using digital networking technology, the grant will link all of the College's local farms to the classrooms and laboratories. Using the Internet, it will provide students and faculty with access to both real time livestock production/development video and data transmissions and retrievable-on-demand archived information.

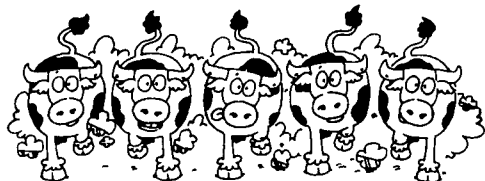

Students and faculty will now be able to view livestock behavior and monitor associated physiological status indicators in real time. The information will also be simultaneously archived for later viewing or analysis.

This video system is necessary since space for large groups of students on the College's farm facilities is limited. The presence of more than a handful of students is also disruptive to the livestock.

Currently, a few movable video cameras are used to record livestock activity and breeding.

The placement of fixed digital video cameras and the wiring for both video and data transmission will permit the year-round, 24/7 observation of livestock by large numbers of students, both on and off-campus, including access by commuter students from their homes. Selected videos and data will also be available to faculty and students at other colleges and universities on the World Wide Web.

BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC. ~ YOUR DEALER WITH LOTS OF QUALITY GEHL MACHINES

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. Offers
High-speed, clean-cutting disc technology

RELIABLE DESIGN

All Gehl disc mower conditioners share these great features

CENTER PIVOT DISC MOWER READY TO CUT
YOUR RYE TODAY! CHOOSE A QUALITY GEHL MACHINE FROM BINKLEY & HURST BROS. TODAY!
MODEL 2412 DISC MOWER CONDITIONER

Cut Your Fields Down To Size!

Gehl swing-frames give you the capacity and maneuverability of a self-propelled mower conditioner at a pull-type price plus the advantages of high speed disc cutting technology

- Nine disc cutterbar delivers
11-foot, 7-inch cut
- Wide conditioning rolls for uniform, fast drying
- Full-width skid shoes protect the cutterbar
- Simple drive system for more reliability
- Change from windrow to swath in seconds - without tools

The New Swing Frame
Gehl 2412 Disc Mower
Is Ready For Delivery

12' Model

Unlike some competitive units, Gehl's cutterbar is fastened to a heavy-duty tubular main frame for added strength and support. In addition, the entire cutterbar is shielded from rocks or other field obstructions with full-width skid shoes.

The gear-driven cutterbar (outlined in white) is supported and protected.

Today's Most Advanced Disc Mower Conditioner

GEHL Model 2365

10' Cut In Stock for Immediate Delivery

Model 2345
9 Foot Cut In Stock

Long hood for less wind turbulence for cleaner cutting in thin crop stands.

A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

Rugged high-speed cutting discs, spinning at 3,000 rpm, easily slice through down and tangled crops or dense wet undergrowth to deliver a clean cut.

The cut crop is delivered to Gehl's specially designed intermeshing rubber conditioning rolls for thorough, yet gentle crop conditioning. They'll condition your crop for fast drying.

ONLY FROM GEHL

The gear driven cutterbar (outlined in white) is protected. Gehl shields the cutterbar from rocks or other field obstructions with full-width skid shoes

Easily replace-able disc drive assemblies. Drive stations can be removed individually for quick servicing. Bearings are sealed in grease. The patented Protectadrive™ system protects the cutterbar gear train from damage in the event of disc contact with major field obstacles.

ROUND BALERS

Featuring the ALL-NEW Variable Open-Throat
Power In-Feed System

GREAT BALING STARTS HERE
Variable Open-Throat Power
In-Feed System. Here's how it works. The incoming crop is pulled off the pickup by the aggressive action of two power in-feed rolls - a 6-inch-diameter pivoting power in-feed roll on top and an 8-inch diameter fixed power in-feed roll on the bottom.

The top pivoting power in-feed roll rides over the crop as it is pulled into the bale chamber. An extension spring keeps the top roll under constant downward force.

The spring tension increases as the variable throat opens from a minimum of 3/4 of an inch up to a maximum opening of nearly 7 inches.

The constant downward force of the pivoting upper powered in-feed roll, in combination with the fixed lower in-feed roll, both turning inward, pinches the crop and forces it into the bale chamber. The stripping roll strips crop off the belt and forces it down to the incoming crop. Adjustable scrapers on the stripping roll and pivoting roll eliminate buildup.

THREE-BALL TWINE BOX. Gehl balers are designed to keep you going all day long with six-ball twine storage.
They're located in full-size doors that open to provide easy access to baler components like an optional chain oiler system or the Total Density Control adjustment.

GAUGE WHEELS. Allow the pickup to follow field contours while keeping lines out of the dirt. That saves wear and tear on the pickup and means less dirt in your bale. Gauge wheels are standard equipment with the wide pickup and an option with some others.

BELTS. Deluxe balers feature chevron belts (pictured above) with heavy duty, plate-type belt lacing. The belts are 6-1/2 inches wide for closer spacing between belts and less space between the belts and side sheets. Belts are configured in a staggered pattern to minimize trash build-up.

BETTER SEED PLACEMENT THAT'S PRECISELY THE POINT

Great Plains

- Great Plains PRECISION Seeding System Plants Corn, Soybeans and Small Grains
- Available in 15' and 30' Widths

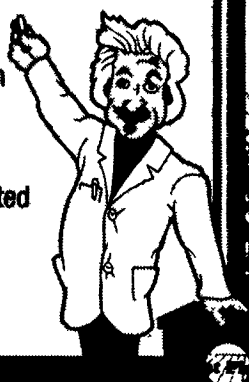

The revolutionary Precision Seeding System from Great Plains gives you the ability to singulate seed in the furrow while dramatically increasing seedbox capacity over traditional hopper-style planters. The SingulatorPlus Meter™ sits directly on top of the double disc opener, and once the meter releases the seed, it has less distance to travel thus ensuring more accurate seed placement.

We're only 30 Days from Planting Second Crop Beans!

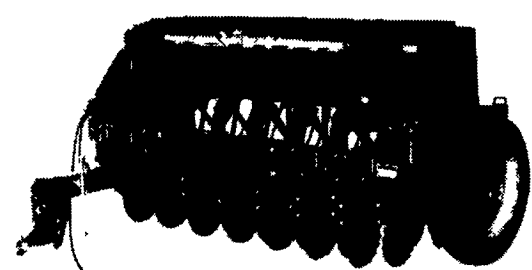

Before you buy your next planter or drill, consider the following facts:

- If you overpopulate with either a planter or a drill, you increase your seed cost and decrease yields.
- Only Great Plains meets or exceeds planters on depth control and seed-to-soil contact for even emergence and maximum yield.
- Drilled beans canopy up to 3 weeks earlier than planted beans, dramatically reducing chemical cost.
- The earlier canopy of drilled beans saves precious moisture that can make or break a bean crop.

Hoober has Great Plains Precision Seeding Systems in stock. Call a Hoober salesman today for all your Great Plains needs.

Hoober Also Stocks Great Plains 1005 No-till Drills

- 7 or 7 1/2" Spacing
- 3 x 13 Center Rib Press Wheels
- Weight Bar Package
- 5/8" Wavy Turbo No-Till Coupler
- Small Seed Attachment

Only more expensive?

Doesn't it seem like the bigger tractors get, the more difficult the controls are to understand?

Fortunately, that's not a problem with the MF 6200 and MF 8200 Series tractors. We work hard to give you the controls to get your work done quickly and efficiently, so you don't spend the day working hard to understand your controls.

You therefore can have more time to deal with the bugs, weeds, diseases, crop planning and, of course, that VCR of yours.

Hay Tools
High-quality
Hay Tools
for High-quality Hay

For High-Quality, high-performance hay making, think green. Think John Deere. Technological innovations and advanced engineering come together to make the best-quality hay and forage.

Innovations such as our 6 Series MoCo cutterbar, with exclusive shearhub technology, help reduce repair costs and boost uptime. The 7 Series Round
 Baler offers the exclusive MegaWide™ pickup to help you form square-shouldered bales easily.

 And exclusive CoverEdge™ net-wrap goes over the edge of the bale to lock in nutrition and value.

Get more value in every pass, wagon, or bale. And with equipment-sized to fit every operation, there's a size for yours. See us today and ask for a demonstration. And we'll show you that the best-quality hay starts and ends with John Deere!

CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES*Our Specialty

We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined outputs, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP
Engines Fits most — Honda, Robin,
Kohler, Kawasaki,
others (1-2 cyl.)

- Fits most standard crankshafts — 1", 1 1/4", 1 1/2"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

AIR DIESEL

It can eliminate 40% of all your engine maintenance problems.

A Deutz AirDiesel is a true no-nonsense engine.
There are no troublesome components such as hoses, fans and radiators associated with liquid cooled engines. A Deutz is cooled by air and is engineered for high reliability. When your Deutz Diesel needs repairs, always buy Genuine Deutz parts to insure best performance and like new reliability.

You can't buy a better ATV for this kind of money anyplace!

This ATV is an excellent work and recreational machine for the price you can't beat it!

Suzuki QuadRunner ATVs may be used by those aged 16 and older. Suzuki highly recommends that all ATV riders take a training course. We'll even pay for it. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the SVIA at 1-800-852-5344. ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety, always wear a helmet, eye protection and protective clothing. Always avoid paved surfaces. Never ride on public roads. Never carry passengers or engage in stunt riding. Riding and alcohol or other drugs don't mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Along with concerned conservationists everywhere, Suzuki urges you to "TREAD LIGHTLY" on public and private land. Preserve your future riding opportunities by showing respect for the environment, local laws and the rights of others when you ride.

Corn Industry To Benefit From 2002 CUTC

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn growers, corn refiners and researchers will all benefit from knowledge and relationships gained at the 2002 Corn Utilization and Technology Conference (CUTC) by exploring the growing role of corn in sustaining the environment.

The 2002 CUTC will be conducted June 3-5 at the Hyatt Regency Crown Center in Kansas City, Mo. The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and the Corn Refiners Association (CRA) are teaming up again to host this event.

"CUTC offers a prime outlet for corn growers and refiners to discuss areas of mutual concern and further strengthen the dynamics within the corn industry," said NCGA Director of Business Development Rene Shunk. "There will be several industry representatives on hand to talk to growers and it will be a great opportunity for our members and other growers to see what's new in the world of research."

The conference will open with a keynote address by Jean-Marie Peltier, Counselor to the Environmental Protection Agency Administrator on Agriculture Policy.

"The lineup of speakers for the 2002 CUTC is impressive and will ensure that attendees leave with their appetites for learning satisfied," said CRA Senior Director of Regulatory and Technical Affairs Jennifer Snyder. "We have incorporated many opportunities for interaction with the speakers and researchers throughout the conference to maximize the personal experience for each attendee."

Technical sessions during CUTC will highlight biotechnology, resource conservation, supply chain management, operations technologies, opportunities and threats for corn growers and refiners, and corn as the feedstock of the future.

The CUTC also features exhibits of corn processing equipment and technology and poster presentations on the latest research related to corn and corn processing. A golf tournament sponsored by conference exhibitors is also planned.

For the first time, CUTC will offer first, second and third place Outstanding Poster Awards. The poster awards will encourage new research of interest to corn growers and the corn wet milling industry.

For 2002 CUTC registration information, contact NCGA's Sandra Wright at (314) 275-9915 (ext. 119), or by e-mail: wright@ncga.com.

For information on 2002 CUTC exhibit and sponsorship opportunities, contact CRA's Melanie O'Donnell at (202) 331-1634, or by e-mail: modonnell@corn.org.

Delaware College Offers Animal Assisted Therapy Certificate

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Delaware Valley College has recently announced it will be offering a certificate program in animal-assisted therapy beginning the Fall Semester 2002.

Offered through the College's Continuing Education division, this 15-credit program is open to anyone wishing to work or volunteer in the field of animal-assisted activities, therapy and/or education need a broad based understanding of the health and behavior of both humans and animals.

This multidisciplinary program studies the interactions between people and their pets. It reviews the health benefits of the human-animal bond for both people and animals. The student will learn what is involved in the development and running of an Animal Assisted Activities and Animal Assisted Therapy programs from both the human and the animal perspective.

For more information or to register for the course, call the Continuing Education office at (215) 489-4848.

All Sizes of New S&S Silos Available

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

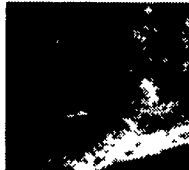

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:

- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damage and stave exposed

After The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick, tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:

- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

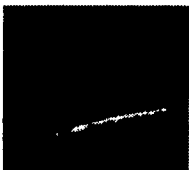

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:

- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made... quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

After The ShotCrete System repairs and replaces the missing structure

- S D S U tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1.55/per lb in 60 lb bags
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal and Rhizoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at "2" and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Panterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Panter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone
It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres.
We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Attention:

Swine and Poultry Producers

Announcing:

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:

- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:

- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:

- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil.
- Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program

- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products

GYPSUM

For Alfalfa application
After First cutting
LOOSEN YOUR SOIL!

Gypsum is a PH neutral source of soluble calcium - sulfate alleviates drought stress & increases root proliferation

BARN DRY - Eliminate settling in gutters & manure tanks. Decreases odor and ammonia.

Custom Manure Hauling

Reduced compaction provides you with healthier crops and higher yields. We offer the flotation of a farm tractor & spreader or try our new truck tractor & trailer tanker. Combine the road speed of a truck (a tractor's greatest limitation) with nearly the same flotation as a tractor & spreader. It will go anywhere our tractor will.

Custom Tillage

We also offer a deep tillage service if you find yourself having to do something about compacted ground. We have a 9-tooth Sunflower chisel fitted with 5 chisel teeth and 4 ripper Shanks. You have the choice of 4 inch twisted shovels for good residue coverage or 2 inch straight points for less coverage. All of our customers who have had used this have been very pleased with the results.
